$1,040,000 PUT BACK IN SUPPLY BILL BY HOUSE

Drastically Cut Measure for District Is to Be Passed Today.

EFFORTS TO RAISE IT HELD WASTED TIME

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The House yesterday moved swiftly through major provisions of the District supply bill, sweeping aside all opposition to appropriation cuts, but relenting long enough to sanction a $1,040,000 increase over budget estimates for "emergency" construction costs.

The lone increase, recommended by the Appropriations Committee and unanimously supported by the House, will permit use of surplus gasoline tax revenues for emergency street and other construction projects given approval of the President.

Already halfway through the bill, the House will pass the $31,332,442 measure today and send it to the Senate.

Houses's Mind Made Up.

A half dozen fruitless efforts were made to restore appropriations to the level requested by the Commissioners, but as Representative Paul Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, put it, they were "a waste of time." The House made up its mind to follow the committee's drastic recommendations.

Representative Kvale sought vainly to stave off inroads on school appropriations, which, he said, will cost the jobs of 40 teachers, cut salaries and handicap school activities generally. He offered two amendments to correct inequities, both of which were beaten.

Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, served as the spearhead for the effort to restore unjustified cuts, but his attempts appeared hopeless from the outset. Smith offered one amendment to increase the street construction fund $1,063,000, but withdrew it when the House Appropriations Committee made known it was offering a similar "emergency" amendment.

Opposition Is Adamant.

But in every other proposed amendment Smith encountered the adamant opposition of House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan, Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri; Representative

Prohibition Repeal Leads in Wisconsin Vote by 4 to 1.

Milwaukee, April 4 (A.P.).—Prohibition repeal was leading by a margin of more than 4 to 1 when returns from 315 precincts of Wisconsin's 2,899 had been counted after today's referendum. The vote was: For repeal, 55,602; against, 13,802.

Most of the early returns were from small cities and rural districts, and in not a single precinct reporting did the voters demand retention of the amendment.

The heavy vote of wet Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Racine, Kenosha and other populous cities of the eastern section of the State, with the exception of a single Milwaukee precinct, was not included in the early returns. The only Milwaukee precinct voted: For repeal, 175; against, 18.

Dry leaders faced the result without hope of victory. All they wished for was some showing of strength, whereas wet leaders hoped to pile up a big majority for "the psychological effect" on the rest of the Nation.

Voters were electing, by popular State-wide ballot, 15 delegates to a constitutional convention to be held at Madison April 25. There were 30 candidates, 15 dry and 15 wet, and almost without exception voters indicated their choice for one or the other group with a single cross mark.

DISTRICT BEER BILL FACES HOUSE TODAY

Senate Passes Revised Plan Conference Agreed On by 42-34 Ballot.

Approved yesterday by the Senate without debate by a roll-call vote of 42 to 34, the conference agreement on the District beer and wine bill will be called up this afternoon for House passage and may be ready for the President's signature by nightfall.

Meanwhile the Commissioners moved yesterday for "temporary" licensing of local hotels and restaurants, so that beer can be sold here Friday, the day the national beer act goes into effect. Regulations and official license application blanks were ordered printed yesterday.

There was no word of opposition voiced in the Senate to the conference agreement, which legalizes 3.2 per cent wine and brew for the District and gives the Commissioners discretionary power to permit sales on Federal property.

But when the report was called up by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, Senator Morris Sheppard, dry Texas Democrat, unqualifiedly opposed to the bill, demanded a quorum call. A roll call vote was then asked, and the report was approved by a margin of 8 votes.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, later filed the report with the House for printing. She decided not to ask for unanimous consent for House consideration yesterday, when advised that Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, would object.

Mrs. George A. Custer Dies in New York at 91

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Custer, widow of Gen. George A. Custer, famous Indian fighter, died today at her home after a brief illness. She was 91 years old. Her husband was killed with 207 of his men in the massacre by Indians near Little Big Horn in Montana nearly 57 years ago.

His widow has been living in New York for many years. A niece, Mrs. Mae Custer Elmer, who resides in Brooklyn, is her only near surviving relative.

Passenger Steamship Strikes Florida Reef

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—The Radio Marine Corporation received a message from its station at Palm Beach, Fla., tonight saying the passenger vessel Marques de Comillas was aground at Carysport reef, a short distance south of Miami.

The message said the tanker Algonquin had sighted the ship on the reef showing distress signals, but that when it offered assistance it was refused. The Coast Guard was notified.

PROBE ORDERED AS AIR TRAGEDY SHOCKS CAPITAL

National Disaster, Says Roosevelt; Discussed by Cabinet.

HOUSE GROUP TO AID NAVY INVESTIGATION

No More Big Airships Will Be Built, Avers Vinson in Citing Two Losses.

(Associated Press.)

The fate of the majestic Akron and the J-3 from the skies to the waters, and the death each dealt to gallant men of the Navy, steeled this saddened Capital last night to determination for full investigation.

Indignation manifest in congressional quarters was tempered by grief for the many lost, and a desire to wait to see what facts are disclosed before any judgment is passed.

From President Roosevelt through official ranks and to the lesser citizenry, the day was one of breathless waiting in a vain hope of tidings that Admiral William A. Moffett and others of the many missing had been saved.

Precautions for succor to possible survivors and inquiry into the Akron crash sped hand in hand by the Chief Executive's direction. Then he was shocked anew as the Navy blimp J-3 plunged into New Jersey surf—with two men lost—anticlimax to the giant Akron's crash.

Discussed by Cabinet.

News of this mishap was carried into the Cabinet meeting which at the time was discussing the earlier disaster.

"The loss of the Akron, with its crew of gallant officers and men, is a national disaster," President Roosevelt said, after dispatching Assistant Secretary Henry L. Roosevelt of the Navy to take charge of the official inquiry.

"At this time it is futile to speculate as to the causes of this disaster," said Secretary Swanson. "A careful investigation will later determine all the facts that are available."

Sentiments that prompted the Navy's swift investigation were echoed on Capitol Hill, and Chairman Vinson declared the House Naval Committee would cooperate with the Navy's inquiry.

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, planned a resolution for Senate investigation, including the advisability of further lighter-than-air expenditures.

Sabotage Report Inquiry.

In the House, Representative Fish (Republican), New York, urged a special inquiry into a report by two Justice Department agents on charges of sabotage in the construction of the Akron.

"An Austrian officer, Paul F. Kassay, had been suspected of sabotage while working on the airship," Fish said. "Two Justice Department agents went to Akron, Ohio, and lived with this man for weeks. The report they made is now on file at the Justice Department.

"It is a most extraordinary report. I think that report should be made public."

Chinese Red Army Whips Nankingese

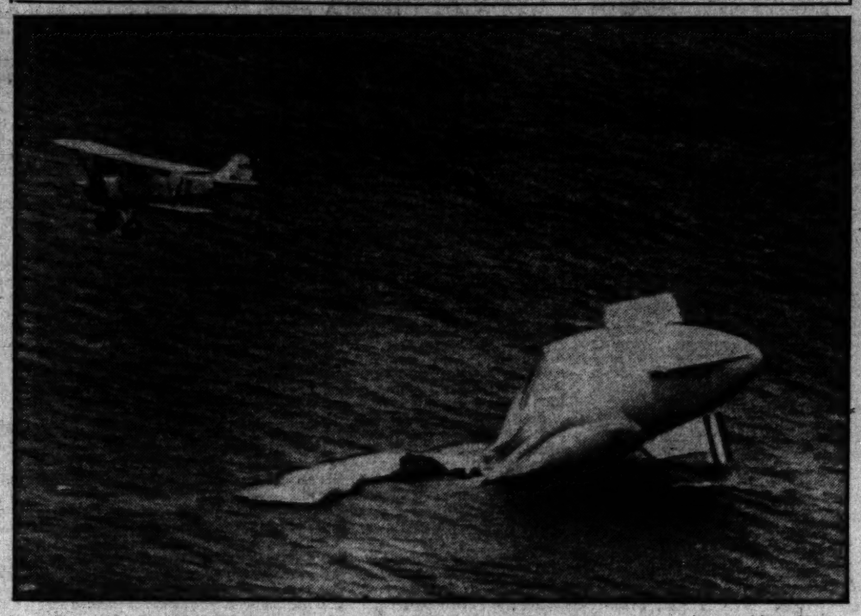

Hanchang, Where 30 White Missionaries Live, Is Object of Drive.

Nanking, China, April 4 (A.P.).—A grave situation has arisen in Kiangsi Province, where Communist armies have inflicted severe defeats on government troops and now are making a determined drive against the city of Hanchang.

The seriousness of the threat was illustrated by the hurried departure from Nanking today of Chiang Kai-Shek, the principal military leader of China. He is proceeding full speed by gunboat to Nanchang to direct operations against the Reds.

There are more than 30 white missionaries at Nanchang, two-thirds of them women. Some of these missionaries are British and some American.

Post's Aviation Editor Sees Navy Blimp Crash Into Sea and Aids Rescue Work

Searching for Akron When J-3 Falls and Soon Vanishes in Sea.

By HARRIS B. HULL.

After patrolling nearly 1,000 square miles of the Atlantic Ocean all day yesterday in an effort to locate the remains of the naval airship Akron, a local Coast Guard rescue group, of which I was a member, witnessed the wreck of the Navy blimp J-3 and recovered the body of its commanding officer Lieut. Comdr. David E. Cummins, Commander Cummins had set out with six of his men from Lakehurst to join the search for the dirigible, but his ship also fell into the sea off Barnegat Point to swell the toll of the naval aviation disaster.

Weather Decidedly Inauspicious

The Washington Coast Guard aviation mission, on hearing of the Akron crash, flew away from the Anacostia Air Station early yesterday in the airplane Sirius, while darkness surrounded and a driving rain beat down.

Dispatched by Commander Norman Hall, head of the Coast Guard Aviation division, and acting under orders from Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet to offer every cooperation to the Navy, we left Washington under inauspicious weather conditions, to put it mildly.

With Lieut. Comdr. Elmer F. Stone at the controls, a veteran pilot who guided the Navy boat NC-4 across the Atlantic when Charles Lindbergh was little more than a youth, we patrolled the Atlantic Ocean for 6 hours in the great Douglas twin-engined flying boat.

Commander Stone, a machinist mate, William D. Eubanks, and myself flew from Anacostia to Coast Guard headquarters at Cape May, where Eubanks was relieved by Machinist F. F. Crump, and we took on Radio Operator J. A. Webber.

There we studdied maps, gassed up and listened for the latest reports on what was believed to be the Akron's position, which was given as 45 miles north of Cape May on a 65-degree compass bearing—or right opposite Atlantic City, where the cruiser Portland was standing by.

Navy Men Conceal Tenseness.

Officers and enlisted men at Cape May, friends and classmates of the men down in an angry sea, gave no indication of the tense situation or the drama that filled the air. Lieut. Comdr. Stone, our pilot, went through the Navy with half a dozen of the men lost yesterday before he was transferred to the Coast Guard. Commander Hall's brother, Ray V. Hall, is in command of the Destroyer McDougal now searching. Every one simply did their job as quickly and well as possible. All wanted to put to sea to try to aid some way, some how, but they knew it was impossible.

Postilion Visits Scene But Keeps Radio Date

A vivid word picture of actual scenes as rescue work was carried on near the Akron's watery grave throughout yesterday, was brought to a waiting public last night through facilities of The Post and Radio Station WMAL.

Harris B. Hull, the Postilion announcer, who nightly broadcasts news events of the world, rushed here from the scene of the crash to bring his air listeners authentic, first-hand information of the search.

By automobile from Cape May, N. J., to Philadelphia, and by train to the Capital, he reached here shortly after 10 p. m., but a few minutes before he was due "on the air."

Hull was met by a Post staff car, and with a police motorcycle escort clearing the way, the radio station was reached just in time.

Rescue Plane Rolls and Tosses, but Finally Makes Escape.

With the break of day, a slackening of the rain, and a flying ceiling of anywhere from 20 to 200 feet, we started out for the scene of the disaster.

Scarcely had Stone lifted the big ship off the water than the Coast Guard station and land was lost in the mist and rain.

With one of America's first pilots at the controls and also navigating expertly, we flew 70 miles out to sea and into the teeth of the last stages of a terrific gale that early yesterday tore in parts the once proud queen of the American skies—the Navy dirigible Akron—and pulled into the waves and undoubtedly to his death, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, veteran chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics and a most ardent backer of lighter-than-air craft, as well as all but three of his gallant men.

Found No Trace of Akron.

But search as we did, we could find no trace of the Akron. She had evidently drifted south with the wind from her last-reposted position, given by her one surviving officer, Lieut. Comdr. Herbert V. Wiley.

Perhaps she sank completely when she hit the water. Perhaps parts of her free-ballooned crazily away with members of the crew tugging violently at guy ropes as has happened in previous airship disasters. The last chapter in the crash of the Akron has not been written. It may never be written.

All we saw were small pieces of mute testimony of nature's conquering of one of man's proudest machines, hundreds of little bits of wood and one gas and ballast tank. Finding of these pieces in an area undoubtedly many miles from where the Akron finally fell, gives credence to the opinion that the great airship disintegrated slowly in the storm

Comdr. Wiley Denies Lightning Hit Ship

Dirigible "Slightly Heavy," Second in Command Declares.

Thus did Lieut. Comdr. H. V. Wiley cry out to shipmates on the Akron, as the giant dirigible plunged toward the sea.

In a faded bathrobe, with a pair of borrowed pajamas about his tall, bulky figure, the second in command of the giant Navy dirigible stood on the steps of the U. S. Naval Hospital in Brooklyn late today and recounted the night of storm and terror that apparently brought death to 73 of his shipmates.

In what he termed "my own interview," the lieutenant commander emphatically said that in his opinion, the Akron was not struck by lightning, and added that there was no fire aboard the craft. There was a possibility, he said, that the ship was struck by lightning without his knowledge, "as there was plenty of lightning all around us."

The officer was calm as he talked. The lobby of the hospital was filled with patients and attendants as he related his views of the tragedy:

Pays Tribute to Captain of German Vessel in His Rescue Effort.

Wiley said that calibration of the New England stations could not begin until it was daylight, and as it was foggy, it was decided to cruise inland, where the ground could be seen.

"We were over Philadelphia about 8:10 o'clock last night," he said, "headed south, following the Delaware River. It was expected there would be no fog south of New Jersey, and that the fog at sea would clear in the morning."

"About 8:35 o'clock," he said, "when 20 miles south of Philadelphia, lightning was seen ahead, and in a few minutes we had reports of a thunderstorm over Washington.

"We headed east and northeast toward the ocean, flying at about 1,600 feet. The ground was obscured by fog, but we knew our position quite accurately, and occasionally we would sight lights, indicating a town which checked our course.

NAVY HUNTS SOUTH TO VIRGINIA CAPES BECAUSE OF DRIFT

HOPE VIRTUALLY ABANDONED IN STATEMENT BY SWANSON

President Deplores National Disaster in Which Only Three Have Been Saved; Moffett Among Lost; Portland Heads Rescue.

New York (Wednesday), April 5 (A.P.).—The crash into the Atlantic of the greatest ship of the skies, the Akron, early Tuesday off the Jersey seacoast, was reckoned today as the most costly disaster in the history of aviation—with only three of 76 men saved.

Hundreds of vessels, naval and civilian, were concentrated in the waters off Barnegat Light early today, determined to renew with the dawn the pursuit on the faint chance that others might still be saved.

But the hope was of the slenderest nature. After estimating the drift of the wind and recovering one body, officials said they did not see how any wreckage could have drifted beyond the region explored from ship and plane. One explanation, given in authoritative circles, was the belief that most of the missing were trapped in the debris which sank.

Search will be extended as far South as Cape Charles, Va., the commandant's office of the Fourth Naval District at Philadelphia announced tonight.

"Beginning at daylight, the search will be continued as intensively as today," said Capt. Gordon Haines, Chief of Staff.

"Land planes will search the coast line from Barnegat to Cape Charles. Seaplanes and surface vessels will operate under the commanding officer of the Cruiser Portland."

165-Mile Search Zone.

Barnegat lightship, off which the Akron was first reported to have crashed, and Cape Charles, to which the search will be extended because of wind-generated currents, are approximately 165 miles apart.

Nine planes will be on the line at the Philadelphia Navy Yard at dawn, three of them land planes and the rest seaplanes, Capt. Haines said.

In addition, three Navy seaplanes from Anacostia flying field, Washington, are housed at the Coast Guard aviation base, Cape May, N. J., and will report to the Portland at daybreak.

Four Coast Guard seaplanes which took part in the search are also expected to fall in with the Navy aircraft unless weather conditions prevent flying.

The Portland, a modern 10,000-ton cruiser, is flagship of the rescue fleet. Its skipper, Capt. H. F. Leary, is directing the search.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, was among those lost on the Akron. Aroused from sleep by the storm, he had been in the control room shortly before the accident.

But Three Survive.

The three Akron survivors are:

Lieut. Comdr. H. V. Wiley, of Lakewood, N. J., executive officer and second in command, who was at the controls.

Moody E. Erwin, of Memphis, Tenn., metalsmith.

The rescued man, who later died, was Robert W. Copeland, of Lakehurst, N. J., chief radio operator.

Twelve hours after the crash, the body of Lieut Commander Harold B. MacLellan, of Westerly, R. I., was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter near the scene of the disaster.

On Capitol Hill there were those

TWO DIE, FIVE SAFE AS BLIMP CRASHES

J-3 Is Carried to Sea in Trying to Land After Hunt for Akron.

Beach Haven, N. J., April 4 (A.P.). Tragedy piled on tragedy today as the nonrigid airship J-3, in attempting to land after searching for survivors of the Akron disaster, was borne a half mile to sea and crashed into the ocean. Two of its crew of seven were lost.

Five of the crew were rescued by a New York City police plane, and another, Lieut. Comdr. David E. Cummins, in charge of the blimp, by a Coast Guard plane. Cummins was flown to Atlantic City, where after unsuccessful attempts were made to resuscitate him, he was pronounced dead "by drowning."

The body of the seventh, Chief Machinist Mate Pasquale Bettio, of Ridgeway, N. J., was recovered several hours later by a Coast Guard boat. It was brought here and then taken to the air station at Lakehurst.

The five rescued men are Lieut. J. M. Thornton, Lieut. William A. Cockell, H. E. Manley, chief radio man; W. H. Meyers, aviation mechanic, second class, and A. S. Sprague, aviation mechanic, first class.

Lieut. Cockell said the blimp lurched over when he pulled a zipper rip in the helium bag to release the gas for a quick landing on the beach, and was carried out over the water and crashed.

The decision to attempt a landing, he said, was made because of a 45-mile wind which they did not want to buck to the naval air station at Lakehurst.

Otto A. Kafke, pilot of the police seaplane, said he noticed the ship apparently was in trouble and turned his plane around toward it.

"Suddenly it collapsed," he said.

Airplane Hunting Akron Is Located

Is Found Safe and Returns to Lakehurst With Five Others.

Floyd Bennett Field, N. Y., April 4 (A.P.).—Airport officials announced tonight they had received word from the fleet of Navy "Hell Diver" planes which was combing the vicinity of the Akron crash that they had located one of their own planes previously reported missing.

Six of the "Hell Diver" planes started out early in the day to search over the scene of the airship crash. Late in the afternoon airport officials received a report that five returned to Lakehurst, discovered the sixth plane was missing and set out again to search for it.

At dusk word came from Lakehurst that all six planes had returned together.

$230,000,000 SHIPS, PLAN OF ROOSEVELT

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt's huge public works bill was outlined yesterday by Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Committee as including provisions for the construction of 30 new warships costing $230,000,000.

That was the forecast he made yesterday after talking with the President. Vinson said the only question in his mind was "when the bill will be sent to Congress rather than whether it will include this construction."

The program which he discussed with the President, he told newspapermen, would "still leave us way under Japan, Great Britain, France and Italy in actual combatant ships except battleships."

It contemplates initial work on 20 destroyers and 4 submarines within 90 days after the bill passes, and the beginning of construction to 2 airplane carriers of 13,500 tons each and 4 10,000-ton 6-inch gun cruisers within six months.

Estimates by the Navy, Vinson said, are that 260,000 men would be given employment directly and indirectly through this program.

"To be conservative," he added, "my guess would be nearer 150,000—but it's just a guess for anybody. The Navy and I might both be wrong."

Vinson said that out of every dollar spent on a naval vessel, 85 cents goes for labor—45 cents to workers in the yards and 40 cents to employes in outside plants.

"This program," he asserted, "would start industry. It would stimulate the steel mills, the lumber plants, the electric equipment manufacturers and give a great boost to railroads by providing them with something to haul.

"In addition, it would give work to thousands of highly skilled workers in the industrial centers who can not be benefited by any other kind of public works."

The only reason he is not attempting to build up to treaty limits, Vinson said, is that "it will take all the navy yards in the country more than three years to build what we propose in this program."

He said an initial appropriation of $46,000,000 for next fiscal year, which begins in June, would be sufficient to start the work. The funds would be provided out of a bond issue, "so there will be no strain on the Treasury or the budget," he added.

Canada Tomorrow Lifts Ban on 3.2 Rum Exports

Ottawa, Ontario, April 4 (A.P.).—The Canadian government has given official notice that after Thursday the ban will be lifted against exports to the United States of beer, ale, porter, wine and similar beverages containing not more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight.

Notices to this effect have been sent by the department of national revenue to its collectors.

Profound Sorrow Voiced by Mexico

Puig Casauranc Is Hopeful Loss of Life Is Less Than Reported.

Mexico City, April 4 (A.P.).—The sorrow of the Mexican government over the Akron disaster was expressed by Foreign Minister Puig Casauranc in a letter tonight to Arthur Bliss Lane, counselor of the American Embassy here.

"I do not need to tell you of the real grief I felt on learning of the Akron catastrophe, whose loss will occasion great sorrow in your country," the letter said. "I still hold the hope that the loss of life may not be so great as reports indicate."

The foreign minister asked that his letter be sent to Washington on behalf of the Mexican government.

as though it had been struck in the middle, and crashed. We flew our plane over and landed and picked up four men who were in a life ring some 300 feet from the blimp, and one who was 100 feet away.

"The blimp was all crumpled up.

"We saw the other two members of the crew swimming, but before we could turn our plane around we lost sight of them.

"My partner, acting Sergt. Joseph Forsythe, who had his fingers cut, was the real hero."

Kafke did not relate how he landed his plane on the choppy seas and then taxied it through the heavy surf to the beach when he found the additional load would not permit it to rise from the water. Both of these feats were regarded as being dangerous.

The two policemen-aviators and the five rescued men were treated at the home of Dr. W. E. Dodd.

Later, the crew members were returned to Lakehurst in an ambulance.

The beach here was lined with persons watching planes and ships searching for Akron survivors when the misfortune befell the blimp.

The five survivors of the J-3 were taken to Lakehurst after emergency treatment and placed in the Naval Air Station Hospital. Their condition is not serious.

"The ship was attempting to land at Beach Haven. Two landing lines were out and a landing party was handling the lines. A sudden gust of wind of great intensity took the ship up and out of the hands of the landing party, and at this time it was decided to 'rip ship' (a term used to designate the act of pulling a rip cord to deflate the bag). The attempted landing took place over marshes well inland from the beach. After the ship had broken away from the landing party the landing lines dragged across a high tension wire, causing flashes which did no apparent damage. The ship was 'ripped' and as it was settling another gust of wind took it to sea where it settled about 100 yards from shore."

Lieut. James Kendall, who gave the statement to the press, said the ship was attempting to land because her port engine had carried away from its outrigging, thus crippling the ship.

At 6:30 p. m., as darkness settled over the sea, the J-3 was drifting about 5 miles off shore. No attempts were made to salvage her after the Coast Guard took up the attempt.

Searching for Survivors.

3:20 a. m., from commandant Third Naval District (New York):

"Following received via Mackey radio from S. S. Phoebus: 'Akron crashed 20 miles east of Barnegat. Searching for survivors. Lieut. Commander Wiley three men on board suffering from immersion and shock. Further details later. WILEY.' "

3:40 a. m. from commandant Third Naval District:

"Following received from Phoebus via Mackey radio."

' 'On board Phoebus, Wiley Erwin, metalsmith, second class, Deal, boatswain's mate second class, all in good condition, Copeland, chief radioman, condition serious. WILEY.' "

4:15 a. m. from the commandant Third Naval District to the U. S. S. Portland:

"One officer and three men on tanker Phoebus. Cole and Sagamore proceeding to report to you. Two planes from Floyd Bennett Field leaving at daylight to assist in search. Coast Guard keep commandant Third fully informed."

Six Planes Take Off.

5:15 a. m. From commandant Third District:

"Following from Phoebus via Tuckerton: 'Akron crashed in widespread thunderstorm 00:30 (12:30 a. m.). Wreckage and many men on water when last seen. Wind northeast. 4 a. m.' "

5:35 a. m. From commandant Third District to U. S. S. Portland:

"Six planes departed Floyd Bennett Field. If survivors are sighted planes have instructions to circle over spot."

6:55 a. m. From U. S. S. Portland to Lakehurst:

"Following received from Phoebus: 'Will transfer two enlisted men, myself and body of Copeland to Tucker which will take us to New York. Notify Lakehurst. WILEY.' "

From Coast Guard to department:

Wreckage Is Sighted.

9:18 a. m. From Portland to Lakehurst:

"Following from Tucker: 'Passed considerable wreckage. * * * Akron crashed and then caught fire. She was in severe electrical storm. Lieut. Wiley gives no reason for crash. No other information obtained so far.' "

10:29 a. m. From the commandant Fourth District:

"Shenandoah and Roma experiences provide possibility Akron broke, one part burned, one part may be mostly air borne, slightly water borne, latter part would drift rapidly with wind. * * *"

All Women Candidates In Election Defeated

Cimarron, Kans., April 4 (A.P.).—Women went on the political war path here, but the uprising passed swiftly. All men candidates were elected today over female opposition, including Mayor Charles Sturtevant, who defeated Mrs. Mary Kissinger, 209 votes to 119.

H. L. Roosevelt Visits Lakehurst

Doesn't Know When Probe Will Be Held; Board Not Yet Named.

Lakehurst, N. J., April 4 (A.P.).—Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, left the Naval Air Station late today after telling reporters he knew no more about the crash of the Akron than they did themselves. His destination was not known, but it was presumed he returned to Washington.

He was asked when a naval inquiry would be held, and replied that he "couldn't say." "It will be called," he added, "when the circumstances warrant." The place of inquiry, he said, will be Lakehurst.

No board of inquiry has been named yet, he said. Reporters asked him if the Akron's crash would have any radical effect on the Navy's lighter-than-air plans.

"I can not say," Mr. Roosevelt replied. "That is a matter of policy."

History of Dirigibles Marked by 10 Crashes

October 4, 1930—British R-101 explodes, France, 46 dead.

5 CAPITAL FAMILIES AWAIT AKRON NEWS

Relatives of Missing Fliers Refuse to Abandon Hope of Rescue.

Stunned by the fate of the dirigible Akron, five Washington family groups last night still clung courageously to the saying that "no news is good news" as the intensive search for survivors of the storm-stricken aircraft went steadily on.

The many homes of naval people here were saddened and shocked by the disaster early yesterday in a measure approaching that of those directly struck by the tragedy. Those whose loved ones were not in the debacle of the big airship gathered around the gref-stricken with comforting word and hand.

First Lady Calls.

Mrs. William A. Moffett, wife of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, maintained a stoic courage through the day. She is not only the wife of a Navy man, but two of her sons are naval flying officers.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was one of those who visited the Moffett home at 2019 Massachusetts avenue to speak a word of comfort.

Three other naval officers missing in the Akron disaster have close kin here. They are Commander Henry C. Cecil, Bureau of Aeronautics, who lived with his wife, Mrs. Isa McBean Cecil, at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest; Commander F. C. McCord, jr., whose father-in-law, Horace A. Dodge, lives at 27 Quincy street, Chevy Chase, Md., and Lieut. Cyrus T. Clendening, son of Mrs. A. E. Muhleisen, of 5604 Sixteenth street northwest.

Young Capital Native.

Lieut. Howard Leyland Young, another missing officer, was well known here. Born in Washington, he attended the Cathedral School for Boys, where he attained renown as a singer. His mother lived here until recently, but had gone to Lakehurst, to be near her son.

Mrs. Cecil remained in seclusion at her Sixteenth street apartment yesterday. Telephone inquiries elicited the courteous reply:

"Mrs. Cecil has no news. She appreciates the thoughtfulness of callers."

Commander Cecil's father lives at New River, Tenn. He was slated to go to sea in June as commander of the air department aboard the air craft carrier, U. S. S. Lexington. Commander Cecil graduated from the Naval Academy in 1910, volunteering for aviation duty in 1915. He has been in the Naval Air Corps ever since. Commander and Mrs. Cecil have no children.

McCord Ship's Commander.

At the homes of Mr. Dodge and Mrs. Muehleisen, the day was one of protracted anxiety, tempered with hope. Mr. Dodge, with whom his daughter and Commander McCord always stayed while in Washington, said:

Commander McCord graduated from the Naval Academy in 1911. During the World War he served as as executive officer of the U. S. S. Robinson, a destroyer. From 1925 to 1927 he served as executive officer at Lakehurst. For two years then he was navigator of the U. S. S. Saratoga. Later he was attached to the U. S. S. Los Angeles, and in 1932 was designated commander of the Akron.

Native of Loudoun.

Lieut. Clendening, but 29 years old, entered the naval air service July 1, 1930, less than three years ago. He did not receive his wings until 11 months afterward and has been assigned to Lakehurst ever since.

Born in Loudoun County, Va., Lieut. Clendening graduated from Emerson Institute and attended George Washington University here. He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1927. His wife and their 18-month-old daughter, Diane, are at Lakehurst.

The home of Elmer C. Carlson, 4008 Kansas avenue northwest, was a scene of anxious waiting through the day. Mr. Carlson's brother, Arthur E. Carlson, boatswain's mate of the Akron, was among the missing.

Arthur Carlson was one of the 17 survivors of the dirigible Shenandoah, which parted in midair over Ohio in 1925 with the loss of 14 lives.

Lewis and Four Others Transferred by Navy

Navy orders issued yesterday will bring Lieut. Comdr. Chester E. Lewis, now on duty at the Naval War College, to the Navy Department here next month, where he will serve a tour of duty in the Bureau of Navigation.

Lieut. Carl K. Fink, now on duty here, will go to the U. S. S. Saratoga as communications officer. Lieut. Sydney L. Huff will go to the U. S. S. Gamble as executive officer. Lieut. Clifford W. Moore will go to the Naval Hospital at Boston, Second Lieut. Joseph W. Earnshaw, of the Marine Corps, will be detached from the local Marine Barracks and will go to San Diego, Calif.

Sees Crash

Flier, in Land Plane, Looks on Helplessly as Navy Blimp Crashes.

By CAPT. CHARLES STOFFER.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Flying two Associated Press cameramen, Joe Caneva and John Rooney, in the vicinity of Beachhaven today, I saw the Navy blimp J-3 bucking a violent and gusty wind about 15 miles offshore.

We flew above and watched the struggle. It seemed to be trying to reach the shore.

So far as I could observe it almost made it and was about 300 feet in the air when a gust of wind seemed to catch it broadside and blow it seaward.

I saw the gondola rip off and fall into the water. The bag blew on another 200 yards and fell. The crew splashed into the water.

An amphibian plane, also circling about, went immediately to the water. Mine was a land plane and there was nothing we could do.

We proceeded on to Lakehurst and notified the Navy authorities. The last I saw was four or five men clinging to the amphibian and several hundred people lined up on the shore watching. Then we came on to New York with our pictures.

Parley to Help Silver Scheduled for Tonight

(Associated Press.)

Silver's troubles and possible cures will be taken over tonight around the supper table by Secretary Woodin and Congressional advocates of rehabilitation of the white metal.

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, one of the leaders in legislative moves to restore silver to former monetary glories, arranged for the conference yesterday in a call on the Secretary of the Treasury. Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, and Chairman Somers, of the House Coinage Committee, Pittman and a dozen or more other senators and representatives will sit in at the meeting with Woodin.

Pierre Claudel Gives Age of Self and Bride

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Pierre Claudel, son of the retiring French Ambassador, and Marion R. Cartier, of New York, appeared at the marriage license bureau today and said they would be married on April 8 at St. Jean Baptiste Church. Claudel said he was born 24 years ago in Tientsin, China. Miss Cartier said she was 21.

Akron Paid Last Visit To Capital on March 4

(Associated Press.)

Just a month ago yesterday the giant Akron floated over the Capitol dome and down Pennsylvania avenue to the White House.

It was her last visit to the Nation's Capital. The silver ship came to play a majestic part in the ceremonies attending the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Balbo Cables Regrets About Akron Disaster

Rome, April 4 (A.P.).—Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, tonight cabled condolences to Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy, regarding the Akron tragedy.

France Plans to Build 4 7,500-Ton Cruisers

Paris, April 4 (A.P.).—Construction of four cruisers of 7,500 tons each will be started immediately, the ministry of marine announced today.

Family Obligations Kept 2 Off Akron

Robbins and Mentz Forewent Trip Because of Other Plans.

(Associated Press.)

Because the mother of one man was returning from Europe and the mother-in-law of another was about to sail, two naval officers yesterday were alive who ordinarily would have taken off aboard the Akron on its catastrophic flight.

Lieuts. Thomas H. Robbins, aid to Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, and G. Francis Mentz, chief of the naval press section, had planned to make the trip Monday night aboard the airship.

Robbins' mother, Mrs. Alice Ames Robbins, was returning from Europe yesterday, and the lieutenant canceled his plans to go. Lieut. Mentz's mother-in-law, Mrs. Alfred Pochon, is sailing immediately for Europe, and he, too, canceled his planned trip on the airship to attend a social function with her Monday night.

Untoward Events Indicate Akron Pursued by Jinx

Akron, Ohio, April 4 (A.P.).—A "jinx" has pursued the U. S. S. Akron ever since the "queen of the skies" took to her element a year and a half ago. Until today, however, the world's largest airship had encountered no serious trouble and had ridden out a storm of congressional criticism.

Troubles that have surrounded the huge craft began even while she was under construction. An alleged Communistic plot to weaken her was uncovered. Paul Kassay, Hungarian engineer, was arrested, but was freed. Later two other workmen charged faulty materials were used in the Akron's construction. A naval affairs committee of the House of Representatives found no truth in the charge.

In January, 1932—four months after the ship was launched—she tore loose from the naval tanker Patoka in Norfolk, Va., but was undamaged.

The following month a congressional subcommittee, investigating the giant ship's airworthiness, went to Lakehurst, N. J., to go up aboard her. A sudden gust of wind slapped the Akron to the ground. The fabric and a vertical fin were damaged. But the ship was repaired and made good as new.

Last summer the Akron experienced her first casualty. She had gone on a jaunt to the Pacific Coast and was being moored at San Diego, Calif., when a strong wind suddenly snatched her upward.

Three of the ground crew, clinging to tow ropes, were jerked up with her. Two of them agonizingly hung on—but their clutches slowly weakened. They slipped to death. The third dangled from his line until the crew was able to pull him safely aboard.

Dallas, Tex., April 4 (A.P.).—Hemmed in by mountains and crashing thunderstorms, the dirigible Akron successfully rode out of danger in southwest Texas last May on its cross-country trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The Akron cruised over San Angelo, Tex., for hours early in the morning of May 10. Through a misunderstanding in signals, it was believed at first that the craft would make an emergency landing there and a ground crew was organized quickly at the municipal airport. Toward morning, however, the dirigible eased off to the south, toward the Rio Grande and El Paso.

DESIGNER OF AKRON DAZED BY DISASTER

Dr. Arnstein Learned Trade Under Zeppelin; Once Built Cathedrals.

Akron, Ohio, April 4 (A.P.).—The man who planned like a father and watched the U. S. S. Akron grow from a roll of blue prints to a silver mammoth of sky, sat before his chart-littered desk today, grim and tight-lipped in the face of swift disaster.

Dr. Karl Arnstein, the German engineer who learned Zeppelin construction under the famous Count Zeppelin, was the designer of the Akron.

From the moment the world's largest airship was envisaged, he followed its progress to air birth, step by step, ring by ring.

Today, nearly two years after the christening of the silver craft, the masterpiece suddenly dissolved, smitten by the mysterious hand of nature—and Dr. Arnstein groped in his mind's eye to picture the cause of it.

To the first newspapermen who approached him he could not make a definite statement.

"I can say nothing," he said in a quavering voice. "I must know more."

Soon, however, he issued from his office a statement proffering every possible assistance of his technical staff in the investigation the Navy Department has ordered.

"News of the disaster," he said, "comes as a profound shock to me and to the entire organization of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation. From the viewpoint of the personnel, it is a staggering loss to the Nation.

"In the absence of anything other than the most meager reports, we are at a loss to understand what might have caused the wreck, and naturally I can not indulge in speculation."

Other Goodyear-Zeppelin executives made no secret of their gloom. W. C. Young, head of the aeronautics department, said, "It will wreck the course of business for a time, but we'll have to carry on."

Probe Welcomed.

The public relations department said the Macon "is still our ship" and an opportunity would be welcomed to investigate "any evidence that may be discovered as to defects."

Dr. Arnstein has been designing Zeppelins and dirigibles ever since the outbreak of the World War. He was building cathedrals when Count Zeppelin summoned him to help plan Zeppelins. By the end of the war Dr. Arnstein had designed 68 of them.

A few years ago Goodyear-Zeppelin brought him here, with twelve technical assistants, as vice president in charge of engineering. Upon his shoulders was placed the job of planning the Akron, and after that, the U. S. S. Macon, her sister ship, now under construction.

Dr. Arnstein would say nothing about the Macon. He denied stoutly, however, the rumors that there were structural faults in the Akron—rumors which a congressional committee last year investigated and disproved.

Marriage Clause Protest Arranged

National Woman's Party Will See Douglas Saturday.

National Woman's Party officers from many States will meet the Director of the Budget, Lewis H. Douglas, on Saturday, to lay before him their plea on behalf of married women threatened with dismissal by the Government under the economy act.

The delegation will be led by Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles, of Delaware, national chairman of the Woman's Party, and will be composed of women who are not themselves employed by the Government.

Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was also appealed to by the Woman's Party to protect the married women in the Government service from dismissal on the sole ground of their marriage. Miss Perkins expressed sympathy with the Woman's Party's protest but referred the delegation to the Director of the Budget.

MT. EVEREST PLANE IS FORCED TO LAND

Purneah, India, April 4 (A.P.).—One of the two airplanes which made aviation history yesterday by flying over Mount Everest was forced down today on a flight in the neighborhood of Kanchanjanga, a mountain almost as high as Everest near the border of the State of Dinajpur, 65 miles from here.

It was reported that no one was injured. First information about the trouble did not make clear which plane was involved.

When the ships left here this morning they were piloted by P. F. M. Fellowes, the technical adviser of the expedition, and R. C. W. Ellison. In the flight over Everest yesterday the pilots were the Marquess of Clydesdale and Flight Lieut. D. F. McIntyre.

As soon as word of the difficulty was received, Lord Clydesdale started from Bihar in a small plane, hoping to locate the ship in difficulty and to drop food to the crew.

In the absence of definite information, fuel shortage was advanced as the most likely reason for the forced landing.

It was learned today that visibility was not entirely satisfactory when the two ships crossed Everest yesterday, and they lost sight of each other when they circled over the peak four times.

In the event another attack is made on Mount Everest, no difficulties are expected with the native authorities of Nepal. Lord Clydesdale accidentally crossed the border of that State without permission on a flight last week.

Kanchanjanga is the extreme eastern horn of the Nepal Himalayas. It is 28,156 feet in height, comparing with the 29,141 feet of Mount Everest.

SIX BRITONS' ARREST HELD TERROR REIGN

London's Ambassador Says They Were Grilled for 36 Hours.

London, April 4 (A.P.).—Ambassador Sir Esmond Ovey's own story of the straining of Anglo-Russian ties after the arrest on sabotage charges of six British subjects in Russia, was told in a White Paper published tonight.

The White Paper, containing the complete interchange of correspondence between the ambassador and the foreign office in London until Sir Esmond was recalled from Moscow, was made public after a bill empowering Britain to declare an embargo against Russian shipments was introduced in Parliament.

In one of his early telegrams, the British Ambassador spoke of the "present reign of terror" and said "it is inconceivable that the Soviet government can produce credible evidence of any criminal malpractice on the part of the company."

The reference was to the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Equipment Co., a British organization for which the accused technicians worked.

In another telegram the ambassador said that "the General Electric Co. of America are seriously worried about their position."

Recounting an interview with Alan Monkhouse, director of the company, one of the men facing trial, the ambassador said he learned that Monkhouse's first examination began at 8 o'clock in the morning and "continued without interruption for 19 hours."

Monkhouse was allowed to go to bed at 3 a. m. at the conclusion of that interrogation, the ambassador said, and was awakened at 7:30 a. m. and questioned for another 17 hours.

A telegram dated March 14 said of the other prisoners: "While the prisoners seemed generally in good health, the drawn expressions of Thornton and Cushny gave me a definite impression of their having been put through it. They all are obviously terrified at speaking and they confined themselves to the minimum of replies."

"The principal danger of the situation," the ambassador said in another message, "would seem to be that these people are completely unable to see themselves in any other light than that of an aggrieved power struggling for their noble ideals against a world of political, commercial and financial conspirators. This feeling has reached the stage of morbid hysteria."

The bill introduced in the House of Commons, which was read for the first time without discussion, provides that "it shall be lawful for his majesty, by proclamation, to prohibit importation into the United Kingdom of all goods whatever, grown, produced or manufactured in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics."

The measure would become effective April 18, the day after the expiration of the trade agreement now in force between the two countries.

Moscow, April 4 (A.P.).—Three of the British engineers who are facing trial on sabotage charges were released in bail tonight.

Washington Man on Akron Also Fell With Shenandoah

Arthur Carlson, Among Missing, Was Stationed Aboard Los Angeles at One Time; Brother Says He Ignored Ohio Tragedy.

As the giant Navy dirigible Akron plunged to doom in the storm-tossed Atlantic early yesterday morning, four men fell with her who were aboard the Shenandoah in 1925 when it disintegrated in mid-air over Ohio, killing 14 Navy men.

Of the quartet of veterans of the Navy's two great air tragedies, only one has been accounted for. The other three are believed to have drowned.

R. E. Deal, of Lakehurst, N. J., is the sole survivor of the two major air disasters of Navy craft. The others are A. E. Carlson, of East Orange, N. J.; A. C. Querhein, of St. Louis, and J. Shevlowitz, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Carlson's brother, Elmer C. Carlson, lives in Washington at 4008 Kansas avenue northwest. Throughout yesterday the Carlson household here, like other Navy homes, was nursing hope as plane and boat scoured the scene of the disaster for survivors.

"My brother was not a nervous man," said Mr. Carlson here yesterday. "Though he was in the Shenandoah disaster, he seemed to feel no qualms about going on with the Akron."

Arthur Carlson is 44 years old and had spent fifteen years in the Navy. In addition to the Shenandoah and Akron service, he was a member of the crew of the Los Angeles. Besides his brother, Boatswain's Mate Carlson has a wife, Mrs. Ethel A. Carlson, who lives at 181 North Seventeenth street, East Orange, N. J.

Ewing Sees Ship On Doomed Cruise

Democratic Leader Trails Akron While Motoring From New York.

Little did Orman W. Ewing realize he would read of the tragic fate of the Akron soon after he saw it swing gracefully from the course of the Delaware River Monday night and disappear into storm clouds on the Eastern horizon.

Motoring from New York to Washington, Mr. Ewing, Democratic national committeeman from Utah, said he first heard the drone of the Akron's motors a few miles south of Camden, N. J.

"She was a beautiful sight," he said, "as she came along, her long slender outline silhouetted against the dusk and her lights sparkling like jewels.

"She seemed to be riding easily at about 50 miles per hour and we followed her for about fifteen minutes before she turned suddenly from the river and headed toward the sea. In the distance we could see storm clouds with lightning flashes through them."

Roumania Is Grieved By American Disaster

Bucharest, Roumania, April 4 (A.P.).—A message of sympathy for the loss of the dirigible Akron was cabled to Washington today on behalf of the government of Roumania.

Dimensions

Of Akron and Its Power Placed It as Largest in World.

Akron, Ohio, April 4 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. Akron was the United States' first home-built dirigible of the Zeppelin type, and with its sister ship, the U. S. S. Macon—now waiting its maiden flight—shared the distinction of being the largest in the world.

The Akron was 785 feet long with a maximum diameter or 132.9 feet and held 6,500,000 cubic feet of noninflammable helium gas—making it nearly twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin. Its length was equal to the height of a 50-story building.

Powered by eight Maybach engines capable of developing 4,480 horsepower, it had a maximum speed of 84 miles an hour. Its cruising range was 10,580 miles—enough to make a jaunt to the North Pole just a weekend trip.

Its rings forming the hulk, and the keel, were made of duraluminum. There were 11 rings, large enough to encircle a 10-story building.

The Akron was able to carry five fighting planes in a lower compartment. There were two control cabins, one forward and one aft, the latter designed for emergency use. The ship carried an electric power plant and a system of 16 telephones.

The 36,000 yards of muslin—specially treated to resist fire—covering the hulk were painted with aluminum—chosen for sun-resistance, but responsible for the Akron's silvery appearance.

Greatest Fencer Of U. S. on Akron

Noted Swordsman Plunges to Doom With Others on Dirigible.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Among those who went down to their death in the storm-tossed air dreadnaught Akron off the New Jersey coast today was America's greatest amateur swordsman, Lieut. George Charles Calnan.

"There is no disputing his place," said Leon Schoonmaker, secretary of the Fencers Club of New York. "He was the finest swordsman this country ever has had."

Eight times the handsome young Navy officer won national titles in foils and epee. He competed in four Olympic games, in 1932 as captain of the United States fencing team, and placed third in epee at Amsterdam for the highest American placing up to that time.

Mrs. Moffett Calls on Navy Wives to Keep Up Courage

Mrs. Roosevelt Finds Her Firmly Believing Mate Is Still Alive.

(Associated Press.)

A courage and faith that drew admiring comment from a President's wife yesterday sustained Mrs. William A. Moffett, whose husband, Rear Admiral Moffett, went down on the wrecked dirigible Akron with 72 officers and enlisted men.

"She is quite wonderful," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said of Mrs. Moffett. "She hasn't given up hope, and she says she won't give up hope."

President Roosevelt already had issued a statement deploring the Nation's loss in the disaster.

But Mrs. Moffett, not for herself alone, but for the wives of all the men missing, held to the high creed of Navy wives—to believe that their men will win through until the last possible hope is gone, to face a crisis without flinching.

Standing erect at the head of the entrance stairway of her Massachusetts avenue home, Mrs. Moffett herself gave that creed to the press—made it a message of courage to other wives.

"I have every belief that Admiral Moffett is all right and I shall hear from him," she said.

"I shall not give up hope until I have definite word from the Navy that he has been proven lost.

"So many little boats, not equipped with radio, are on those waters that there is every chance that many of the men were saved.

"The admiral has a way of coming out of things safely."

Mrs. Moffett's clear voice never once faltered. She was wearing a graceful gown of gray. Her face, framed in dark hair, simply coiffed, was serene.

Mrs. Moffett said her message to the other wives would be to keep on hoping. She mentioned by name Mrs. Cecil—wife of Commander Henry B. Cecil—also at her home here, and with whom she evidently had exchanged messages of encouragement.

The high creed also was carried on at Mrs. Cecil's home. She believed "absolutely" there was still a chance, and that her husband "might be adrift in a little boat."

Other Washington wives of men missing in the Akron had gone to Lakehurst to await word of the dirigible at its home base.

Speeding here from the West Coast by airplane were two of Mrs. Moffett's children, Mrs. Janet Moffett Moore, daughter, and Lieut. George Moffett, of the U. S. N., stationed on the U. S. S. Lexington at San Diego. Mrs. Moore first flew from Catalina Island to the coast to join her brother in Los Angeles.

Another son, Ensign W. A. Moffett, jr., is attached to the U. S. S. Argonne, recently sent to Alaskan waters. George Moffett, a brother, will arrive from Charleston, S. C., this morning. A nephew, George Dillingham, of Baltimore, arrived last night.

The wives of Commander F. C. McCord and Lieut. C. T. Clendening went to Lakehurst to await word of their husbands, but other relatives remaining here did not share Mrs. Moffett's faith.

"We haven't much hope," said William Muehlelsen, stepfather of Clendening.

"I don't see how a man can be in the water 12 hours and still be alive," despondently said Horace A. Dodge, father-in-law of McCord.

MRS. MOFFETT.

SHENANDOAH CRASH IN STORM RECALLED

Rosendahl's Skill in Landing Portion of Ship Saved Many Lives.

Cleveland, April 4 (A.P.).—The disaster of the U. S. S. Akron today recalled vividly to Ohio the crash of one of her predecessors, the Navy dirigible Shenandoah, which tore apart during a storm and carried fourteen of her crew, including her commander, to their deaths.

It was in the early dawn of September 3, 1925, that the ship, on a training cruise of the inland that was to include numerous Middle Western State fairs, split in two near Ava, in Noble County.

Caught in air currents of tremendous velocity as she floated over the Ohio River, the huge ship was lifted up like a toy and, in a final wrench, the control car was ripped from the hull and dashed to earth.

Lieut. Comdr. Zachary Lansdowne and 13 officers and men were killed in the fall.

Lieut. Comdr. Charles E. Rosendahl, who until recently commanded the Akron, directed the men who were left with him in the forward portion and in a remarkable exhibition of air-navigating skill, they succeeded in manipulating the huge craft as a free balloon and bringing her safely to earth.

Even when it was landed, however, the danger was great. A high wind whipped the bag on the ground like a wounded giant. Not until Rosendahl had commanded farmers to shoot holes in the helium bags with pistols and shotguns was the torn and shattered portion brought under control.

A naval court of inquiry that investigated the crash praised the conduct of the ship's personnel and concluded the loss of life was "part of the price that must inevitably be paid in the development of any new and hazardous art."

Storm From Ocean Cause of Disaster

Was at Greatest Intensity When It Struck Akron, Forecaster Says.

Plainfield, N. J., April 4 (A.P.).—Samuel K. Pearson, cooperative Government weather observer, said today the storm which destroyed the U. S. S. Akron probably came suddenly off the Jersey coast, although he said he had predicted unsettled conditions for the State last night.

An easterly wind blew all day yesterday from the ocean, and this wind, reaching the comparatively warm areas over the land, caused the disturbance which brought about the electrical storm about 11 p. m.

This storm then developed over the sea, the observer said, reaching its greatest intensity about the time of the Akron disaster. Pearson said the possibility of forecasting of an electrical storm in a given area with any degree of accuracy was remote because of the suddenness with which such storms develop and subside.

Moffett and His Men Are Praised by Hoover

Palo Alto, Calif., April 4 (A.P.).—Asked for comment on the destruction of the Navy dirigible Akron, former President Hoover issued the following statement here today:

"The Akron can be replaced but we can not replace the brave men who have been lost. Admiral Moffett and his men have kept the faith and traditions of the Navy. They have gone down with their ship. They have added another inspiration to our people."

BOYCOTT OF JEWS IN GERMANY ENDS

Will Resume Movement if Campaign Abroad Is Revived, Nazis Say.

Berlin, April 4 (A.P.).—The anti-Semitic boycott will not be resumed tomorrow, the Government announced today, but the Nazi party reserved the right to start the movement again if the "atrocity campaign" is revived abroad.

The boycott originally was called by the party rather than by the Government itself. At the last moment Chancellor Adolf Hitler's cabinet stepped in, decreeing that Jewish restrictive measures should be limited to last Saturday and leaving the question of resumption tomorrow dependent on the cessation of foreign protests and reports concerning anti-Jewish atrocities in Germany.

George A. Gordon, the American Charge d'Affaires, communicated with the foreign office today concerning charges disseminated by the Pan-German press service that "an atrocity lie factory has been set up in the American Consulate-General."

This service is edited by two Nazis. It asserted that the American and Polish consulates were collecting accusations made by Eastern Jews against Nazis.

It was understood that the foreign office agreed the allegations were improper, and it was expected that the press service would publish a correction and would apologize to the consulate general.

"We strongly resent these unwarranted implications and will by proper representations insist on immediate stoppage," said George S. Messersmith, the American consul general.

The government issued a statement saying it would countennance no interference from Russia, which has protested against recent raids on Soviet trade delegation offices in Berlin and Hamburg and on the headquarters of Soviet business concerns.

The statement was given out after it was learned that Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar, had made a protest to the German Ambassador at Moscow. A similar protest came from the Russian Ambassador in Berlin.

Rosendahl Sends Regret At Catastrophe to Akron

San Diego, April 4 (A.P.).—Lieut. Comdr. Charles Rosendahl, former commander of the Akron, wirelessed from the U. S. S. West Virginia, on which he is now stationed, to the commandant of the Eleventh Naval District here that details were too meager to form an opinion as to the cause of the disaster off the Jersey coast.

"I am more than deeply shocked," Rosendahl said in the message, "at the loss of the Akron and extend my deepest sympathy to the families of the lost, many of whom have for years been my associates in airships."

Home for Macon To Be Dedicated

Tentative Plans Advancing Despite Demise of Sister Ship.

San Francisco, April 4 (A.P.).—Naval district headquarters here today announced tentative plans for the commissioning of the new $5,000,000 air station at Sunnyvale, Calif., which is to be the home of the Macon, sister ship of the ill-fated Akron.

Although the program was announced as tentative, naval officers said they knew of no changes in the plans as the result of the Akron disaster. The station is to be commissioned April 12.

Plans called for an address by Gov. James Rolph, jr., and the actual commissioning by Rear Admiral G. W. Laws, commandant of the Twelfth Naval District.

First Dirigible Akron Lost at Sea in 1912

Atlantic City, N. J., April 4 (A.P.).—An early dirigible by the name of Akron was lost at sea off Atlantic City on July 2, 1912. She was 258 feet long, had four gasoline engines developing 277 horsepower, and carried 8,000 pounds of fuel when Melvin Vaniman and a crew of four departed for a transatlantic trip. Still within sight of land and while flying 1,000 feet over the sea she caught fire. Those on shore saw a puff of smoke and heard an explosion. The ship, enveloped in flames, dropped into the sea. All those aboard perished.

Ship Reports Passing Envelope of Dirigible

Boston, April 4 (A.P.).—Coast Guard headquarters here tonight reported receiving a wireless from a steamer saying she had passed fabric, like the outside cover of the airship Akron, and some wreckage, at approximately 3 miles northeast of Little Egg Inlet light.

Hindenburg and Hitler Cable Their Sympathy

Berlin, April 4 (A.P.).—President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Hitler today cabled President Roosevelt their own sympathy and that of the German people in the wreck of the Akron.

207 Persons Carried On Akron, a Record

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. Akron once carried 207 persons, the greatest number ever to be taken aloft by either lighter-than-air or heavier-than-air craft.

The 207 persons, including the crew, were taken for a ten-hour cruise over New Jersey and neighboring States on November 3, 1931. The next greatest number taken up at one time cruised over Lake Constance in 1929 in the heavier-than-air DO-X. Aboard were 169 persons.

Wives Maintaining Tragic Vigil Bravely Near Hangar

Lakehurst, N. J., April 4 (A.P.).—They found it hard to believe—those who are left behind—that the Akron is gone, that what was no more than an ordinary occurrence in the lives of their own people should have ended so tragically.

And in their sorrow they kept asking one question over and over: Why was this flight singled out from all the others to end in disaster?

The Akron had made numerous voyages, many of them seemingly more hazardous than last night's; long flights to the West Indies and Panama, to Bermuda and the West Coast, and so many short ones that nobody remembers them all.

Maybe during all those flights the question was hanging fire in the minds of those left behind, always ready to be asked. But if there were ever fear, it was never publicly known.

"What if an electric storm hits you?" Mrs. Noexca Copeland said she asked her husband, R. W. Copeland, radio man on the ship, before it departed yesterday.

"We will be in the safest place—in the air," he answered, and that was typical of the men who took the ship aloft.

The women had hope at first, just as the wives of fishermen and deep-water sailors have hope, but it waned as the hours passed and the meager news that came through was always the worst news.

Yet few gave way to their grief. The news was so unbelievable that in the beginning they were merely stunned. The wives of the enlisted men waited in the recreation room at the naval air station, where they had hurried from their homes in Toms River, Lakewood, Lakehurst, and other communities—waited for news.

Some of them were nearing middle-age, the wives of petty officers. Some were very young. One was a recent bride. They did not cry. Some smoked cigarettes, some talked. Most were too weary with thinking.

"Those men," he remarked, "were hand-picked, among the finest we have. And these women," he said, after a pause, "are soldiers!"

There was a little commotion on the other side of the flag-draped room where many had first met their husbands, where they remembered laughter and gayety and the bright station dances. A woman had fainted. In another building the wives of the officers waited, as stoical as the others. Here Lieut. Comdr. Jesse Kenworthy, in charge of the station since his superior, Commander Fred T. Berry, went aboard the Akron, read the messages.

And in a house at 36 Taranetta drive, Lakewood, the three children of Lieut. Comdr. Herbert V. Wiley, the only officer to escape so far as is now known, waited for their daddy to return. David, 8; Gordon, 12, and Marie, 2½, were thankful. Their mother died a year ago.

$1,040,000 IS RESTORED TO DISTRICT SUPPLY BILL

Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, and Representaitve John Taber (Republican), New York.

Cannon, who voted against the President's economy bill, advocated the most rigid economy in District expenditures, comparing the pretensions of the Capital City to the glory that was Rome and the hanging gardens of Babylon.

Blanton attacked local expenditures, but the accuracy of some of his statements was questioned by Representative Anthony J. Griffin (Democrat), New York, who lined up with Representatives Smith and Kvale.

Money Called District's.

To the arguments of Mr. Blanton, who pictured "the long, hairy arm of the District" as dipping ever into the Federal Treasury, Smith responded.

"This bill has nothing to do with balancing the national budget. The reasons for curtailing appropriations in the other appropriation bills for national purposes that come before the Congress do not pertain to this bill except incidentally. This money is the money of the people of Washington, derived by local taxation."

A unique proposal was made by Representative Robert L. Bacon (Republican), New York. He suggested the President be given authority to reorganize the District government, similar to the authorization he now has to reorganize the Federal structure. Representative Buchanan said the committee had considered such a recommendation, but decided it was matter for the House District Committee.

Questioned later, Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee said she has not studied the proposal, but would be opposed to further curtailing already sharply reduced District activities.

As reported to the House following a morning meeting of the Appropriations Committee, the District bill actually carried $9,758 less than was in the budget estimates, but the subsequent committee amendment covering new road construction wiped out this decrease and boosted the budget figure some $1,080,000. If passed at this figure, however, the budget will still be more than $10,000,000 under current appropriations.

The committee made a flat recommendation for a 20-cent decrease in the local real estate tax rate, although no specific provision for this decrease was in the bill. When Representative Smith offered an amendment to permit the Commissioners to reduce the tax rate "so as to prevent the accumulation of surplus," it was stricken from the measure on a point of order.

The Virginia representative vainly sought to provide funds for the widening of Constitution avenue, and for building Calvert street bridge over Rock Creek, provided for in the bill which died in the House last session. He was defeated on both scores.

Following a long harrangue by Blanton on District government costs, Representative Griffin challenged the Texan's statement that the District would record a deed 30 pages long for only 75 cents. Blanton cited this as typical of District management. Griffin pointed out that as a matter of fact, it costs 50 cents to record the first 200 words of a deed, and 15 cents for each additional 100 words.

When Griffin attempted to increase the appropriation for the register of wills office from $60,000 to $63,934, claiming the office more than pays for its upkeep and would be handicapped by a cut, he was overwhelmingly defeated.

Representative Byron B. Harlan (Democrat), Ohio, made a futile effort to strike out a provision in the bill forbidding the Public Utilities Commission from enforcing its taxicab meter order.

Kvale Is Unsuccessful.

Representative Kvale's attempt to ease the cuts in public schools and library allowances was opposed by Representative Cannon, who last session declared he was in favor of sparing educational appropriations. Cannon said economic reverses have forced curtailment of school costs everywhere, pointing out that the President recommended the reduction.

"Nobody can tell me that the President wants the children of this city to bear the brunt of a depression for which they were not responsible," Kvale responded.

Representative Vincent Carter (Republican), Wyoming, was unsuccessful in an effort to prohibit teachers and janitors who serve in the day schools from employment in night school work.

No effort was made yesterday to restore the Federal "lump sum" contribution above the $5,700,000 provided in the budget.

Mass Meeting to Protest D. C. Supply Bill Slashes

Protest against the huge reductions in the District supply bill will be made tomorrow at a mass meeting of members of citizens' associations, Board of Trade and other organizations, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. I. M. Saunders, president of the District Parent-Teachers Association. All persons interested are being urged to attend.

At the meeting the budget cuts will be the principal topic of discussion, and it is planned to demand a hearing before the Senate committee that will handle the bill.

The meeting will be held in the auditorium of either the Roosevelt or McKinley High School.

SENATE UNIT READY FOR MORGAN PROBE

Broad Power Is Given Group; Report of Another Asks Harriman Inquiry.

(Associated Press.)

Fortified with all the Senate's constitutional power, the Senate Banking Committee was ready last night to resume its investigation of that colossus of finance, J. P. Morgan & Co., and other private bankers.

The Senate reached out to the limit of its authority to give the committee broad powers to make the inquiry desired by President Roosevelt.

Without a word of debate, it adopted a resolution requested by the committee on the ground that the house of Morgan had refused to answer one of 23 questions submitted by the committee's counsel, Ferdinand Pecora.

John W. Davis, counsel for the Morgan firm, has announced that it is willing to cooperate with the committee. Pecora, who was waiting in New York for the Senate's action, was expected to confer with him immediately.

About the time the Senate was acting on the resolution, it received a favorable report from the Judiciary Committee recommending an investigation of the delay in prosecuting Joseph W. Harriman, New York banker.

Harriman has been charged with false entries in the books of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co., of which he is the organizer and former chairman.

George Z. Medalie, district attorney at New York, recently said he had delayed prosecution of the banker at the request of the Justice Department before the change in administration to afford an opportunity to straighten out the bank's affairs.

Did Not Know of Wife's Divorce Plans, Mix Says

Los Angeles, April 4 (A.P.).—Tom Mix, motion-picture cowboy, testified in court today he did not know his former wife, Mrs. Victoria Mix de Olazabel, intended to sue for divorce until she had left for Europe, taking several articles from their home.

The testimony was in trial of his former wife's suit to collect $50,000 in notes which Mix said he was coerced into signing when she threatened to withhold reconveyance of title to some of his property.

Board Will Study Parole for Haynes

Former Banker's Family Is Said to Be Destitute; Job Promised.

The District Parole Board is expected to meet today to reconsider the case of Harry V. Haynes, former Georgetown banker, who is serving a five-year sentence in the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va. His parole, to which he is entitled because of more than two years servitude, is favored by Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of penal institutions.

Hundreds of letters urging the parole of Haynes have been received by the parole board and the application for parole has been pending several months.

The family of the former banker is reported to be in destitute circumstances. A position has been promised Haynes, however, immediately after his parole.

Couple Who Exchanged Letters 20 Years Wed

Baldwin, Kans., April 4 (A.P.).—For 20 years, Mrs. Anna G. Steinfad, of Baldwin Park, Calif., and Daniel W. Terry, 75, farmer, near Baldwin, had corresponded. During that time they never saw each other. Today they were married.

W. Worth Smith, Jr., In Governor's Race

He Announces Candidacy on Platform of Repeal and Sale of Beer.

Richmond, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—State Senator W. Worth Smith, jr., tonight definitely announced his candidacy for governor on a platform calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Layman act to permit the sale of 3.2 per cent beer.

The State senator, long regarded as a potential candidate, definitely tossed his hat into the ring, saying he wished "to lay at rest any misgivings on the part of the Virginia electorate as to whether or not I shall be a candidate for the governorship."

His announcement brought to three the field of candidates. Yesterday Joseph T. Deal, former representative from the Second District, entered the race in opposition to George C. Peery, the State Corporation Commission, who was the first to declare his candidacy.

Drowning of Boy Believed Accident

Evidence of Foul Play Is Lacking in Death of Nicholas Loreto.

A certificate of accidental death probably will be issued today in the drowning of 8-year-old Nicholas Loreto, 1624 A street northeast, whose body was recovered from the Eastern Branch Monday after a 24-hour search.

Both the coroner's office and the homicide squad concurred in the belief that the boy had fallen into the water, after a thorough investigation of the possibility that he was pushed in.

The boy was last seen Sunday morning in the company of two friends, and when he did not return members of his family joined police in a search for him.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow morning at 8:30, followed by mass at Holy Name Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

(Associated Press.)

Adding to the gloom at a Navy Department, tense with anxiety yesterday over the Akron disaster, was the knowledge that Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics and one of the service's best-loved officers, was among the missing.

Moffett, the only chief the Bureau of Aeronautics ever had, left the Navy Department at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon to drive to Lakehurst for the Akron's flight.

He frequently was aboard during the huge craft's weekly training jaunts and had it not been for him it is entirely possible that the Akron and her successor, the Macon, would not have been built.

The Shenandoah disaster in 1925 caused much criticism of lighter-than-air craft, but the tragedy did not discourage Moffett, nor did the other tragedies that have attended development of airships. He believed that experience would overcome the mistakes and that the dirigible type had an unparalleled value for scouting.

Admiral Moffett's genial personality helped develop the Navy's program or aircraft. He smoothed out differences in the Navy Department itself and knew most of the Senate and House leaders and members of the committees which appropriated for aircraft or fashioned bills for them.

He was named chief of the newly organized Bureau of Aeronautics by President Harding in July, 1921, and assumed his duties in September.

He was reappointed by President Coolidge in March, 1926, and was again named for a four-year period on March 13, 1929, by President Hoover on the recommendation of the then Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams.

Admiral Moffett was born in Charleston, S. C., and was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1890.

During the Spanish-American War, Admiral Moffett, then an ensign, served with Admiral Dewey at the Battle of Manila Bay. He was in command of the cruiser Chester during the occupation of Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1914, and was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his services.

During the World War he was commandant of the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Naval Districts, including command of the naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill. After the war ended he commanded the U. S. S. Mississippi. A little later he turned to aviation, which has been his chief interest since.

He had had more air experience with all types of airplanes, seaplanes and big airships than any admiral in any navy in the world. He was married and had five children, two of whom are naval aviators.

Coast Off Barnegat Light Scene of Countless Wrecks

Guard at Station One of Most Active Along Atlantic; Difficult of Access by Land and Sea; Harbored Freebooters; Waters Treacherous.

"When the Akron went down near Barnegat the giant Navy dirigible was added to a long roll of victims of the sea off New Jersey's 'Hatteras,' says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Statistics show that the Barnegat Coast Guard Station is one of the most active stations on the entire Atlantic Coast. Here the New Jersey shore bends like an elbow from a north-south direction to the southwest, and tidal currents, winds and shifting shoals have taken toll of thousands of boats, large and small, since this part of the country was first sighted by Giovanni da Verrazano, the Florentine navigator, in 1524.

"In these days of large steamers which run well out at sea most of the vessels in distress are amateur sailors; rich yachtsmen who do not allow for drift and tidal variations and whose craft pile up on the shoals. Or from fishermen's boats when their engines break down. However, coastwise barge traffic is heavy, and occasionally one breaks loose from its tugboat to add its wreckage to many that have preceded it.

"In a description of the Jersey coast, published in 1879, it was stated that prior to the War of 1812 Old Cranberry Inlet (nearby) was one of the best anchorages on the coast, and it afforded a safe harbor for American privateers on the lookout for British ships during the Revolution. It was opened one night by the angry sea breaking across the beach, and during the last year of its existence as a deep-water harbor the whole channel drifted nearly a mile to the northward.

"Its closure, about 1812, caused so much inconvenience that, in 1831, an attempt was made to cut a new inlet near the head of Barnegat Bay (the present Bay Head). With the assistance of others, it was finally finished; but the following morning, to the amazement of the volunteer workers, it had closed up again.

"To Jersey marshmen, baymen and old sailors the coast in the neighborhood of Barnegat Light is a region of legend and mystery. Here freebooters once hung a lantern around a hobbled mare's neck and turned the animal loose on the beach. Ship captains seeing the bobbing light mistook it for another ship in safe water, and were lured to destruction in the heavy surf. The freebooters then sold cargo that washed up on the beach.

"Old Barnegat Light," a towering shaft built in 1858, no longer flashes a warning to mariners. A modern lightship a few miles offshore now indicates the shoal line, and the venerable shaft, its base buttressed with heavy piling against the shifting sands at its feet is now a State museum. For the sake of sentiment a small light is kept burning at night in the tip of the tower, where once a great white beam shot its message of caution far out over the ocean.

"Barnegat is difficult of access by both land and sea. In recent years a narrow paved road has been run through the sand dunes of Long Beach from Hanshawkin, on the mainland, but the point of land on the opposite side of Barnegat Inlet has no connection with the outside world save by small boats. Barnegat City is but a tiny cluster of weather-beaten houses around the old lighthouse and Coast Guard station. The big rambling hotel, which for half a century was a rendezvous of deep-sea fishermen, was destroyed by fire last year."

Man and 2 Sons Held When 5 Die

Burning of Cabin Attributed to "Feeling" Between Families.

Florence, Ala., April 4 (A.P.).—Owen Young, 50-year-old farmer and his two sons were arrested today and charged with first degree arson in the burning Sunday of the log cabin home of Baylese Pomoroy, who with his wife and three children died in the flames.

The sons were Burt, 30, and Ray, 23.

Sheriff's deputies said residents of the Gravelly Springs community, where the Pomoroys lived, 18 miles from here, told them "bad feelings" had existed for several months between Pomoroy and the Youngs.

Cadet Rites

Reichelderfer Will Award Commissions Today to McKinley Youths.

Forty years ago the first colonel of the famous Washington High School Cadet Brigade received his commission and took command dressed in the epauletted uniform required for that lofty station in the presence of a throng of spectators.

That same officer, who is now president of the Board of Commissioners of the District, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, at 2 p. m. today will award the commission to the 40 cadet officers of this year's honor regiment, that of the McKinley High School.

Principal Daniel and a committee of the regimental officers yesterday called on Commissioner Reichelderfer in the District Building and invited him to officiate.

POLICE HUNT FOURTH SUSPECT IN SLAYING

Hammer Blow Is Blamed for Death of Woman Found on Vacant Lot.

With three persons under arrest in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Eva Cumberland, 53, who was found unconscious on a vacant lot in the rear of 719 Ninth street southeast, early Monday, police last night were searching for another man, to shed further light on the woman's mysterious death.

A wound, 3 inches behind the dead woman's right ear, where her skull was found to be fractured, was probably the cause of her death. The fracture was thought to have been caused by a hammer blow. Other marks of violence on the woman's body indicated, according to Acting Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, that she had either been struck, or fell from an elevation, landing on a sharp stone.

Detectives investigating the riddle yesterday found a slipper in the alley in the rear of a Ninth street address. Mrs. Cumberland had only one slipper on when she was found.

Police said that she may have been killed during a party which ended in the vicinity in which her body was found. She made her home at 724 Ninth street southeast.

Detectives yesterday questioned several persons in connection with the dead woman's activities up to the time of her death. No one in addition to those persons arrested Monday was held. No date has been set for an inquest.

Those under arrest are Edward Taylor, 32, a paperhanger, of 913 Potomac avenue southeast; Mrs. Dorothy Jane Taylor, 22, of 913 Potomac avenue southeast, and Wilbur Allen, 34, a trucker, of Camp Springs, Md.

Coroner's Jury Checks Actions of Air Victim

Salford, England, April 4 (A.P.).—Whether Alfred Voss was one of the innocent victims of the disaster to the air liner City of Liverpool "or whether he met his death as the result of some malicious act on his own part," were contingencies the jury would have to consider, Coroner A. Howard Flint said today at the opening of an inquest into the death of Voss.

The coroner in a statement yesterday pointed to the possibility that Voss might have started the fire which caused the disaster to the ship, which crashed in Belgium March 28 with a loss of 15 lives.

Alexandria Police Help Family of 7

Mother Is Sent to Hospital While Aid Is Sought for Others.

A man, wife and five children, ranging in age from 2 to 14 years, arrived at the Alexandria Police Station on Monday night asking for lodging, driving a small automobile. The woman was sent to the Alexandria Hospital, as she is expecting another baby, while the man and children were made as comfortable as possible at headquarters for the night.

The man gave the name of Jesse M. Amoson, 36, and his wife, the same age, and said he was a meat cutter and sausage maker by trade, and had been working in Altoona, Pa., but his work stopped, and they were making their way to their home in Anniston, Ala.

The family were not entirely destitute, but are in need of help, and the police secured a lodging place for the man and children for two weeks, at a nominal rate, and the woman will be kept in the hospital. The police are trying to secure work for the man, to enable them to continue home as soon as the mother can make the trip.

WHYS AND OTHER WHYS

The Open Forum—What's Your Why?

WHY'S it Commerce lawn bids fair to go through another summer without grass? Yesterday workmen raked the ground. No, no grass in prospect, they said. "The contractor has the job of sodding, but we haven't heard of any plans for grass."

A call to plant industry, Agriculture, will bring all the information needed on how to start a fine lawn.

So why is it Commerce still has no grass on the lawn?

If you think things couldn't be worse, recall what great men in their day had to say about then existing conditions:

William Pitt said: "There is scarcely anything around us but ruin and despair."

Wilberforce at one period said: "I dare not marry, the future is so dark and unsettled."

The Duke of Wellington on the eve of his death in 1851 thanked God he would be "spared from seeing the consummation of ruin that is gathering around us."

Disraeli in 1846 said: "In industry, commerce and agriculture there is no hope."

And yet conditions snapped back.

There's a new deal ahead for the Nation's stamp collectors. According to Michael L. Eidsness, jr., stamp division, a pamphlet, "A Description of United States Postage Stamps and Postal Cards" is to be brought up to date for benefit of philatelists.

The present pamphlet contains the history of all United States stamps and postal cards from July 1, 1847, to December 31, 1927. In the nearly six years elapsed since publication of this document, the Postoffice Department has issued quite a number of stamps of the regular and commemorative varieties. No history of such stamps has ever been available in a permanent form. It is the opinion of Postmaster General Farley that the pamphlet should be revised and brought to date.

The pamphlet will contain all issues of stamps and postal cards authorized by the department to December 1, 1932.

LITTLE BLUE CLERKS

The Government Clerks are covered with dust,
But sturdy and staunch they stand
And the promise of increase is red with rust
And their bankbooks mold in their hands.
Time was when these clerks were young,
And their chances seemed passing fair,
And that was the time when their Uncle Sam
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now work till you're wrinkled and gray," he said,
"And don't you make any noise;
"We'll have no requests for a salary raise
"From you foolish girls and boys."
Then he jumped the price of food and wool,
And far from content with that,
Gave himself a fifty per cent increase,
But the clerks' pay still stands pat.

Yet faithful to Uncle Sam they toil,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of their uncle's hand,
The smile of their uncle's face;
And they wonder, as waiting these long years through,
So weary, worn and perplexed,
Whether, failing to get their reward in this world,
They may hope for a raise in the next.

A GOVERNMENT CLERK'S WIFE.
U. S. Veterans Bureau, May, 1928.

Washington likes fish and fish helps balance the family budget, we learn from Fisheries. Fishery products totaling 11,434,119 pounds were received at the Municipal Fish Wharf and Market in 1932, an increase of 2,128,654 pounds, or 23 per cent, as compared with 1931 and an increase of 21 per cent as compared with the average receipts during the past five years. In 1928 the per capita was 19 pounds. Now it is 20 pounds.

Navy Department branch, Union No. 2, N. F. F. E., elected these officers and representatives last night:

President, Leslie C. McNemar, judge advocate general's office; vice president, William B. Crowell, judge advocate general's office; secretary, M. S. Noyes, Bureau of Engineering; treasurer, E. L. Bennett, Bureau of Ordnance. Representatives: Above-named officers and the following: Lewis W. Dorset, hydrographic office; T. B. Smeddy, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts; C. A. Ketcham, Marine Corps; C. M. Baruch, Secretary's office, and G. H. Draper, Naval Observatory. The elections committee, headed by Thomas W. Wagner, Bureau of Engineering, reported the election. Officers were installed by Henry G. Nolda, secretary-treasurer, Local No. 2.

Mr. McNemar praised the work done by W. H. Harrison, outgoing president, John D. Cloud, national organizer, and Mr. Nolda complimented the branch and officers, and urged continuance of helpful cooperation. They urged greater activity in organization, entertainment and cooperation in educational and research work. Work of the local and branch in organizing, hospital guilds for lower medical costs, purchasing plan for lower cost of goods, and Navy Department Credit Union to provide savings and provident loans were explained.

THE TURN IN THE ROAD.
By Floy Boyer.

Along the road of life,
We journey day by day;
A part is smoothly paved,
But part is miry clay.

At times we speed along
With cloudless, azure sky,
The spacious world attune—
No hint of trouble nigh.

But soon or late there comes
A sharp and sudden turn,
And here we, aged or young,
New lessons have to learn.

Through loss, the road seems clay
Though we may look afar.
No sun appears by day,
Nor yet by night a star.

Here human wrecks who failed
Appear before our view.
They lacked the strength and faith
To build their lives anew.

Give us the grace to bear
Beyond the turn our load,
That others may be cheered
Along our common road.

To face the test alone,
With light and speed denied;
Perchance with less of faith,
And mettle yet untried!

IMPORTANT improvement in construction technique was revealed yesterday at the Army Industrial College. Axel H. Oxholm, director of the national committee on wood utilization, Department of Commerce, demonstrated application of a new system, involving use of modern connectors for timber construction, strengthening the customary wood joints, used heretofore, from four to eight times.

According to Lieut. Col. William A. McCain, Q. M. C., director of the college, improved methods of construction have been given close attention by various Army branches, and undoubtedly this new connector system will speed construction and at the same time secure maximum efficiency of the building materials used.

The Army is the first organization in this country to consider practical application of the connectors, Oxholm pointed out. This, he said, is the typical attitude of the War Department toward improvements and inventions in wood-using practices. In emergency, Army requirements amount to approximately 2,000,000,000 feet, chiefly for construction, or 20 per cent of the annual lumber production.

WE'VE recently read G. P. O.'s revised style book. For your information, a style book is a guide to correct spelling, punctuation, arrangement of type matter and other typographical details compiled by the best minds from years of experimentation and practice.

When we called to see George H. Carter, Public Printer, recently, he was at work on the finishing touches of the new edition.

G. P. O.'s type and printing practices are the guide to many private printing enterprises over the country. When there is difference of opinion on the best procedure, editors and mechanical department men usually consider what the G. P. O. does in the particular case.

The statement that the Government Printing Office follows certain practices is to say "the supreme court of the printing world" is a very good authority to follow.

SECURITIES BILL HIT BEFORE TWO GROUPS

(Associated Press.)

Arthur H. Dean, of New York, who said he represented a "number of investors," assailed the administration's securities bill before the Senate Banking Committee yesterday as "a hopeless confusion of ill-assorted provisions lifted bodily out of the English marketing act and certain blue sky laws."

Dean said he was in sympathy with President Roosevelt's message on securities regulation, but that the bill would not afford adequate protection to investors.

At about the same time the bill was attacked before the House Commerce Committee by William C. Breed, of New York, as "not representing" the proposal of President Roosevelt for publicity on all issues.

Breed said he represented the American Investment Bankers Association, and the investment bankers of New Jersey and New York.

He said the American Investment Bankers Association was "in accord" with President Roosevelt's recommendation for a securities regulatory bill, but the pending measure did not comply with President Roosevelt's request.

Breed recommended four major changes in the bill as now written. They were:

That the measure should require only securities issued after the bill becomes effective to come within the law requiring registration of issues with the Federal Trade Commission and detailed information regarding them.

That the revocation of registration provisions be eliminated.

That directors' liability be broadened to follow the English act and the United States common law.

That corporations be permitted to enter into preliminary negotiations with investment bankers, underwriters, bankers and others before registering securities.

French Oil Monopoly Plan Worries U. S. Men

Paris, April 4 (A.P.).—American oil producers are disturbed over a bill proposing a government oil monopoly which would eliminate foreign firms.

The United States Embassy has informally asked the foreign office for "the exact import and interpretation" of the chamber measure. The British commercial attache took similar action. Six American companies would be affected.

Threat of $25,000 Is Laid to Seaman

Sykes, While Waiting Jail Van, Calls Andrews Again, Is Report.

Gaining access to a telephone while he was in the prisoners' dock at Police Court yesterday awaiting the prison van which was to take him back to the District Jail, Luther C. Sykes, 24-year-old seaman, who is accused of blackmailing Representative Walter G. Andrews, of Buffalo, N. Y., allegedly phoned the member of Congress threatening suit for $25,000 unless he was released from prison.

Mr. Andrews, it was understood, called Leo A. Rover, United States Attorney, and notified him of the conversation. A deputy United States marshal was quickly dispatched to take Sykes back to jail.

Trial of Sykes is set for today in the District Supreme Court, but it is not likely that it will go on because Sykes has not yet selected an attorney.

Ball Player Kills Self Accidentally

Funeral Rites Tomorrow for Julian Peters, of Glen, Md.

Funeral services for Julian B. Peters, of Glen, Md., Rockville ball player who accidentally shot himself yesterday while attempting to shoot a hawk, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Methodist Episcopal Church, Potomac, Md. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Peters, who was 23 years old, had picked up his shotgun and gone into the yard, telling a younger brother he was going to shoot a hawk flying overhead. A few minutes later the report of the gun was heard and a brother found him on the ground in back of the house, shot through the heart. A certificate of accidental death was issued by Dr. George E. Lewis, of Rockville, following an investigation by Corpl. Harry Merson, of Montgomery County police headquarters at Rockville.

Young Peters lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Peters, at Glen, about 5 miles from Rockville. He is survived by his parents, three sisters and three brothers.

Fairfax Citizens Study Cost Today

Supervisors Board and Tax Groups to Confer on Reductions.

The annual public hearing on the tentative Fairfax County budget will be held this morning by the board of supervisors at the Fairfax Courthouse. Citizens from all sections of the county are expected to attend to present their views.

Many citizens are urging drastic tax cuts in addition to those already made by the board. Some favor abolition of the county police force, county health unit, county purchasing agent and reducing salaries of school teachers and officials. Chamber of Commerce and Taxpayers' League committees will present results of their surveys.

Sheriff E. P. Kirby has pointed out if the county police force were eliminated it would be almost impossible for his office, with two deputies, to provide citizens the protection they demand.

AUSTIN NOMINATED AS HEAD OF CENSUS

Mississippian Is Veteran in Statistical Work in Farm Surveys.

William L. Austin, who has been connected with the bureau in various official capacities since 1900, was nominated by President Roosevelt yesterday to be director of the Bureau of the Census, succeeding William M. Steuart, who retired last Saturday after 40 years' service in the bureau.

A native of Mississippi, Mr. Austin was educated at the University of Mississippi, receiving his LL. B. degree in 1898. He was chief clerk of the Census Bureau from 1913 to 1917, when he was appointed chief statistician of the division of agriculture. He handled the census of agriculture work in both the fourteenth decennial census in 1920 and the fifteenth decennial census in 1930.

In the meantime, he also served in a supervisory capacity in connection with several statistical activities of the bureau, such as the cotton and tobacco statistics, monthly statistics on hides, skins and leather, boots and shoes, active and idle machinery, wool consumption and wheat ground and wheat-milling products, and the quarterly census of wheat and wheat-flour stocks.

He was appointed Assistant Director of the Census last November, a position held by Dr. Joseph A. Hill during the major part of the fifteenth decennial census.

Appointments Discussed By Roosevelt and Farley

(Associated Press.)

While the great bulk of Democratic appointments will await the conclusion of the emergency congressional session, President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley gave some attention yesterday to new appointments.

Several selections for the "little cabinet" are in prospect, including probably Robert M. Field, of Texas and New York, to be one of the assistants to the Attorney General.

Col. Arthur O'Brien, of Washington, also regarded as a prospective choice as one of the Assistant Secretaries in the Government.

Teacher Eats 2 Dozen Raw Eggs at Class

Flora, Oreg., April 4 (A.P.).—To back up his assertion that members of his health class should eat more eggs, T. S. Easton, high school principal, today ate two dozen raw ones in the presence of 20 students. He advised the students, however, never to eat more than six at one meal.

CAPITAL SHOCKED BY AIR DISASTERS

committee of five to investigate the causes of the Akron disaster.

In addition to looking for possible sabotage as an underlying cause of the crash, the committee would determine the advisability of continuing the policy of lighter-than-air construction.

But while the Capital still was busy scanning lists of the Akron's missing, hoping against hope that more than the three saved by the Phoebus would be found alive, Secretary Swanson said.

"It is still too early to venture to outline the department's future policy in reference to air ships."

At the White House, President Roosevelt kept in close contact with details of the Akron's fate from the first moment he received the news.

"I grieve with the Nation and especially with the wives and families of the men who were lost," Mr. Roosevelt said.

"Ships can be replaced, but the Nation can ill afford to lose such men as Rear Admiral William A. Moffett and his shipmates who died with him upholding to the end the finest traditions of the United States Navy."

Mrs. Moffett Hopeful.

Mrs. Roosevelt called to console Mrs. Moffett. The admiral's wife steadfastly refused to surrender hope, only repeating that she had received "no final word."

But the most authentic report to reach the Capital, written by Lieut. Comdr. Herbert V. Wiley, one of the three survivors, held little hope for the 73 lost men.

"In lightning flash saw many men swimming," was the Wiley report conveyed to the White House. And shortly afterward came news that the body of Lieut. Comdr. Harold E. MacLellan had been swept more than 20 miles from the crash.

As the first shock from the disaster became tempered somewhat, complaints were heard in Congress at the huge costs of airships.

Called Awful Waste.

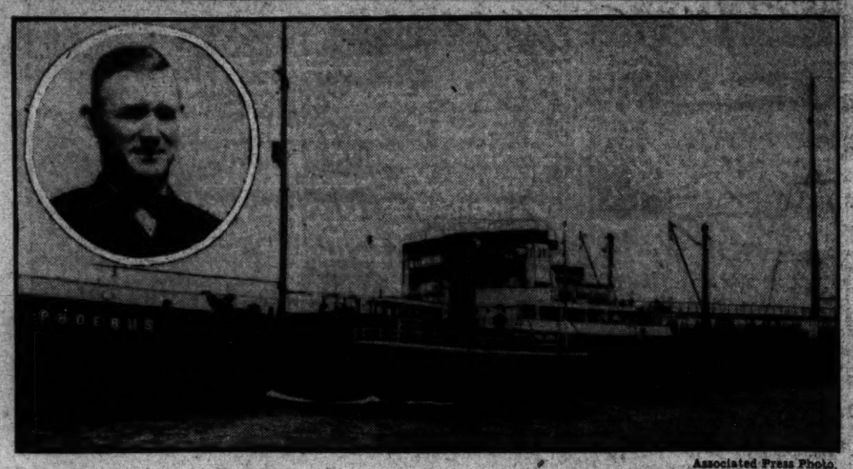

"It is another illustration of the awful waste of money of building great gas bags that serve only as sky shows in peace time and are worthless in war," said Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington. "We have wasted more money on them than anything we have done in the Navy."

Vinson, of the House Naval Committee, flatly stated:

"There won't be any more big airships built. We have built three and lost two."

Vinson said the ill-fated Shenandoah cost around $4,000,000. The Akron and Macon, sister ships, cost $8,000,000. Now the Macon only remains, soon to begin its test flights.

Congressional Democrats Impatient on Patronage

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic congressional campaign committee has named a subcommittee to confer with Postmaster General Farley to discuss patronage and ascertain the administration's plans as to the distribution of jobs.

The decision was reached, members of the full committee told newspapermen, because the new administration had not filled the hundreds of patronage jobs as rapidly as they thought they should be.

"We made campaign promises to some of our constituents and supporters," one House member said. "We have reached the point now where unless the administration begins filling the jobs soon, we will be put on the spot. People who worked for us in the election are saying 'either come across with those jobs or else—' "

The subcommittee also will present a plan of its own for filling the political positions. This would call for a distribution of jobs on a Nation-wide basis, in proportion to the number of Democratic members of Congress from each State.

The subcommittee was named Monday. So far, the five members have not yet agreed when they will see Farley, who is the Democratic patronage dispenser.

U. S. DENIES OFFER TO CUT BRITISH DEBT

London Report Davis Made Overtures Declared Without Foundation.

(Associated Press.)

Responsible officials of the State Department asserted last night that Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at large in Europe, had made no overtures to Great Britain on the war debt question, and declared without foundation reports from London that he had presented an offer to scale down Britain's debt to the United States by $692,000,000.

London, April 4 (A.P.).—The London Mail said tonight that Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large, had presented to the British government an offer to scale down the British war debt to the United States by more than £200,000,000 (currently about $692,000,000).

Other concessions, also on President Roosevelt's authority, were offered, the Mail reported, "although little headway has been made."

The newspaper added that steps were being taken to send a mission of experts to Washington at an early date and that it is likely Prime Minister MacDonald will visit President Roosevelt.

Man, in Murder of Six In Seattle, Is on Trial

Seattle, April 4 (A.P.).—Marcelino Julian, 28, a Filipino, charged with murdering six persons with a knife and injuring thirteen others, today went on trial for his life.

After the selection of a jury of eleven men and two women Cripulo Bayaoa gave a dramatic recital of how the accused stabbed Tito Gualo, 55, his roommate, then rushed with wildly swinging knife into the street. The defense is asking that the little Filipino be sent to a State insane asylum.

L. & N. Will Appeal Beer-Shipper Test

Road Seeks Opinion From Appeals Court Before Friday Deadline.

Louisville, Ky., April 4 (A.P.).—A temporary injunction, requiring the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to furnish a freight car for an interstate shipment of 3.2 per cent beer, was granted today in Jefferson Circuit Court here. Counsel for the railroad said they would appeal the case at once with the view of obtaining an opinion from the Court of Appeals by Friday, the day the recently legalized beer is to go on sale.

The petition, seeking the injunction, designed to test the legality of the new brew, was believed to be the first action of its kind in the country.

It claimed the railroad refused to furnish transportation "on the alleged ground that it is uncertain and not sufficiently advised as to the application of the prohibition laws of the State of Kentucky and the United States" to transportation of 3.2 per cent beer.

35 Cases of Jig-Saw Puzzles Stolen in West

'SELF-HELP' TRACTS TO BE ASKED IN BILL

Hundreds of Louisiana Idle Have Thrived for Years, Meeting Is Told.

For more than 18 years several hundred unemployed persons have sustained themselves by producing the necessities of life on a tract of ground provided by the Llano Cooperative Colony of Louisiana, according to a report given before a meeting of colony sponsors last night by George T. Pickett, general manager.

At the meeting, held in Pierce Hall, All Souls' Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest, Mr. Pickett announced a bill, sponsored by Senator Sheppard, of Texas, has been introduced in the Senate to organize a chain of similar "self-help" groups throughout the country.

These groups, Mr. Pickett explained, would operate under Federal authority and link together a unified plan of exchanging commodities by the different groups. At the present cooperative tract, he said, the unemployed have taken care of themselves without depending on charity.

Under the Senate bill, Mr. Pickett declared, a board of directors would be selected by the President to launch the project of creating additional groups. Suitable tracts of land would be obtained with funds raised by issuance of self-liquidating bonds to be deposited with the Secretary of the Treasury.

Theaters in Cleveland To Reopen; Wages Cut

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Cleveland motion picture theaters will reopen Friday, with stage hands and motion picture operators accepting a 25 per cent reduction in wages until August 1.

CHANGE IN 30-HOUR WEEK BILL AGREED

Handling of Perishables to Be Exempted From Its Provisions.

(Associated Press.)

Modification of the 30-hour week bill to exclude certain perishable products was agreed to by sponsors of the legislation yesterday as the Senate resumed debate of the measure.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, author of the bill, said he hoped to obtain a vote yesterday, but Senate leaders were not confident the decision could be reached so soon.

At the outset of the debate, Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, announced he would move to strike out the two-year limitation in the bill.

Modification of the bill to exclude canneries was asked by Senator Goldsborough (Republican), Maryland, who told the Senate application of the 30-hour week to canneries would "be almost a death blow to one of the biggest industries in Maryland."

Perishable products must be used at once, Goldsborough pointed out, or there is a tremendous loss. He contended with canneries running three or four months a year at the most, there was not sufficient labor available to operate on short shifts.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, who proposed a similar change Monday, replied that he and Black and Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, had agreed on a modification to exclude producers of seafood products and fruits and vegetables of a perishable nature.

Reprisal Hazard Stops Paris Fruit Duty Raise

Paris, April 4 (A.P.).—French wine producers, who feared reprisals in the event of the repeal of prohibition in the United States, were credited by the American Chamber of Commerce today with blocking an effort to increase the duty on American apples and pears.

The chamber of deputies dropped a proposed tenfold increase in tariffs after Count Bertrand de Mum, champagne producer, declared California representatives, exports from whose State would be hit, might seek reprisals against French wine.

46 POLICE APPEAR FOR PHYSICAL TEST

Maj. Brown to Retire Hale Men Only if Forced to Do So by Budget Cut.

Forty-six members of the Police Department, all above the age of 55, appeared before the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons for a physical test yesterday to determine their fitness for duty. An additional group of 50 will undergo examination next Tuesday.

Retirement, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, stated, will be resorted to only in case of emergencies created by the cut in appropriations for police work. If a large number, "50 or more" men, are retired, he stated, the effectiveness of the department would be seriously impaired.

Other economies are being considered, so that a large number of retirements will not be necessary, Maj. Brown asserted. Among these, he mentioned the elimination of the $5 additional pay allowance to policemen for meritorius service, which annually totals $7,000 and allowance for use of private cars to three inspectors on the force. This he said totals about $1,000 annually.

Attempt at Extortion From Prison Admitted

Kansas City, April 4 (A.P.).—Solution of an unsuccessful extortion attempt engineered from behind the walls of the Missouri State Prison at Jefferson City was announced here today by C. M. Zimmerman, chief postal inspector.

Zimmerman said George W. Miller, 33, serving a five-year sentence for forgery, had confessed sending threatening letters to Ralph Tuttle, Miami, Okla., and Frank Brewster, of Baxter Springs, Kans.

Just two words...

Yes, I have heard about two words; and now and then three words—but "They Satisfy" means "To gratify fully."

Why do these two words "they satisfy" fit Chesterfields? Because Chesterfield Cigarettes are milder. Because Chesterfield Cigarettes taste better.

Chesterfield's way of blending and cross-blending fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos brings out better flavor and aroma.

THE AKRON.

After having proved her sturdiness in many a storm, the airship Akron was suddenly grasped by a furious April thunderstorm at midnight on Monday off the New Jersey coast, and borne down to destruction. Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and 72 officers and men were lost. Only four men were rescued, three of whom survived. One of these survivors, Lieut. Comdr. H. V. Wiley, second in command of the Akron, sent a report from the rescue ship giving a vivid account of the fatal encounter with the storm. His dispatch is a masterpiece of brevity and clearness, prepared under what must have been agonizing conditions. It breathes the soul of the United States Navy—discipline and devotion to duty in the face of death.

From Admiral Moffett, the gallant seaman who so long guided the fortunes of aviation in the Navy, and from his associates and the crew of the Akron, comes no word. They have vanished. Silence, save for the wash of illimitable seas; mystery, the mystery of the unknown world under the seas—such is their portion. But even as they were hurled to oblivion they stood true to duty.

The President of the United States, speaking for the Nation, extends sympathy to the families of the lost, and adds this inspiring epitaph:

> Ships can be replaced, but the Nation can ill afford to lose such men as Rear Admiral Moffett and his shipmates, who died with him upholding to the end the finest traditions of the United States Navy.

There is vain talk of surrendering to the powers of the air and sea by quitting the building of airships. There is babble of economy, and of the dangers that attend the operation of airships. This is not the spirit of America, the America of Lindbergh and Byrd. It is not the spirit of Moffett, who now, from his watery grave, would protest against surrender. His was a hero's soul and an eagle's undaunted flight.

From every reverse by the sky or sea emerges the indomitable spirit of man, moving to conquests over both. The elements are strong, but man is mastering them. The Akron's stately flight to Panama, the power to take in a whole coastline at a glance, the ability to stay aloft and sweep across continents—these are conquests which man will not forgo. Upon them he will build further achievements, until the United States Navy of the air will command the skies and protect American lands and seas.

The Nation mourns, but proudly mourns, the men who sank beneath the wave. It mourns those who gave their lives in the search for the Akron's lost ones. It will not mourn in the spirit of despair, but will defiantly inscribe their names in the honor roll of Americans who dared for their country's sake—the honor roll that grows longer every year, imperishable in memory and glorious in prophecy of heroic achievements yet to come.

51,000 MURDERS.

"Human life was never as cheap and insecure in the United States as it is at the present time, and murder is decidedly more common in this country than in any other country which makes a claim of being civilized." In these words Dr. Frederick B. Hoffman, statistician, sums up his comment on the homicide record of this country for 1932. The United States did not improve its record last year. A homicide rate of 10.8 persons for every 100,000 population reveals once more a deplorable deficiency in civic training and law enforcement.

Most of the larger cities improved their records somewhat. Chicago had 37 fewer killings and its rate is only a little above the average. New York shows a slight decrease, and is well below the average of 180 cities. Boston made a remarkable record. The New England metropolis, with a population of 800,000, reduced its homicide rate from 3.6 per 100,000 population in 1931 to 2.5 in 1932. Even Boston still has considerable improvement to make, however, before it can equal the record of England and Wales, which is 0.5.

Murder stalks most prominently through the cities of medium size in the South. Eight southern cities have a record of more than 40 homicides for every 100,000 people. Memphis, Tenn., leads the list, as usual, with a record of 54.2, which is more than five times the average rate and more than 21 times Boston's rate. Lexington, Ky., is second on the black list of murders, with a rate of 53.6; Jacksonville, Fla., is third, with a rate of 52.2. Little Rock, Montgomery, Charleston, S. C.; Savannah and Birmingham are not far behind.

This situation remains a permanent challenge to the American people. Such cities as Boston, Milwaukee, Syracuse, Cedar Rapids, Duluth, Jersey City and several cities of medium size in Pennsylvania have proved that human life can be protected. An awakening of citizens to the horrors of 51,000 murders in five years would doubtless bring about an immediate improvement. But the public seems apathetic even in communities where one individual out of every 2,000 may expect to be murdered this year.

Few cities need an awakening to this problem more than does Washington. Homicides here increased from 77 in 1931 to 110 last year, bringing the rate for the District to more than twice the national average.

ISOLATING THE SOVIET.

The British government's move to obtain complete authority to embargo exports from Soviet Russia puts the Moscow regime in a serious predicament. Great Britain is apparently determined to cut off trade relations with the Soviet unless the trial of several British engineers in Moscow is either dropped or settled satisfactorily to the London government. Negotiations looking to a new commercial treaty between Britain and the U. S. S. R. were halted some time ago. Loss of the British market would be a severe blow to the Soviet, because the British have purchased far more from Russia than they have sold to that country. Without this trade the Soviet would have an extremely difficult problem to balance its imports by exports.

Strained relations between the Soviet and both of its principal customers have developed in recent weeks. The advent of the Hitler dictatorship in Germany put trade with the Soviet in a precarious condition. Nazi officials recently raided the Soviet trading office in Hamburg. Moscow is aroused by the anti-communist activities of the Hitler regime, and it is improbable that existing trade relations between the two countries can be maintained. One of Moscow's economic organs hints that the Soviet is seeking to establish commercial relations elsewhere. Soviet purchases would probably be transferred to the United States if credit could be obtained on favorable terms here.

Germany's experience proves, however, that trade with the Soviet is not worth cultivating. Soviet spokesmen say that the anti-communist activities in the Reich provide "sufficient ground for a change in our economic relations with Germany, no matter how valuable those relations have been to both countries." Soviet trade is based on political considerations. There is no possibility of developing permanent trade relations with the communist regime. All trade in Russia is carried on by the government monopoly. On a moment's warning for political reasons that commercial dictatorship may transfer its purchases from one country to another, thus crucifying the traders of other countries.

So long as trade may be suddenly shut off by the caprice of a dictator it is a liability, because it induces traders with the Soviet to enter into costly enterprises on a false foundation. American business especially should be chary in this respect, because trade between the United States and the Soviet flows mostly one way. Russia exports almost nothing that this country needs, and if she did it would probably be excluded from American ports under the anti-dumping or the forced labor clauses of the tariff act. Because of these restrictions and the lack of American credit the Moscow monopoly will make purchases here only to secure recognition or because no other country can supply her needs.

The turn of events in Europe will make the Soviet doubly anxious to secure recognition from the United States, but it also gives the American people a keener realization of the dangers such a course would involve. There is no profit in dealing with a murder machine. Americans in Russia are likely to be imprisoned and executed, like other foreigners, whenever the dictators deem it wise to turn the fury of the ignorant people against alleged "foreign plots." The overtures of the Soviet are not friendly. They are the treacherous advances of the assassin bent upon deceiving his victim.

CONQUEST OF EVEREST.

Man has looked down upon the highest peak of the world. For the first time the crest of Mount Everest has been surmounted. The icy sides of the king of the Himalayas, which have turned back or taken deadly toll of all who essayed to master the unconquered peak, were no bar to Britain's birdmen. The expedition, led by the Marquis of Clydesdale and Lieut. Col. L. V. Stewart Blacker, flew two planes to an altitude of 35,000 feet to pass over Everest safely in the treacherous currents that storm about its head at an altitude of nearly six miles.

The toiling ascent by foot, which consumed weeks of vain effort, was amazingly outdistanced by the use of man's latest and swiftest means of travel. Starting from a base 160 miles away, the two planes carrying observers and photographers circled the crowning heights of India's highest mountain and returned safely in three hours. It was preeminently a sporting feat and undertaken in that spirit. Observations were taken, and a picture record of the trip constitutes a chart of hitherto unknown areas. Science may glean some useful items from this expedition, but the enterprise was conceived primarily as one of physical achievement rather than one to gain invaluable knowledge.

Lord Clydesdale was frank to admit that his first object was to promote British prestige in the world and particularly in India. Americans had flown over both poles and both great oceans; Mount Everest remained as the one significant part of the world that had not been conquered by plane. The marquis feels that the accomplishment of their project will help to overcome a feeling that England is undergoing a phase of degeneration and will show India that the British "are still a virile and active race and can overcome difficulties with energy and vigor, both for ourselves and India."

Credit, too, must be given to England's "Lady Bountiful", Lady Houston, who furnished the funds for the expedition and who offered her assistance to show the world what Britons can do. It is a splendid achievement.

MICHIGAN FOR REPEAL.

After the decisive vote in Michigan last November favoring repeal of the State's bone dry law it was no surprise to see an even greater proportion of Monday's ballots recorded in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Even the wets, however, are surprised at the extent of their victory. Preliminary indications are that in the constitutional convention the repealists will outnumber the drys ten to one.

It was natural that a State which was wet before the fall election should show an increased sentiment in that direction because of the various manifestations against prohibition in recent months. In Detroit, as was expected, a solid delegation for repeal was elected.

Michigan is the first State to elect delegates to a convention to vote on repeal and there will be no loss of time in the recording of their formal vote as the convention is set for next Monday. The overwhelming vote in favor of doing away with constitutional prohibition will form a part of the cumulative wet wave that has gained such remarkable headway during the last year. There remains, however, great uncertainty as to whether thirteen States can be held by the drys to block repeal.

Every expression of popular opinion as decisive as that recorded by Michigan has a tendency to influence the voting where opinion is not sharply divided or decision hangs in the balance. But the legislation of beer introduces a new element that may have a profound effect upon the outcome. If the union between beer and politics is revived the pendulum of public opinion may swing in the opposite direction.

The spirit that overleaps Mount Everest and maintains discipline in an airship plunging to death can not be daunted by the terrors of the sky.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

While many States all over the country are weighing the possibilities of combining some of their multiplicity of counties so as to form fewer governmental units, a block of 58 counties in Texas are moving in the other direction. The people of these counties in the northwestern portion of the vast State have placed a bill before the Legislature asking permission to withdraw from the State of Texas and form a new commonwealth, for which no name has yet been proposed. As an argument in favor of the secession the citizens of this district, known as the Texas Panhandle, cite the fact that in their remote situation they are many hundreds of miles away from Austin, the State capital, and they would prefer to run their government from Amarillo, which is in the very center of the Panhandle country.

If the movement succeeds in the Texas Legislature three counties in Oklahoma may throw in their lot with the new State. These counties are separated from the rest of Oklahoma, running in a long, thin line between the Texas and Kansas borders. Their history is colorful, for they once constituted a No Man's Land in the days when Indian Territory appeared on the map in the place now largely occupied by Oklahoma. Under the control of no State government, the remote district became the hide-out for the hordes of bandits that were being swept out of the rapidly developing Southwest. Here were played in actual life many of the scenes since relegated to the dime novel and the movie thriller.

If a forty-ninth State is formed around Amarillo it will have no lack of natural resources. Here is a country that produces vast quantities of wheat, as well as the finest cattle. The new State would include the greatest natural gas reservoir in the world. It would have a relatively small population, for the country out that way is still sparsely settled, but the opportunities for development are almost unlimited. If the Texas Legislature should see reason for breaking up the largest State in the Union into two more compact parts, it may soon be necessary, with the consent of Congress, to add a forty-ninth star to the flag.

JUST FOLKS

COLD INDIFFERENCE.

He was poor and thin and cold
And he shivered in the storm,
But my coat was thick and warm.
Not a pencil had he sold,
Was the hopeless tale he told.
Countless men had passed him by,
Saying "no" with downcast eye.
"No" was on my lips to say
As I turned to move away.

Something strange occurred to me
As the cruel March wind blew.
In his place a friend I knew,
Cold and thin, I seemed to see,
And I thought: If that should be
How much crueler were I
Than the cold winds rushing by
And the bitter sleet and snow
To his plea to answer: "No!"

Wind and storm in time will end,
But the coldness of a man
Never ends and never can.
Here is one who needs a friend
And the comfort he can lend.
Not by me shall he be told
That the stranger's heart is cold.
I will not be one to say,
Man outchills a winter day.

The Little Worker Should Give Up the Hoe When Dad Needs It to Dig Bait

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YEARS ago, when machinery was rare and crude, the utmost endeavors of young and old were not enough to provide abundance for everybody.

Children worked because their help was needed.

When machines were invented and production increased, the conscience of the world, long reconciled to hard necessity, saw no evil in the enslavement of children.

In England, where fortunes were built by the textile industry, children of five worked in the mills. They were the children of desperate poverty. Most of them lived in filthy and sunless warrens and slept on the floor. They were awakened before dawn, given a crust of bread and herded through the darkness to begin their labors at daylight. Hollow-eyed, tubercular, acrawl with vermin and weak with hunger, they often fell asleep at their work. And then a foreman with a whip came behind them and they awoke with a scream.

By working thus from dark to dark, the children earned a few pennies and created wealth for the upper classes.

The evil chapter in the story of industry is forgotten history, but children still labor to support their parents. It is a custom unusual in nature, and this generation's opinion of it is well expressed in Charlotte Gilman's lines:

No chicken feeds the hen,
No kitten mouses for the cat—
This glory is for men.
We are the wisest, strongest race:
Long may our praise be sung—
The only animal alive
That lives upon its young!

Some years ago the States were given opportunity to prevent child labor by constitutional amendment. They failed to do it and the matter was generally forgotten.

But Congress set no time limit for ratification, and the courts now hold that the amendment will become effective whenever a sufficient number of States take action—or reverse the action already taken.

There isn't much opposition now. Child labor doesn't seem such an inalienable right when men are jobless.

If you feel any interest in the matter, you may enjoy another little poem by Sarah Cleghorn:

The golf links lie so near the mill
That almost every day
The laboring children can look out

POLITICAL COMMENT

States Must Control Liquor.

Kansas City Times.

There are interesting possibilities in the announced study of liquor control systems of various countries with a view to working out a satisfactory plan for the United States in the event of repeal. The proposed study, financed by John D. Rockefeller, jr., is to be directed by Albert L. Scott, industrial engineer and church leader, who headed the layman's commission recently reporting on the status of foreign missions. It might readily be assumed that any plan worked out under such auspices would take fully into account all the factors bearing upon the public welfare with a possible return of legalized liquor.

The formulation of a workable plan and the chances of its adoption, however, are two distinct things. The immediate obstacle to anything like wide use of a carefully devised control system would lie in the fact that action would be left wholly to the several States electing to legalize sales.

Protecting Investors.

Topeka Capital.

President Roosevelt's appeal to Congress for regulation of corporation finance is more than a Federal blue sky law, as these laws are commonly understood, though this term has been applied to the reforms the administration asks of Congress.

Some of the primary needs of reform were clarified by such colossal failures in the last year and more as the Kreuger, Insull, National City Bank and other scandals. It is not only that public protection is called for against the peddling of conventional "blue sky" stocks, but the New York Stock Exchange has come to a realization that listed securities must be more adequately regulated. Both the New York and the Chicago exchanges have announced more conservative policies in permitting securities to be listed.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Ordinarily members of the President's Cabinet are excellent raw material for news photographers and correspondents seeking interviews. But after weeks of a new Cabinet we find little regarding them in the news. Because of the spectacular nature of his duties Secretary William Woodin was in the spotlight for a time. A number of news stories have come from Secretary Cordell Hull. Miss Frances Perkins also has gained some attention, partly by reason of being the first woman to hold a Cabinet post. But for the most part the Cabinet has been in the background.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Business Man's Views on the Farm Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Business men are gradually realizing the sweeping character of the farm relief bill, now being considered by the Senate. The provisions of this bill stagger the imagination. The prospect of its enactment has halted the recovery of other far-reaching measures President Roosevelt has initiated. Economies in the Government and constructive action with reference to the banks started an upward movement and feeling of optimism which promised complete restoration of public confidence. Now that the provisions of the farm bill are being more clearly understood, a recession has again set it. This is induced by a fear of instability of markets and by the depressing effects of the new taxes proposed.

The measure as it is now constituted would set up an economic dictatorship in this country that would affect almost every line of business. The Secretary of Agriculture is to be the dictator. He must, of necessity, because of the magnitude of his problem of supervision, delegate his powers to subordinates. There will be let loose upon the country a horde of bureaucrats unparalleled in our history. The authority to levy a compensating tax on competing agricultural products will bring about disputes and buck-passing.

Think of it! Only a short time ago when it was proposed that a general manufacturers' tax of only 2 per cent be imposed—not to include food and clothing—a great hue and cry went up, and even the then Gov. Roosevelt viewed the tax with horror. Now the farm relief bill proposes to levy a tax of 50 per cent, particularly on foods and wearing apparel, and Mr. Roosevelt is reconciled to try it out as being a way over "untrodden paths." Under this tax the national costs of living will certaintly be raised at least $800,000,000.

The administrative features of the bill are amazing. To guard against fraud, a huge tax-collecting and spying force must be organized. The bill permits the Secretary of Agriculture—meaning, of course, his gigantic army of subordinates—to change tax rates and to rebate taxes and to exercise individual discretion in making important decisions. The result would be to promote uncertainties, restrict purchases and demoralize industrial activity. The whole theory, and the application of the scheme to tax stocks and processors, is vicious and indefensible.

The purchasing power of the agricultural class must obviously be raised, but equally obviously this can not be accomplished at the expense of the customers of the farmer. We are not ready for the nationalization of agriculture and industry or a Soviet form of government, irrespective of the emergency confronting us today. HERMAN BLUM.

Danger of Motor Death by Slipping on Streets—Fruit Skins Should Be Banned.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in the paper of a man who, while crossing the street, slipped on a banana peel and was run over and killed. No doubt many are killed in this way.

Every city and town in the country should have strict ordinances against throwing banana peels, fruit skins and cores on the streets. Policemen should arrest on sight persons they see throwing such things on the streets. Pedestrians should warn such persons and should also kick into the gutters banana peels, orange skins and apple cores that they see lying on streets and highways. Proper receptacles should be placed on street corners for such refuse, and teachers should instruct their pupils not to throw such things on the streets. CHARLES HOOPER.

Dumping of Cheap Foreign Goods Should Be Stopped—Warns Against Soviet Recognition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many thanks for your common-sense editorial, "Credit and Law." It is the best article that it has been my pleasure to read on the subject of what is needed to restore business confidence. May I suggest that The Washington Post take the lead in a movement to have the President and Congress do something to stop Europe from dumping her cheap products, made by pauper labor, on our shores. Should that be done, it would result in American factories, now closed, being able to reopen, employing thousands of men, which would do more good toward solving our unemployment problem than all relief plans combined.

Your editorial, "Soviet Recognition," is timely, and I hope that the statesmen will heed the sensible advice it contains. L. E. D.

Doesn't Want to Have Taxpayers Saddled With Cost of Paying Off Mortgages Held by New York Banks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The great banks in New York that have the nation's money locked up in their vaults will not consider any loans except loans to the Federal Government. They insist on the whole United States as security. They have eight billion dollars of farm mortgages, that are causing them much concern. Most of this land will not sell for twenty-five per cent of the mortgage. They would like the government to take these mortgages and in return give them bonds. That would be real nice for the loan companies, but would mean more billions for the American people to pay.

ARMY TOP-HEAVY, MAJ. HAGOOD SAYS

Merger With Navy Under One Department Urged in Plea for Economy.

Kansas City, April 4 (A.P.).—Terming the United States Army "top-heavy and extravagant," Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood expressed the hope tonight that President Roosevelt would slash away the red tape and get rid of overlapping bureaus.

The commanding general of the Seventh Corps Area, with headquarters at Fort Omaha, used pungent language in calling for economy in Army affairs. He addressed a civilian gathering at the Knife and Fork Club.

"What the country doesn't need," he said, "is another big bureau in Washington—a consolidation of the Army and the Navy in one department of national defense, with separate land, sea and air forces.

"Like every other department of the Government it (the Army)) is top-heavy and extravagant. It needs close trimming to make it fit the pocketbook of the man without a job."

Rev. C. E. Buck to Speak At St. Andrew's Tonight

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

New York—In her usual breathless manner, Elsa Schiaparelli has been in New York and gone again. I managed to get only a glimpse of her, but it was enough to correct a mistake I made four years ago.

The Paris express was ready to take off from Croydon, and as I boarded the plane, the last words I heard was when a London friend called out: "Do be sure and meet Schiaparelli."

Well, Schiaparelli is a dress designer and Paris is full of them. There was so much else to do I didn't see her.

A Noted Family.

Consider her background. Her father was dean at the University of Rome; her uncle a famous astronomer, discoverer of the canals on Mars, and her cousin a noted archeologist and discoverer of the Valley of Kings, in Egypt.

As for herself: well, one is reminded of Bernard Shaw talking to the students of the University of Hongkong. He said: "If you don't begin to be a revolutionist at the age of 20 then at 50 you will be an impossible old fossil. If you are a red revolutionary at the age of 20 you have some chance of being up to date when you are 40."

Schiaparelli began her revolt at the age of 6, when she ran away from home. When 15 she wrote a poem which so outraged her father that he stowed her away in a convent. She lasted there only a couple of years. She always has hated school. Always hated restrictions.

She loves New York, although she only lived here five years. That was before she was successful. She was married here to a young man from Poland, and it was here that her daughter, Marisa, better known as Gogo, was born.

She lived in Greenwich Village, in Ninth street to be exact, and her fortunes weren't too bountiful in those days. That is why Patchen place is still her favorite spot, because in that little nook nearby Washington Square she once found a $20 bill when she was broke.

Her Styles Modern.

As for her career as a designer, she became one when she once fashioned a sweater for a friend. Her styles are known as radical, of a modern mode, but they are highly respected.

An able linquist, she speaks Italian, English, French and German. She often wears wigs which cover her lovely hair of blue black, the shade of a moonless midnight.

HAZARD HELD LIKELY IN NUMERICAL BEER

Whole Plan Suggests Counting and Bookkeeping, Says Pegler.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

To the ordinary citizen, whose acquaintance with beer has been entirely social and never scientific, some of the regulations which will govern the sale of the impending 3.2 brew are much more confusing than the beer itself is supposed to be.

Most beer drinkers are mere duffers who drink only for the fun of it and not with any idea of becoming experts or winning any championships, although, of course, there are some very good competitive beer drinkers. A few of them, strangely enough, are Americans who developed their capacity during the prohibition era. There is a bar in Paris where competitive beer-drinking is carried on under championship conditions, the standard test being a tall seidel, known as a lighthouse. The contestant is supposed to empty a lighthouse at one continuous draught and it may be regarded as a matter of national pride that not a few Americans have upheld the honor of their country by passing this test with high honors.

Experienced lighthouse beer drinkers are said to have acquired a knack of breathing through their ears in the process, it being forbidden, under the rules, to take a breath between the tilting of the lighthouse to the lips and the inhalation of the last drop. This would be a violation of the spirit of the rules and a blot on the escutcheon of the sport of beer drinking, but fortunately there has been only one case of ear breathing which was deemed to have been proved. In that case, the contestant, an American Olympic athlete, was draining his lighthouse at a rate that might have established a new world record when one of the judges lit a match and held it to his ear. The match immediately went out and he was found guilty of blowing it out, although it was a French match and might have gone out itself.

It's a Grim Business.

The institution of mathematical beer seems likely to convert a casual indoor and outdoor sport into a very grim business. It was different with alphabetical soup. The subject might spell out a few words of some fine old motto while waiting for the soup to cool, but there was never any temptation to write a play or novel in soup letters, and when the soup reached the desired temperature, down it went, even in the middle of a sentence. Or the waiter came and took it away. Generally the waiter took it away.

With mathematical beer, however, a mental hazard is created. This beer will be served, for example, in 6-ounce glasses and 3.2 per cent of six ounces will represent the alcoholic content. Does this mean, then, that the subject will have to figure out 3.2 per cent of 6 ounces, because that seems to call for long division and decimals, a great mental strain on persons who never were any good at arithmetic. And, if that is what it does mean, then does the alcoholic content of subsequent and ensuing beers merely add up or does it multiply?

The whole plan suggests drink counting and bookkeeping which would be repugnant to the spirit of the social beer-drinker.

Formula Is Involved.

The matters of age and vocation also seem to be involved in the formula for it is proposed that children shall not be allowed to buy this nonintoxicating beverage and firemen, soldiers and sailors in the Navy also are to be forbidden to absorb any 3.2 beer while they are on duty. There is some great mystery about this. If this beer is nonintoxicating and beer is the sort of food that it was said to be during the congressional hearings a few week ago, it would seem strange that steps have not been taken to establish bars in all the public schools, where the kiddies may take on a few beers between classes, or salute their teachers with waving seidels and something on the order of a Tyrolean yodel at the beginning of the day. The little kiddies could also thus contribute their mite to the U. S. Treasury, which might amount to something in the course of a year, and, if the drys should argue that people who drink beer wind up by cutting out paper dolls the little kiddies would have a good answer to that. They spend much of their time cutting paper dolls, anyway.

Of course, if the children should get overbeered, that would call for further legislation and Congress could establish a scale of alcoholic contents for 6-year-olds, and 8-year-olds generally similar to the scale of sizes in children's clothes. However, I am afraid that this 3.2 beer would not interest the little kiddies.

The little kiddies are not dumb and they would soon learn that it isn't any good.

Young Democrats Meet Tonight.

The annual meeting of the Young Democrats Club of Washington will be held tonight at the Carlton Hotel, instead of the headquarters of the Democratic Women's Organization, as previously announced. The change in the meeting place was necessitated by the large crowd planning to attend, it was stated.

TWO FAMILIES ARE RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Fire drove these two families from their quarters at 921 Twelfth street northwest early yesterday morning. The Payne family was carried down ladders from the third floor where they were trapped by flames. Left to right, Miss Evelyn Ann Halvin, holding the two McCauley children; Mrs. Harry Payne, holding her two children, and Mrs. Willis McCauley, holding her 2-week-old baby, which was rescued by Miss Halvin. The families are shown in the Eagles Hall, next door to their home, where they were given shelter and food.

MRS. SABIN NAMES WET COMMITTEES

1,000 Delegates Gather Here for Fourth Conference of Reform Body.

Appointment of committees to draft the policy and program of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform for its ratification campaign in the States was announced last night by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman, as 1,000 delegates gathered here from 40 States for the organization's fourth national conference since its formation in 1929.

The committee reports will be presented for delegate action at the conference session Thursday morning.

The conference formally gets under way today at 2 p. m., with addresses by Mrs. Sabin and Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler. It will be Miss Butler's first antiprohibition speech. The meeting is open to the public.

More than 1,200 women will attend the banquet tonight at 7 o'clock. Representative James W. Wadsworth, jr. (Republican), New York, and Representative John McDuffie (Democrat) of Alabama, will be the speakers. Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, New York City, will be toastmistress. The public is invited to hear the addresses at 8:30 p. m.

Montgomery Republican Women Confer Monday

The April meeting of the Montgomery County Federation of Republican Women will be held Monday at 2 p. m., according to an announcement yesterday by Mrs. C. W. Mitchell, president. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Taylor, 120 Albany avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Prof. Elmer Keyser, of George Washington University, will discuss the "Historical Background of What Is Happening in Germany." The Takoma Park Republican Women's Club, of which Mrs. Albert Lingle is president, will be hostess to the club. All Republican women of the county are invited to be present.

WISCONSIN COUNTS REPEAL LANDSLIDE

brought out a total vote of close to 1,000,000 with 99 out of the 100 delegates to that State's convention apparently named from repeal proponents. Only one dry delegate was definitely chosen, from rural Barry County.

Michigan's cities and populous centers all voted heavily for repeal with the wet vote estimated as upward of 725,000. Detroit selected 21 wet delegates by a margin of almost 10 to 1.

The sweeping Michigan victory brought predictions from one repeal leader, Mrs. Charles Sabin, head of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, that retification of the proposed repeal of the eighteenth amendment would be completed within 18 months.

Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said the Michigan vote revealed "a sentiment so overwhelming on behalf of repeal that it can not be questioned from any source."

National headquarters of the W. C. T. U. was silent on the Michigan result, but R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the Michigan Antisaloon League, declared the drys were not going to drop the fight and asserted that because Michigan "had gone for repeal doesn't mean that the rest of the country will follow."

The Michigan repeal convention to act upon the proposed twenty-first amendment to the Federal Constitution—repeal of the eighteenth amendment—will be held in Lansing, the State capital, on April 10.

Michigan's election of delegates was by legislative districts. Wisconsin selected its 15 delegates to a convention, to be held at Madison April 25, by State-wide vote from a list of 30 candidates—half wet and half dry. Their names appeared on the ballot in two groups, and a voter indicated one or the other group by making a single mark.

The next elections on the question of repeal will be held in New Jersey on May 16 and Wyoming on May 18. Both States are regarded nominally wet, and in both constitutional conventions will follow elections by about a week.

New Concrete Road Approved.

The Montgomery County commissioners yesterday voted to direct the State roads commission to construct a 16-foot concrete road from Germantown to Bentons Corner, in accordance with a survey made by County Engineer Harry B. Shaw.

POST REPORTER SEES CRASH OF BLIMP, AIDS RESCUE WORK

However, as we neared the end of our long patrol, when our eyes were so strained from looking at the water we would often look at waves and think we saw bodies, turn back only to find our mistake, we came upon the Navy nonrigid airship J-3, hopelessly fighting a 45-mile-an-hour gale while she traveled but 50 miles an hour. As Commander Stone flew past her and her crew waved from the open gondola, she seemed to be standing still. But she was headed for Barnegat reef, not far away and apparently would make it.

Here Stone uttered an awful prophecy when he said, "if her motors quit, she runs out of gas or the wind gets rougher there will be another airship down."

We flew north, combing the coast line in a last attempt to sight the Akron before we returned to Cape May for fuel, food and rest. But scarcely had we turned back than our machinist, Crump, working with binoculars, announced that the blimp was coming down.

Seeing her plight in the sea, which was running heavy off the reef by this time, Commander Stone dispatched an S O S, giving our position, and flew to her side.

We approached the wreckage, circled it twice and were about to fly away from the hopelessly broken ship over which a part of the gas bag, still partially inflated, flapped helplessly, when we saw what apparently were three men, trying futilely to swim toward shore.

Settles in Water.

Confident of his rugged airplane, Stone circled the wreck and as easily as possible set the ship down in the rough white capped water, a landing from which I honestly believed we could never rise. We all climbed on to the wings and top of the plane as she settled in the water.

After 25 minutes of struggling, while the seas often touched the wings and threatened to throw us into the water, we pulled Cummins from the ocean.

While we worked we could hear the radio inside screaming loudly, as small craft rushed to our assistance and tried to raise our calls, interpreting our S O S as a signal that we were in distress.

Crump climbed forward, opened the front hatch and we lowered Cummins in where artificial respiration was attempted. In the meantime, one Coast Guard patrol boat had arrived and pulled one of the men out of the water. The third must have sunk, or perhaps we had mistaken a piece of the broken airship for a third. Anyway, we never found it.

Believing that there was still a chance to save the man, we had identified him as Cummins by his goggle marking. Stone decided to make a take-off from the rough water so that we could fly him to a hospital.

Boats Standing By.

The boats standing by couldn't come close enough to take him on board and our taxiing speed, that is, acting as a motorboat on the water, would have been very slow. The ship is a heavy type. It had washed in a good bit of water so there wasn't much to be gained sitting out there.

Besides, if we did have an accident, some of the small craft standing by could have gotten to us before we went down.

Crump, Webber and I crowded into the rear compartment of the plane, to make its nose, which held Stone and the dead man, as light as possible. We closed the hatches tight and held on to them.

Stone opened the throttles just as a huge sea wave hit us. The plane lurched forward with a magician's hand guiding it in the troughs of the waves that came over the ship and splashed in on us.

The taxi, or the run, was long, hard and rough but with one final terrific bump, which crushed the tail wheel, although we didn't know it, the plane leaped into the air.

Could Not Be Revived.

We flew immediately to Atlantic City, where we lifted Cummins' body through the hatch and into a hundred helping hands. But the heavy seas had done their work and nothing could be done to revive him.

Cummins' quick death in the high running water with a life belt and compressed air jacket around his body is almost positive proof that no one from the Akron could have possibly survived the night when the gale was at its height.

The terrific intensity of the storm during the night that wrecked the Akron can be best described by a statement of Lieut. Luka Christopher, of the Coast Guard, who spent the night in a house on Cape May. He said: "The wind was so strong I could feel the house give, and when the lights blew out we could clearly distinguish playing cards by the bursts of lightning."

Forced to fly low by clouds and rain, Navy and Coast Guard planes centered their search 65 degrees north of Cape May, where the reports stated the Akron was down. In constant communication with the other planes, boats, and land stations, we combed and recombed this area in the vicinity of the cruiser Portland, directly off Atlantic City.

Passed Over Tanker.

Some of the Coast Guard boats that put out in the search seemed little more than powered rowboats as we roared over their bows.

At 11:17 we passed over a huge Japanese tanker of the M. B. K. Line. They didn't answer our calls. Perhaps they didn't have a radio or an English-speaking operator.

A little later when we were well out over the water a single-engined land plane appeared out of the fog circling aimlessly. Had he found anyone he would have been of no help and had he become lost in the fog or if his motor failed, he would have added to the toll.

Around 1 o'clock we passed over the Portland which was standing by a given position so that other craft could center their search from her. She was surrounded by half a dozen smaller boats coming and going, mostly to the north, while it now appears the Akron was to the south, having drifted there with the wind if she did not sink.

Started Up Again.

The work of the Sirius done as well as possible for the day and weather conditions on the water growing more unfavorable, Stone headed the big amphibian back to the Cape May Station. We circled the base and started to come down on land due to crowded conditions of the harbor, a number of naval boats having come into port. But we came down on water. Our position wasn't so good, so we started up again and this time I felt certain we were to use the field. But after looking conditions over, Stone set her down on the water, a boat rowed out to pick us up, as it was too rough to put the plane to shore. And as we floated free of the Sirius both of us for the first time saw the wrecked rear landing wheel, which might have spelt another aviation accident had he chosen to go into the field.

The worth of Coast Guard airplanes to direct a search of this type was very evident off Cape May yesterday. Besides covering 100 miles in an hour while small boats can only go 5 to 20 miles, they can fly at a good height, when ceiling permits, so that they can survey a broad expanse of waters. From this position they can direct the activities of searchers on the water by radio.

Kosher Slaughtering Prohibited.

U. S. FAIR EXHIBITS NEAR INSTALLATION

18 Branches of Government Will Be Represented at Chicago Exposition.

Exhibits representing eighteen branches of the Government are ready for installation in the Federal Building at a Century of Progress Exposition which will open in Chicago June 1.

The building and exhibits will represent a Government expenditure of approximately $1,000,000, appropriated by Congress last year. Installation of the exhibits will be under the supervision of former Postmaster General Harry S. New, United States commissioner to the exposition.

The Federal Building is described as one of the most beautiful on the 424 acres which comprise the exposition site. It is 620 feet long by 300 feet wide, with a rotunda 70 feet in diameter surmounted by a 75-foot dome, around which are grouped three fluted towers 150 feet high.

The building was designed by Edward H. Bennett, noted Chicago architect, and cost $350,000. It is at the base of a triangle, the sides of which are formed by the States Pavilion.

Among the Departments of the Government that will participate in the exposition are the Department of Agriculture, Commerce, State, Interior, Navy, Labor, Treasury, War, Justice, Postoffice, and the Smithsonian Institution, the Shipping Board and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Many documents of great historic interest are included in the State Department exhibit. An illuminated map of the world showing the location of American embassies will be contributed by the Foreign Service.

The Navy Department will display an animated model, 21 by 15 feet, depicting American sea power in relation to the Nation's internal and overseas commerce. Twelve ship models will show the effect of a century of progress in American sea power.

The War Department has arranged for an encampment of troops within the grounds. The Corps of Engineers will illustrate methods of construction covering river and harbor improvement.

Loud-Speaker Device Is Stolen From Church

Loud speaker equipment valued at $160 was reported stolen from Christ Lutheran Church at Fourteenth and Gallatin streets northwest Monday night by a burglar who apparently entered with a duplicate key.

HOPE IS ABANDONED FOR AKRON MISSING

who said it sounded the death knell of lighter-than-air naval aviation.

A vast searching armada plowed through the sea and roared back and forth in the sky overhead all day searching for trace of the giant airship and her victims.

But by dusk all they had found was the one floating body and a few pieces of scattered wreckage.

As soon as word of the greatest dirigible disaster in history was flashed to shore, the searching armada prepared to take the air.

Navy planes, amphibians, commercial planes, Coast Guard cutters, Navy craft and seagoing vessels joined in a search of the scene of the crash for sign of bodies and trace of the silvery Akron.

Barnegat City, on the tip of a desolate strip of sand dunes known as Long Beach, was the starting point for many of the air searchers.

Graveyard Waters.

The roar of motors echoed down from lowering clouds as the planes droned off into the foggy morning to circle over the Barnegat waters, a section commonly called the "graveyard of the sea," because of he fate that has overtaken thousands of boats, large and small, since that part of the country was first sighted by a Florentine navigator in 1524.

But the search had been on only a few hours when Secretary of the Navy Swanson, in Washington, issued a statement which cast a spell of gloom over the groups of relatives and friends that waited on shore for word of the Akron crew's fate.

He said there was nothing to indicate the missing men would be found. He added quickly, however, that all the forces at the command of the Navy would remain in the hunt.

Debris Drifts 20 Miles.

An indication of how far the Akron wreckage had drifted was seen in the discovery by a Coast Guard cutter of bits of the airship 20 miles east of Atlantic City.

COMDR. WILEY, IN VIVID STORY, DENIES LIGHTNING HIT SHIP

dition, although slightly heavy. The lightning to the south became quite extensive and also appeared in the west."

Commander Wiley said that about 10 o'clock, after the Akron left the Jersey coast, the storm was general all around the ship.

"I don't think the ship was struck by lightning," he said, "as there was no indication of this at any time, although there was plenty of lightning around us.

"We continued east for about an hour and then reversed the course. When we reached land again we saw lights and identified the shore line. This was about midnight. The course was changed to southeast. About half an hour later the ship began to descend rapidly from 1,600 feet. I dropped all the ballast forward.

"The fall was stopped at about 800 feet. We rose rapidly and leveled off again at 1,500 feet.

Air Became Turbulent.

"While we were falling, the engines were pushed to full speed. After we gained our altitude again they were changed to standard speed. Three minutes later the air became turbulent all around us and the ship tossed violently.

"I knew we were near the center of the storm, because air in the center is most turbulent. I called all hands to the landing stations so as to have all of them available and not in their bunks.

"The ship took a sharp lurch and the rudder control wires of the upper rudder were carried away. I unclutched the upper rudder and tried to steer with the lower rudder.

"I was on the right side of the control car and supervising the rudder. Capt. McCord was on the left side of the car and supervising the elevator wheel. The elevator man reported the ship was falling rapidly.

"I heard a report of 800 feet. By this time the nose inclined upward about 20 degrees, but the ship was falling quite rapidly. In the fog nothing outside could be seen.

"I asked for altitude and the answer was 300 feet. I ordered all hands to stand by for a crash. That order was rung up to the engine car and almost immediately we hit the water.

"We had, as I remember, a list to starboard, to my side of the control car. Water rushed in the windows on my side, carried me out the window on the other side of the control car.

Clings to Board in Water.

"I tried to swim away as rapidly as I could to get from under the ship, and finally came to the surface. I saw the ship drifting away as the lightning flashed. The bow was up in the air and the whole structure was a general wreck.

"I saw two lights on what I thought was the stern. On one side I saw the lights of a ship.

"I also thought I could see the glare of Barnegat Lightship. I swam toward the ship and after about ten minutes I bumped into a board about 3 feet square, which I clung to the rest of the way.

"I saw several men in the water, but none very close. I did not think I could help any of them.

"I did not see any men in the water after I found the board. When I got within 400 yards of the ship, the wind changed, hitting me in the face instead of behind me.

"The captain put the ship broadside. It floated toward me. I think he must have heard cries of men in the water.

Tribute to German Captain.

"I made it easily to the ship and they threw me a life ring and hauled me aboard. They had boats out and picked up three other men. I did not see the boats until I was on board the ship."

"As soon as I recovered strength, in about an hour, I sent a message to the Navy Department giving the names of the rescued. The German captain is an excellent seaman and did everything he could to save life."

Up to this point, Commander Wiley had spoken without interruption, but this ended his formal statement and he permitted questions.

Asked about Admiral William A. Moffett, he said that the Navy aviation chief had slept until midnight and then had entered the control cabin, but he did not notice if he was there at the time of the crash.

Wiley said that there were two enlisted men at the control wheels, but that he could not be sure what other persons were in the control room. He said he did not know what happened to Capt. McCord.

"I was washed out his window," he said. "He may have gone out ahead of me."

"There was no noise or confusion of any kind," Wiley said in telling of his last minutes in the airship. "Orders were given in a low voice and carried out efficiently. There was no conversation of any kind after I gave the order to stand by for a crash."

Wiley said that after he had been swimming about for ten minutes, he did not again see any other swimmers, although he could still hear them. Up to that time he had seen others strugling in the water every time the lightning flashed.

He said he could not see the Akron after he was in the water five minutes.

Denies Lightning Cause.

"In the flashes of lightning I could see that she was drifting away," he said. "It was raining hard."

He repeated the assertion that there had been no explosion or fire aboard the Akron and he was asked if he had any idea of the cause of the crash, since he had said that it was not struck by lightning.

"She might have been struck by lightning without our knowing it," he stated. "There was lightning all about, but in my opinion she was not struck."

It was said at the Navy Yard Hospital that Commander Wiley and the other two survivors would stay at the hospital at least until tomorrow.

MISS JULIA JENNINGS DIES.

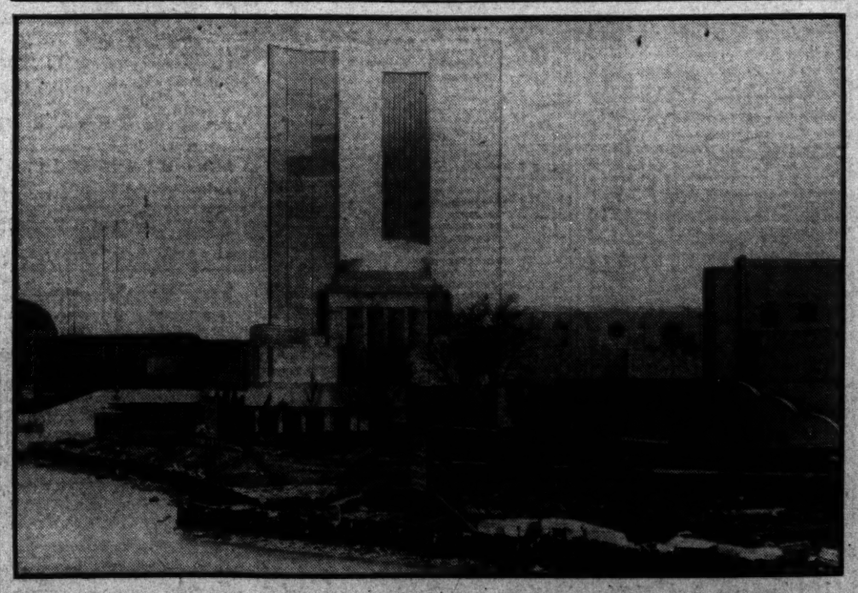

Commerce Clerk to Be Buried Thursday in Richmond.

Miss Julia S. Jennings, 59, clerk in the Department of Commerce, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after a short illness.

Miss Jennings, who lived at 2800 Thirteenth street northwest, was the daughter of the late William A. and Mary A. Jennings, of Orange, Va. She was a native of Virginia.

The body is resting at the W. W. Chambers Co. funeral home, at 1400 Chapin street northwest, until 10 p. m. today, when it will be sent to Richmond, Va., for funeral services on Thursday. Interment will be at Richmond.

TEN O'CLOCK CLUB PRESENTS CONCERT

Ruckman and Schwartz Are Offered in Program of French Music.

The internationality of music was unusually demonstrated last night when Robert Ruckman, well-known Washington pianist and organist, and Milton Schwartz, first violinist of the National Symphony Orchestra, were presented in a benefit concert of French music under the auspices of the Ten o'Clock Club at the Washington Club.

Assisting in this fifth of the Washington artists' series were Pianists George Cornwell and Emersen Meyers. Although composers of France, Spain and Belgium were included in the main portion of the program, they had all lived for extended periods in France and their music was more typical of that country than of their native lands.

Opening the recital was Debussy's "Suite for Piano," played by Mr. Ruckman. With Mr. Cornwell as accompanist, Mr. Schwartz started off with the first two movements of Vieuxtemps' "Concerto No. 4," omitting the the scherzo and finale so that the complete Franck sonata might be given as the closing selection.

Two encores, graciously granted, were played: "Perpetuum Mobile" (Novacek) by Mr. Schwartz and "First Arabesque" (Debussy) by Mr. Ruckman.

The next, and final, concert of the series will be played by Pianist Helen Corbin Heinl, with Contralto Helen Turley, in a program of Edward MacDowell's music on April 11.

W. A. WHITNEY.

Mrs. Donaldson, 47, Expires at Sibley

Wife of Contractor Was Native of City; Burial Is Tomorrow.

Mrs. Mary M. Donaldson, 47, wife of William W. Donaldson, Washington contractor, died yesterday at Sibley Hospital from infection which set in after an appendix operation three weeks ago.

Mrs. Donaldson, who was the daughter of the late Franklin A. Barrett, was born in Washington. In 1908 she was married to William W. Donaldson, also of Washington. They had no children.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Donaldson is survived by a sister, Mrs. Catherine Dorsey, and two brothers, John and James Barrett, all of Washington.

The funeral will be held from her late residence, 3004 Twelfth street northeast, tomorrow at 8 a. m. with requiem mass at St. Anthony's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Sallie Groff Dies at Home Here

Wife of Insurance Man Was Native of Alabama; 2 Children Survive.

Mrs. Sallie V. Groff, 33, wife of Chalmers P. Groff, secretary-treasurer of the Home Title Insurance Co., died yesterday at her home, 3802 Twenty-fourth street northeast, after an illness of several years.

Born in Bathan, Ala., Mrs. Groff came to Washington during the World War. In 1925 she was married to Chalmers F. Groff. They had two children, Virginia Harris Groff, 5, and Chalmers Judson Groff, 4. Two sisters and a brother make their homes in Alabama.

Funeral services will be held today at St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, Sixteenth street and Brentwood road northeast. Interment will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Franklin Barrett's Services Are Held

Funeral services for Franklin Barrett, 89, lifelong resident of Washington, who died Sunday at his home, 1367 Columbia road, were held yesterday at the residence at 1:45 p. m. Interment was in Glenwood Cemetery. Mr. Barrett was a member of a family that came from England and settled in Cecil County, Md., in 1636.

Before the Civil War and during a part of that conflict he was employed in the folding room of the House of Representatives. Later he became assistant to Maj. David Taylor, U. S. A. Upon his retirement from business five years ago he was assessor of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of this city.

RITES FOR MRS. SEDGWICK.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at York, Nebr., for Mrs. Samuel H. Sedgwick, widow of Judge Sedgwick, of the Supreme Court of Nebraska, who died Saturday at George Washington University Hospital.

Mrs. Sedgwick came to Washington five and a half years ago with her daughter, Miss Myrna Sedgwick, who is secretary to President Marvin of George Washington University. One other daughter, Miss Catherine Sedgwick, also survives.

The Meanderer

Visits Charity Shop—Finds Jig-Saw Puzzle Hat—New Materials That Are Old-Fashioned.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4765, Extension 39, or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

The countess whose presence frequently graces a charity thrift shop on N street probably would be glad to have Meanderings readers know of her interest in such a worth-while project. The Meanderer saw the gracious lady, but knew not what her errand in the shop might be. Both buyers and givers visit this charity shop. All wares offered for sale there are donated. Not as long as she lives will the Meanderer cease to covet a set of six blue and white spatter ware cups and saucers well over a hundred years old on display in the window of the shop. Treasure seekers will like the chest of valuables on the second floor, where sterling silver and gold trinkets, valuable bits of jewelry, ornamental feather fans and numerous other objects of interest are low priced. Clothing of all descriptions in good condition is offered there. Proceeds from all sales in this shop are divided among five charity organizations.

Bright ornaments in jig-saw shapes decorate trim-tailored hats in effective fashion. The Meanderer saw the jig-saw hats in the millinery department of an F street women's wear shop priced $3.98.

The "little brown jug" with the little old tune of that title in words and notes on the jug, which may be tucked away together with two "three-finger" glasses into a small wooden cabinet much like a radio—is one of the cleverest of the liquor-serving sets to appear recently. The "little brown jug" (really a crockery jug) ensemble costs just $1.29.

Pongee pajamas in one piece with ruffled armholes sell for $1; and two-piece pongee pajamas, either in tailored embroidered style or including a printed Chinese-patterned jacket and plain trousers, are $2.95 in a department store on F street at Seventh.

Eyelet batiste frocks that are exceptionally attractive in black and white, brown and white, navy and white or red and white, are $1.95 in the cotton dress section of the store just mentioned.

Blouses that are sure to interest the shopper, who may be a little weary of ruffles and puffed sleeves, are on the Meanderer's special list. One style is plain linen in white, navy, brown, yellow and other colors, with plain collar and tucked vestee, just $1 in the store on F street at Seventh. Other linen blouses have Ascot ties in rather striking combinations of plain colors with white, also $1. White, eggshell and spring green blouses of voile, with ties in Ascot fashion edge with narrow lace are a neat fashion for $1.

Seersucker materials by the yard in patterns that must date back 100 years are selling rapidly to those who are getting busy on spring sewing. The seersuckers sell for from 38 to 75 cents a yard. The Meanderer knows two little sisters who are to have seersucker pinafore frocks and matching hats, quaintly striped in green, beige, rose and yellow with guimpes to finish the frocks of eggshell organdy. The seersuckers in dozens of patterns are showing in a big F street department store's second-floor wash material section.

Mme. Blanche Doumer Dies at Paris Residence

Paris, April 4 (A.P.).—Mme. Blanche Doumer, widow of the assassinated president, died today. Mme. Doumer, who was 72 years old, died at her home eleven months after the assassination of her husband last May 6.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Paris offers the jeweled necklace attaching the decolletage of a dull crepe evening gown in the popular misty blue. And a tortoise shell beret, and a taffeta ribbon bandeau confine the tresses for evening.

ONE now famous Paris couturiere decided to make evening wear for summer on sportswear lines—and had an immediate success. For the lady who wears not well the fluffy type of thing, these square backed, straight lined, long and slender evening frocks developed in sports fabrics such as shantung or pique are irresistible. And somehow so very appropriate for summer resort evenings, don't you think so?

This same couturiere offers beach dresses with short, flaring skirts that barely cover the hips, for wear with one-piece knit bathing suits. Then she makes feathers out of tooled white leather—cutting it in the shape of cog feathers—and makes a collar and a belt of them for evening wear—detachable, too, so that you can wear it with any color dress!

Not to be considered lacking in imagination, this lady offers other novelties—triangular wood buttons, for instance, hand carved and merely polished—not colored. And a princess line beach apron which is two halves—each a different color, and each worn separately in a half apron effect—or double, the one over the other. And if little sister had a skipping rope given her for Christmas, and it is cotton cord with wooden handles—all one has to do is purloin it for a belt—to be wrapped around and around the waist of a sports frock.

Somebody called her new buttonholes of white silver "nickel in the slot——" and it seemed apt! Nobody named the crystal shoulder straps to evening gowns of every color, however. And lovely they were, too. Silver link chains for beach dresses are distinctive, too, in the novelty strap line.

Well, the lady whose collection showed all these delightful novelties—besides stunning garments, you may be sure, of distinctive lines—was Vera Borea. A newcomer to Paris, but a famous one.

* * * *

No need for you not to have a whole flock of new hats! Yes, and you can make 'em new out of your old ones, you can! I say you can, because I just have—to my surprise, I admit. But make them over I did, carefully setting down for you the why and wherefore, the ways and means of each one as I did so. So for a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Post you can have a whole flock of new hats—from your old ones. Just send for the leaflet and see—remember, I hadn't ever made over a hat for myself before either. At least, you can give the leaflet and the old hats to the maid or dressmaker or modiste, now can't you?

* * * *

You've heard a lot about "misty" blue for this spring, now haven't you? And rightly, too. It is one of the best colors for evening wear, and there I have sketched for you one of the newest dresses in it—and in a dull crepe. The decolletage of this dress is charming, too, and made of jewelry, flat, and not heavy enough to damage the sag in the line of the decolletage. Nice?

* * * *

Sashes fall to the ground on many a lovely dance frock this season—in case you have forgotten!

* * * *

It is almost a rule now to confine your locks for evening wear. You have your choice of comb, chapeau, ribbons, jewelry. The newest combs hold the fluffy hair in place as illustrated at the right, and can be plain tortoise shell or jeweled. And the taffeta ribbon bandeau appeared surprisingly at a recent premiere—all binding the curls and tied as indicated!

EXPERT BIDDING.

OCCASIONALLY situations arise in the play of experts in which bids that appear entirely incomprehensible are made, and yet these bids are absolutely logical, even though one may search the textbooks for their authority. The authority is there nevertheless, implied if not expressed.

In the recent contest for possession of the Goldman Cup, emblematic of the Eastern Contract Pair Championship, some rather unusual bidding occurred at the table where Messrs. Oswald Jacoby, South, and Samuel Fry, jr., North, held the hands below:

East, Dealer.

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass (1)	1♠	Pass (2)
2♠	3♣ (3)	Pass	3♠ (4)
Pass	4♡ (5)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1. The hand, it is true, contains 2½ honor-tricks, but as there are no Aces, the policy of "wait and see" is better than a bid.

2. If South's hand is a bust, North can gain nothing by entering the bidding at this point, even with 3½ honor-tricks. Again a pass to await developments is indicated.

3. The opposing bidding has not been at all strong. Mr. Jacoby now feels that there is a good prospect of at least a part-score for his side.

4. A very brilliant bid by Mr. Fry. It is true that it is unconventional, as the hand obviously has three losers in the spade suit, but, on the other hand, with his outside strength, he is anxious for Mr. Jacoby to bid three notrump if he has a spade stopper, and no other bid that he can make will permit the bidding of a notrump game under these conditions.

5. Mr. Jacoby, of course, can not bid notrump with his void in spades. He now shows his slightly shaded heart suit.

The play of the hand is extremely interesting. The Ace of spades was opened, and Mr. Jacoby rightly determined to play the hand as safely as it could be done. Three rounds of spades were taken by East and West. Mr. Jacoby discarding three diamonds. It was, of course, possible that if he found a 3-3 break in the trumps adversely held, he could make an overtrick by ruffing the spade, but the risk of finding four trumps against him was too great. He, therefore, followed the safe course, which must win against any distribution of the trumps except five in the hand of one adversary, gave up the first three tricks, and thus fulfilled his contract.

The bid by Mr. Fry of the adversely bid suit was unconventional, but it was the type of bid which an expert player makes, and, in fact, the type of bid that marks an expert.

What Today Means

"ARIES."

IF April 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. and from 11:15 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 5:45 p. m.

This April 5, it seems, would be a good one on which to "take it easy" and restore your energy. It appears likely that before long you will have unexpected hurdles to clear, both in family and in business affairs. A short journey away from your usual environment should prove helpful.

The child born on this April 5 will probably require constant prodding and stimulating by both parents and teacher. Most likely he will not carry on his education through the higher institutions of learning. Would seem to be adapted to some trade. Probably marry young.

If April 5 is the date of your birth, you probably have a streng desire to get some place in this world. You are lacking patience and slow to realize that progress is not a hurried affair, but usually a slow but steady unfoldment to man of the realities of life. Do not try to force matters. Impetuous, quick to make decisions and equally quick to act on them, you will meet with many keen disappointments in life. You are inclined to fret and worry over your reverses instead of stepping right in and setting them right. Do not allow yourself to become discouraged.

Born on April 5, you are a sincere person and true to your family and friends. You often allow yourself to be "taken in" by others who are more sharp than you, for you trust in people and even from the slightest acquaintance you expect a right reaction. Once you have been deceived, mislead or dishonestly dealt with by a person, you have no further use for that one; you are not the one to offer another chance. You are a tolerant person. The women born on this day are usually well balanced individuals and are absolutely dependable. They go along, minding their own business, lending a hand when called upon and always radiating the charm, happiness and good will which is so much a part of themselves.

LL. D. to Be Conferred Upon Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt will receive an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the Washington College of Law, it was announced yesterday by Dean Grace Hays Riley.

The degree will be conferred upon the First Lady of the Land during the June graduation exercises. The school was the first in Washington to open its doors to women law students.

Today's Recipe

Meat Pie.

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 cups milk
½ cup meat stock
2 tablespoons chopped celery.
1 tablespoon chopped onions
1 tablespoon chopped pimientos
1½ cups cooked meat, diced
½ cup cooked carrots, diced

Melt butter and add flour. Mix well and add salt, paprika, milk and stock. Boil gently and stir frequently until mixture thickens. Add rest of ingredients and mix. Pour into buttered shallow baking dish. Cover with the English pastry.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW'S YOUR LIVER.

OUR forbears used the word bilious as an every-day expression. The common remedy for the feeling called biliousness was calomel and it required no Solomon to see that the habitual or frequent use of calomel was bad. Since calomel was the common remedy and the physicians saw the need to break the customary use of the drug, they went after the habit of calling oneself bilious in order to get at the remedy.

The custom of taking calomel promiscuously is very much on the wane and should be in the discard in another ten years. Now we are in favor of reviving the words bilious and biliousness. The British propose that we join them in the use of their word, liverish.

The liver has but few organic diseases, but when we get into the field of the functional disorders there is no organ that contributes more to discomfort and minor disability. Among the symptoms of those functional disorders are all those that some of us know as biliousness. In this group are headache, coated tongue, bad taste, constipation, dyspepsia, acidity, belching, sourness of the stomach, sallow skin, a little jaundice, mental heaviness and what is called logginess—physical, mental and spiritual.

Since the symptoms vary so much, many of them are vague and not easily traced to the organ responsible for them, the old and discarded treatment for this group of vague feelings was to take a course of calomel. While that practice has been pretty well abandoned there are still a great many persons who follow the plan of taking some saline purge.

There are now tests for liver function that can be used to prove the responsibility of this organ for most of these symptoms. The same tests often disclose a precirrhotic or early cirrhotic state of the liver years before a typical liver cirrhosis is due. The best of these is known as the levulose test. This test consists in the injection of a certain amount of levulose and then watching the effect on the blood sugar. A fair proportion of the medical profession is equipped to make the test and have had experience in its use.

We are still more interested in the every-day phases of this new information. As has been said in the olden day we thought a round of calomel was the golden road to recovery, but experience proved that not to be true. It got to be one round of calomel after another. The newer teaching is that there is no royal road. To get up a man must climb up the hill he slid down. Put in other words, that means that the man who is subject to spells of biliousness can escape only by changing his habits.

If his fault lay in drinking he must spare his slightly crippled liver the tax of that. If it is overeating it behooves him to become a light eater. If it is obesity it is his task to lose some weight. If it is eating mustard, horse radish, pepper, chili sauces and other condiments they must be omitted. Or it may be that his trouble lay in eating too much dressings, fats, oils and greases or meats. A heavy evening meal is apt to be the cause of biliousness.

Epiphany Church Host Today at Joint Session

The weekly Lenten service sponsored by the Federation of Churches will be held today from 1:30 to 5:30 p. m. in the Epiphany Episcopal Church.

The eight participants in the service are the Rev. R. J. Clinchy, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church; the Rev. G. E. Schmabel, Albright Evangelical Church; the Rev. F. B. New System of Grading Efficiency Topic Today

A more accurate system of recording the efficiency of Government workers to comply with the possible elimination of some workers under the new economy act will be discussed at a meeting today of the Personnel Officers Association at the Civil Service Commission.

The association will strive to place a uniform system of grading by supervisory officers. The present system was placed in operation 13 years ago. The ratings are made annually and reported on May 15.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Isn't it charming? It's so youthfully smart and easy to wear.

It can be made with a tied collar or a boyish type flat shaped collar as in the miniature view. The pattern also provides for a casing with elastic inserted to the waistline or with a flat hip yoke.

Plain and printed silks of various types are lovely for this model.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

TWO KINDS OF PARENTS.

GENERALLY speaking, there are two kinds of parents, those who aim to bring up their children exactly as they were brought up and those who seek to bring them up in the exactly opposite way.

The first often are those whose childhood was happy, although many times those who look back to an unhappy childhood take the same attitude.

It may be that this latter type of parent, in bringing up his child by the same method which once made him wretched unconsciously is getting even for the suffering he endured at that time.

Perhaps he justifies his behavior somewhat in this way, "I guess my parents must have known what they were doing because, look at me, I came out all right, didn't I?" or "What was good enough for me will be good enough for my children."

The second kind of parent, reacting to what he feels were the mistakes of his parents, decides that, come what may, his children will never go through the things he did, never suffer the hardships he endured.

Both attitudes are unsound. What is or is not good for a child has not necessarily anything to do with what was or was not good for his parents. Parents who truly want to give their children the best possible start in life must free themselves of both kinds of prejudice.

They must learn to think of their children as individuals different and distinct from themselves or from what they were as children. It is important that they learn to think out his problems from his point of view, to understand him as he actually is.

Stocks Again Close Higher, As Sugar and Mines Lead

Market Gains Two-Tenths on Sales Turnover of 750,000 Shares.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Stocks were irregularly lower through most of today's market, but firmed sufficiently toward the close to give the composite a small net advance. Sales totaled about 750,000 shares.

Mining and sugar shares provided most of the boost, rails looking rather soggy.

Metal equities came forward coincident with word that Secretary Woodin and congressional leaders were to discuss proposed silver legislation. Sugar stocks improved on firmness of the market for their staple. This strength in commodity shares doubtless prompted miscellaneous covering by traders who noted that prices of raw materials since the bank holiday have held much better than security quotations.

American Sugar, up nearly 4, was a high flier. South Puerto Rico Sugar, Great Western, United States Smelting, International Silver preferred and American Smelting gained a point or more, while United Fruit and General Mills contributed similar advances. American Telephone, rising a point on an early rally, lost its improvement and then rallied again to the day's high. American Can, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit, Owens Illinois, Mack Truck and Macy were also up 1 net. In rails, Union Pacific softened nearly 3, which was disheartening to other carriers, several of which were off fractionally.

Wall street's interest in rail shares has subsided noticeably in the last week or so. Legislation designed to help the roads is still in the formative stage and the prospect of further reorganizations, as well as the fact that so many lines are not earning interest charges, overshadows in the speculative mind such traffic gains as have been recorded. Freight loadings last week apparently measured up to the showing of the previous week and there is some hope that the seasonal peak will top that of 1932.

Heavy industries seem to be slowly emerging from their March slump. Automobile production is picking up, while steel mill activity gives evidence of a slightly better demand. In this connection, American Metal Market says: "It is reasonably certain that April will average well above March, but March was an extremely poor month," whereas it normally sees a high production ratio in comparison with the rest of the year.

Money markets were plentifully supplied with funds, but demand was light and rates again dipped. Stock exchange call loans renewed at 2 per cent, while bankers' acceptance rates were reduced one-fourth of 1 per cent on all maturities.

What the Stock Market Did

	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	168	166
Declines	193	175
Unchanged	135	166
Total issues	496	507

Stocks.

After early declines, stocks closed .2 point higher. The sales volume totaled about 750,000 shares. Sugar and mining issues provided most of the boost.

Bonds.

United States and foreign government loans breasted the slowly ebbing market. Losses in other issues averaged .2 point. The day's turnover was $8,401,000.

Curb.

Wheat.

Corn, oats, rye and barley made new high price records. Wheat closed unchanged to ½ cent lower on profit-taking. Corn put backbone into all feed grains. May wheat sold at 55⅝ to 55½ cents.

Cotton.

Dealing was quiet and prices fluctuated wtihin a range of 8 to 10 points. In later trading the market steadied on trade buying and covering and closed 5 to 6 points higher. July sold at 6.53; May, at 6.36. Liverpool reported dull, featureless trading.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for April 1 were $5,179,790.48; expenditures, $10,775,693.77; balance, $487,330,573.15. Customs duties for April 1 were $711,190.71.

FEDERAL BONDS GAIN AS MARKET DROPS

Prices Sink Two-Tenths as Sales Volume Totals $8,401,000.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Only United States Government securities and a few straggling foreign and corporate issues breasted the slowly ebbing tide in the bond market today.

While there was apparently little severe pressure exerted against the various leaders, the trend was irregularly lower throughout the session. Trading, as in recent sessions, was indifferent, with sales totaling only $8,401,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was down two-tenths of a point.

Federal loans, with the exception of Liberty fourth 4¼s, were quite dull. Gains ranged from 1-32d to 6-32ds of a point. Government issues evidently reflected a somewhat more cheerful view of the administration's farm mortgage refinancing proposals. Easing money rates also tended to steady the long-term Treasury maturities.

Domestic utilities were not as soft as usual, but the majority eased. The rails were the heaviest of the various groups. The most active losers of 1 to 2 or more points in the transportation category included some liens of Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, Illinois Central, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern and Texas & Pacific. The industrials finished about even.

The foreign list was mixed. German government issues declined fractionally, and some of the republic's corporate issues were off 1 to around 3 points. Japanese, British and French loans firmed, and bonds of Uruguay advanced fractionally to 3 points. The Argentines were heavy.

East Texas Crude Oil Yield Placed at 760,240 Barrels

Tulsa, Okla., April 4 (A.P.).—Attacking as incorrect and unreliable the reported crude oil production from east Texas, the Oil & Gas Journal this week instituted its private system of collecting reports and declared that immense area's output last week was 760,240 barrels daily.

Reports of producers to the State railroad commission the previous week showed an output of 395,714 barrels daily.

The Journal declared reports to the State were so misleading it was necessary to gather its own figures, "which we feel are most conservative."

As a result of the sharp upward climb of east Texas, the total for the State of Texas went to 1,311,806 barrels daily, as compared with a previous average of 949,164 barrels.

This increase came about despite a drop of 135,950 barrels in the Oklahoma average, from 563,880 to 427,930 barrels daily.

California production increased 89,500 barrels, from 371,000 to 460,500 barrels daily—a reflection of the reopening of oil fields shut down temporarily because of the earthquake—to complete the topsy-turvy chart of ups and downs for the three flush States.

Eastern fields were steady at 104,000 barrels. Rocky Mountain production varied only 128 barrels in the daily average, dropping to 75,806 barrels a day. Kansas production decreased from 122,740 barrels to 121,250 barrels daily.

Atlas Trust to Get Trading Company

Goldman Sachs' Name Is to Be Changed After Transfer.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Plans for transferring the management of Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Atlas Corporation, an investment trust, and changing the name of the trading concertn to "Pacific Eastern Corporation," were announced today by Walter E. Sachs, president of Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation.

Mr. Sachs, in calling a special stockholders' meeting for April 17 to approve the plans, explained that Atlas Corporation, of which Floyd B. Odlum is president, already owns more than 40 per cent of the trading company's shares and that consequently it was believed Atlas should assume active management.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. has managed the trading corporation since the incorporation of the latter, holding about 4 per cent of the stock. Mr. Sachs stated that at least one member of Goldman, Sachs & Co. would be a member of the directorate of the trading corporation. Mr. Odlum said Mr. Sachs had agreed to remain on the board. Atlas Corporation has for some time been acquiring stock of Goldman, Sachs Trading Corporation, whose largest single asset is the stock of the American Trust Co., of San Francisco.

GOODS MARKET.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were steady today with the demand fair for wash fabrics and novelties for spring. Rayon yarn buyers are showing more interest in buying for later delivery, but rayon fabrics are irregular, due to the recent reduction in yarn prices.

Buyers are picking up end of the season lots of spring coatings and suitings at very attractive prices. Interest is increasing in fall lines of wool goods. Burlaps are steady.

Freight and Power Trends Begin Rise

Steel Also Picks Up as Business Rebounds From Lows.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Statistics apearing during the past week indicated a slightly rising business tendency, according to Moody's index figures for freight car loadings, electric power production and steel ingot output.

This was interpreted as reflecting a rebound from the low volume of business during the banking crisis. These index figures are adjusted for seasonal variation—that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change, the index figure would be unchanged.

TRADE TRENDS.

Curtains—Preference of buyers for lower-priced merchandise is reported to have brought some pressure on manufacturers of high-grade curtains for lower prices. It is said that tailored and lace curtains are the greatest sufferers from the price unsettlement.

Canned foods—Prices are firmer than they were a few weeks ago, according to dealers. Spot items show strength through the list of major vegetables.

Lead—There is practically no buying for April requirements, which have previously been taken care of, dealers report. There is some interest in the May position at the 3-cent level, New York.

Wool—Reports from Boston state that while the volume of sales in both the raw wool and top markets is very small, interest in wool tops appears keener than it has been in recent weeks.

SILK MARKET.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed firm; sales, 1,370 bales. May, *1.12; July, *1.11; October, 1.12.

CURB PRICES STAND AS TRADING DRIFTS

Leaders Recover Earlier Losses; Sugar Issues Record Gains.

Repeating the action of recent sessions, most of the leaders sagged a bit, but registered a fair recovery from the extreme lows. With the less active issues, it was a case of scarcity of bids or insufficient offerings, which led to some fairly wide swings.

Trading leaders commanding the most interest included Deere & Co., American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower and Standard Oil of Indiana. These ended the session unchanged to a shade lower.

National Sugar rose a point, Adams-Millis preferred dropped 4, and Tampa Electric gave up 2. A. O. Smith & Co. attracted some bidding and climbed 2 points.

Bankers' Acceptances Reduced 1-4 Per Cent

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Yield rates on bankers' acceptances were reduced ¼ of 1 per cent for all maturities today. The new rates follow: 30-90 days, 1⅛ per cent bid, 1¾ per cent asked; 4 months, 2¼@2; 5-6 months, 2⅜@2¼.

Rates for acceptances have been declining with the general easing of credit conditions following bank reopenings.

Further ease developed in call money with the posting of a 2 per cent rate for loan renewals on the New York Stock Exchange. This is the lowest renewal rate since March 1 when it was 1 per cent. In the interim the renewal has been as high as 5 per cent.

Film Securities Pays Interest Due on Notes

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—The Film Securities Corporation, it was announced today, has paid the interest due April 1, amounting to $600,000, on its $20,000,000 notes, and also $1,730,000 on account of principal at the rate of $86.50 per $1,000 bond.

Collateral for the notes is in the form of 660,900 common shares of Loew's, Inc.

GRAINS SET RECORDS WITH HIGHER PRICES

Wheat Market Unchanged to ½ Cent Lower on Sales for Profits.

Chicago, April 4 (A.P.).—Buoyancy characterized the entire grain list today except wheat. Fresh high-price records for the season were attained in corn, oats, rye and barley.

Liberal selling to realize profits on recent huge purchases of wheat acted as a curb against new advances in that cereal. Enlarged speculative demand for grains other than wheat attracted much notice. Opinions were expressed in some quarters that Chicago wheat prices had moved up too fast of late compared with Winnipeg and Liverpool.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ½ cent lower, with corn ⅜ to ⅝ advanced; oats ⅛ to ¼ up, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents higher.

Independent strength shown by the corn market served to put backbone into all the feed grains, and even at times hoisted wheat. At today's top, May delivery of corn was up 9 cents a bushel from the season's low point. Corn available for immediate use was up 11 to 12 cents. Evidence of a determined holding policy on the part of producers hopeful of higher prices was a reason which trade authorities gave for the action of corn.

Weather Is Unfavorable.

Friends of higher prices emphasized that weather throughout the corn belt was unfavorable for crop movement, and that the season was now at hand when country marketings would naturally become limited. It also was pointed out that notwithstanding price upturns, corn, as a rule, was still selling below the cost of production, although there were transfers of white corn today at better than 34 cents a bushel, the highest price obtained for any grade since April, 1932.

Assertions were heard that compared with a month ago this represented at country loading points in Iowa an advance of exactly 100 per cent.

Renewal of dust storms in parts of the territory stretching from Nebraska to the Texas Panhandle was partly responsible for a transient rally in wheat values, but there were some indications of moisture relief. Oats shipping demand was unusually active.

Provisions averaged higher with grains.

INQUIRY IS ORDERED INTO CURB'S LISTING

New York Attorney General to Start Investigation of Practicse Today.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Attorney General John J. Bennett announced today he has ordered a thorough investigation into the listing practices of the New York Curb Exchange to start tomorrow.

Howard C. Sykes, president of the exchange, will be examined as the first witness in the bureau of securities in the attorney general's office tomorrow morning.

Mr. Bennett declared that the present practice "of admitting stocks and bonds to unlimited trading privileges presents an opportunity for serious abuses." He said the investigation had been ordered with a view to ending the alleged abuses.

Bennett Issues Statement.

The following statement was issued from the attorney general's office:

"Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr., today announced that, following the receipt of several complaints during the past few days, an investigation will be immediately instituted into the listing practices of the New York Curb Exchange.

"Howard C. Sykes, president of the New York Curb Exchange, has been called for examination on Wednesday morning. The investigation will be conducted by Assistant Attorney General John F. X. McGohey, in charge of the bureau of securities, and Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall.

"Pending the investigation, Mr. Bennett refused to make extended comment. However, he did say:

"'As a result of a preliminary survey made of the listing practices on the New York Curb Exchange it appears that listed and unlisted securities are traded in without distinction.

Belief of Public.

"'There is a widespread belief among the investing public that all securities traded on the curb exchange conform to the standards for listed securities established by that exchange. The practice of admitting stocks and bonds to unlisted trading privileges presents an opportunity for serious abuses and my investigation will have for its object the elimination of this so-called unlisted trading.'"

Mr. McGohey declared that corporations whose securities are listed by the exchange are required to submit independently audited financial statements, while no such requirement is made for unlisted stocks.

Trading practices are such, McGohey said, that investors may find it difficult to differentiate between the listed and the unlisted securities.

Fisk Rubber Sale Confirmed.

Boston, April 4 (A.P.).—Federal Judge James A. Lowell today confirmed the sale of the Fisk Rubber Co. to the so-called Fisk reorganization committee, headed by Orrin G. Wood, of Boston, for $3,030,000. The company went into the hands of a receiver in 1929 and its property was sold at auction in Chicopee yesterday.

W.L. M'LUCAS HEADS NEW DETROIT BANK

Election of Kansas City Man Given Woodin Approval; Arrives Today.

Kansas City, April 4 (A.P.).—It was announced here today that Walter S. McLucas, chairman of the Board of Commerce Trust Co., Kansas City, has been appointed president of the new National Bank of Detroit, formed with a $25,000,000 capital through the cooperative efforts of General Motors and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The Kansas City banker revealed to the Commerce board this afternoon that he had been asked to become president of the new Detroit institution and had decided to accept.

Mr. McLucas was in Detroit conferences Saturday, his advice having been sought in various organization matters in the set-up of the new bank.

The banker for several years has been the Tenth District member of the Federal Reserve Advisory Council in Washington. He is a director of the National Credit Corporation.

He was president of the Commerce Trust Co. in 1921 when he went to New York to become a vice president of the National City Bank. He returned eighteen months later to the Commerce Trust Co.

Detroit, April 4 (A.P.).—James Inglis, chairman of the board of directors of the National Bank of Detroit, announced this afternoon that the board had elected Walter S. McLucas, of Kansas City, president.

The new president has for many years been chairman of the board of the Commerce Trust Co., of Kansas City. He is expected to arrive tomorrow afternoon to assume his new duties.

The announcement said that the appointment of Mr. McLucas, a member of the advisory council of the Federal Reserve board in Washington, was with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The R. F. C. and the General Motors Corporation jointly capitalized the new bank, each putting in $12,500,000.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Russia May Buy More in America

Germany Is Warned Trade Will Be Cut if Attacks Persist.

Moscow, April 4 (A.P.).—A possibility that Soviet Russia may transfer to the United States some of its purchases heretofore placed in Germany was voiced today by the Soviet government's chief economic organ, For Industrialization, in warning Germany that it risks trade reprisals if attacks on Soviet economic organizations and Soviet citizens there continue.

The newspaper declared recent anti-Soviet activities in Germany, in the face of Chancellor Hitler's enunciation of a friendly policy toward Russia, "provides sufficient ground for a change in our economic relations with Germany, no matter how valuable those relations have been to both countries." It added that Russian economic organizations concerned with foreign trade "should consider the possibility of developing imports from France, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Poland and other countries, and also think about the possibilities offered by American industry."

For the last two years, Soviet Russia bought more goods from Germany than from any other country, its purchases amounting to 324,411,000 rubles (about $162,205,500) in 1932 and 410,695,000 rubles (about $205,347,500) in 1931. Its purchases in the United States dropped from 229,915,000 rubles (about $114,957,500) in 1931 to 31,665,000 rubles (about $15,832,500) in 1932.

Rayon Yarn Production Is Cut to 70 Per Cent

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Production of rayon yarns in March was curtailed to about 70 per cent of capacity, says the monthly publication of Tubize Chatillon Corporation. The average rate for the first quarter was about 90 per cent. Stocks on hand at the end of March probably amounted to five or six weeks' supply, whereas those available at the end of 1932 represented less than three weeks' supply.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON TRADE'S BUYING

July Sells at 6.53 as General Market Gains 5 to 6 Points.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Trading in cotton continued quiet today and prices fluctuated within a range of 8 to 10 points.

The market steadied after a slight opening decline, with July contracts selling to 6.54, or 7 points net higher and 8 points above the low level of the morning. That delivery closed at 6.53, with the general market closing very steady at net advnaces of 5 to 6 points.

Opening prices were 1 to 2 points lower. There was some scattering liquidation through commission houses, and Liverpool was again a seller early. Offerings were absorbed by covering combined with some trade and local buying. Closing quotations were at or within a point of the top.

Traders Still Wait.

Traders continued disposed to await developments in connection with the pending farm relief legislation in Washington.

Local spot dealers said Southern spot markets were quiet with, the basis firm.

Reports from New Orleans indicated better progress in farm work and according to the New York Cotton Exchange service, fertilizer tag sales during March represented 539,000 tons, against 426,000 in the corresponding month last year.

Liverpool cables reported a dull, featureless market there with investment enterprise restricted by the farm relief bill uncertainities in Washington. Exports today, 28,236, making 6,234,114 so far this season. Port receipts, 16,389. U. S. port stocks, 4,345,714.

Cottonseed Oil.

The bleachable cottonseed oil market was quiet today with trading comprised principally of exchanges. Sales amounted to 11 lots, practically all in the form of exchanges.

The undertone was easy, reflecting the decline in the hog market, with final prices 7 points net lower on July, the only month traded.

Bleachable spot closed 3.80, May 3.91, July 4.06, September 4.19, October 4.20.

Collateral Borrowings Decline $48,995,475

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Collateral borrowings of New York Stock Exchange members on March 31 amounted to $310,961,581, the exchange announced today. This compares with $359,957,056 at the end of February.

CHECKS AGAIN TAKE LEAD IN COMMERCE

Restored Confidence Brings Money From Hiding and Normalcy Is Near.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—The use of checks, rather than actual money, for the conduct of corporate and personal affairs is fast returning to normal proportions, it is revealed in an analysis of bank statistics just made public.

In the days which led to the banking crisis the demands for cash reached unprecedented proportions.

Money in circulation on March 8—the first weekly report following the declaration of the national banking holiday—reached the dizzy peak of $7,538,000,000, by far the most stupendous figure in the history of the country.

Money Out of Hiding.

With the return of confidence in the Nation's fiscal strength, which rapidly became evident following the administration's aggressive banking reform policies, money began to emerge from hiding places, and on March 29 the figure was down to $6,353,000,000, a drop of $1,185,000,000.

A study of the records shows that bank deposits in this country in 1929 totaled approximately $57,000,000,000, whereas the aggregate of check clearings in that year was more than $700,000,000,000, something like 12½ times all deposits.

But the total amount of money in circulation during that year was only about $5,000,000,000.

Figures Bring Out Truth.

These figures serve to bring out the fundamental truth, bankers explain, that money is primarily a standard of value in the world of business, but plays only a minor part as the actual means of payment.

The fact that some nine-tenths of all payments are made through checks, which cancel out when brought together, is not a matter of chance under normal conditions. It works out this way because the financial transactions of each country, and between countries naturally cancel out in the settlements.

Thus the whole system of the use of checks, essentially a refinement of the barter process, demonstrates where real buying power originates—not in money in a sock or safe deposit box, but in the products and services which the people desire to exchange.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—Unfilled orders of Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co. on March 31, totaled $4,501,000 against $4,371,000 at the end of February.

Stockholders of North American Aviation, Inc., will meet April 26 to vote on the proposed acquisition of assets of General Aviation Corporation.

Freight loadings of the Wabash last week amounted to 11,055 cars compared with 10,700 cars in the previous week.

Dow, Jones & Co. said today that business of Coca Cola Co. so far this year has been running slightly below the first quarter of 1932. February was a little behind 1932 "and indications are that March results may reflect some aggravations of the business slump due to the banking holiday, although it is not likely to have affected Coca Cola's earnings to any appreciable extent." In the first quarter of 1932 the company had net profit of $2,318,220.

The New York Stock Exchange has received notice from Beatrice Creamery Co. of a proposed change in the common stock to $25 par value from $50.

The Chicago & North Western Railroad is extending to April 15 the opportunity for holders of its 5 per cent debentures of 1933 to assent to the refunding plan. The bonds are due May 1. More than 85 per cent of the holders have accepted, but President Sargent says "substantially all must agree if the plan is to become effective.

Raw silk imports in March, totaling 22,289 bales, were 42.7 per cent lower than a year ago and deliveries to mills decreased 16.7 per cent, reports the Silk Association of America.

Sales of National Tea Co. for the four weeks ended March 25 totaled $5,062,463, a 7 per cent decrease from a year ago.

Freight loadings of the Santa Fe last week totaled 20,453 cars against 20,292 in the previous week. The St. Paul's traffic amounted to 19,739 cars compared with 18,839.

Business failures in the past week totaled 437 against 510 a year ago and 549 in the corresponding week of 1931, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. The reduction in March this year, says the agency, was "quite exceptional" and insolvencies for that month have not been at so low a level since 1925. The number last week compared with 393 in the previous week, the increase occurring in the Western and Pacific Coast States.

Sales of the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. for the four weeks ended March 25 totaled $15,223,412, a decrease of 12 per cent from the same 1932 period.

The Dun & Bradstreet index of wholesale commodity prices regained in March all the ground it lost in February. The April 1 composite was $6.5359, a rise of 2.9 per cent over the March 1 figure of $6.3562 and a shade higher than the February 1 average of $6.5324.

While approximately 3,000 banks remained on a restricted basis at the end of March, only 73 with deposits of about $19,000,000 were added to the number placed in the hands of receivers for liquidation during the month, the American Banker reported today. Twenty-four previously closed banks were reopened during the month.

Kresge Department Stores, Inc., has proposed a decrease in the authorized preferred stock to 40,000 shares from 250,000, and in the common to 250,000 from 700,000 shares.

The 1932 pamphlet report of Pere Marquette Railway Co. shows current assets as of December 31 at $6,660,245 and current liabilities $5,555,046. As previously reported, the road had a deficit last year of $3,044,610 against deficit of $1,853,080 in 1931. Total operating revenues in 1932 dropped $5,883,400, or 21.5 per cent. Expenses were cut $4,942,277, or 21.37 per cent.

ASSEMBLY REJECTS SPORTS ON SUNDAY

Liberals Will Have to Wait Two More Years for Blue Law Lift.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—Those residents of Montgomery County who are eager to have Sunday moving pictures as well as amateur athletic sports, such as baseball, will have to wait two more years, for the bill providing for relaxing the blue laws in those two respects failed of enactment by the Maryland Legislature. Prince Georges County on the other hand, got through a measure to permit a referendum on such issues to the voters of incorporated towns in that section.

The Montgomery bill, which originated in the House, was passed by that body by a large majority, but Senator Robert G. Hilton took the view that a great majority of the people were opposed to such legislation, and therefore declined to report the bill from a select committee to which it was referred. Otherwise, practically all of the local legislation for Montgomery was made law during the closing hours of the hectic session. And the same was true as regards Prince Georges County.

Oyster Dredgers Beaten.

Residents of the southern Maryland counties are rejoicing over their success in defeating the bill sponsored by the State administration, that would have thrown Potomac River waters open to oyster dredgers during November and December. The fight against this measure, which was staged at 3 o'clock this morning, was engineered by Delegate Philip Dorsey, of St. Marys County. The bill had been approved by the Senate after a battle. Dorsey was ably abetted by W. Brooks Matthews, Charles County. Help also came from the Prince Georges and Montgomery delegates, and other quarters, and when the measure was rejected, its opponents joined in hearty applause.

The beer bill for Prince Georges County, as it passed the House, was amended in the Senate by Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer by reducing the license fee from $200 to $150 for "in sale" and $150 to $50 for "off sale." Senator Sasscer explained that the reduced fee will make it possible to consolidate the beer business in the county to two or three large gathering places, as well as cut down cost to consumer.

Chain Store Tax Hiked.

In surveying the mass of legislation that was railroaded through, the following additional actions of importance were noted. Passage of the bill increasing the tax on chain stores, but eliminating exclusive gas and oil stations and provisions; reducing the school levy for the counties sharing in the equalization fund from 67 to 40 cents, and authorizing the governor to cede to the Government a tract of about 20 acres of land on the University of Maryland campus for the proposed experimental laboratory for research work in industrial chemistry, &c.

The House gave final approval to the bill by Senator J. Alan Coad, of St. Marys County, which empowers the board of public works to appropriate sufficient funds for the construction of a replica of the first Statehouse on the site at St. Mary's City where the colonists settled in 1634, this to be one of the features in connection with the tercentennial celebration there next year.

Tobacco Inspection Wins.

The bill by Delegate Kent Mulliken, Prince Georges County, authorizing the George Washington - Wakefield Memorial Association to build a bridge across the lower Potomac River is among the large group of measures now before the governor.

A measure of interest to tobacco growers that passed was that providing for the appointment of two tobacco graders or inspectors at $2,000 each. The appointees would have supervision over all tobacco on the Maryland markets.

About the Show Shops

With NELSON B. BELL

PERHAPS following an entirely personal inclination, and perhaps borrowing a page from Garbo's book—nobody seems to know just which—Katharine Hepburn, who leaped into overnight fame by her performance with John Barrymore and Billie Burke in Clemence Dane's "A Bill of Divorcement," when that worthy play found its way to the screen, and whose new picture, "Christopher Strong," opens at RKO-Keith's tomorrow, has committed herself definitely on the matter of the motion picture industry's usual publicity methods.

Katharine Hepburn

Confronted by an interviewer of some note shortly after the completion and release of her first picture, Miss Hepburn is reported to have braced herself against the luncheon table with her bare knees, assumed a defiant air and declared:

"Talking about myself is revolting to me. It makes me ill for days to talk about myself. For years no one paid any attention to me, no one wanted to know a thing about me. Now, because I've been in a picture, I'm expected to answer any and all personal questions. I'm just not doing it."

Notwithstanding this admirable determination on Miss Hepburn's part, a good deal seems to have leaked out about her.

For instance, it seems to be an almost unanimous consensus of opinion that those who merely attribute "personality" to Miss Hepburn seriously underrate her. When you see her on the screen there is immediately created a vague and intangible consciousness that here is a young woman with something exciting and thrilling about her. It is said that this impression is incalculably heightened when one is in "the presence."

Because she makes so vivid an impression may be the reason she says she doesn't care whether she makes an impression or not. Certainly she does not bother too much about the conventions, according to all reliable report. Her dress, particularly, is unconventional. In headgear she seems to run to old-fashioned knitted things, not unlike the old-time stocking caps. Sometimes the penchant for knit goods extends even to suits, in which case a frowsy old turtleneck sweater usually is an accessory. Her feet, as often as not, will be found to be shod in a well-worn pair of moccasins.

Her hair, so one hears, hangs loosely about her shoulders a great deal of the time and her lips always are heavily carmined. Not a dab of powder, however, ever seems to make any very conscientious effort to hide her countless freckles.

Quite a person, this would be—if all these things are true.

The advanced opening of "Christopher Strong" tomorrow morning, by the way, of course, means that the knell will be sounded for "King Kong" tonight. "King Kong" started off like an all-time record breaker and then, inexplicably—or possibly not—began to drift gradually into a state of innocuous desuetude, where the only records it threatened were at the opposite end of the box-office scale. The picture business is like that!

Speaking of such, it was decided late yesterday to terminate the engagement of "Gabriel Over the White House," at the Palace, tomorrow night, bringing in Gloria Swanson in her latest picture, "Perfect Understanding" on Friday morning.

Today the entire membership of the House of Representatives will attend the first screening of "Gabriel" in a body at 10:30 a. m. By reason of this invitational showing of the picture for the 435 representatives in Congress, the regular daily schedule of performances has been altered, as will be noted upon reference to the Film Time Tables.

As long as we seem to be going in for booking changes in a large way, it might as well be said now as any time that Jimmie Lake has effected an eleventh-hour arrangement whereby a big double show will be presented at the Gayety beginning Sunday afternoon and continuing throughout the ensuing week.

This will consist of the annual recurrence of "The Big Black and White Revue," numbering a total of 60 people, including Cyde Bates and Jack Hunt with their "Bathing Beauties" and Drake and Walker's Colored Revue, featuring a cyclonic jazz band. A special midnight performance will be given on Friday night during the engagement.

Reynold Wallach, house manager at the Rialto, is receiving congratulations from his friends upon becoming a full-fledged American citizen. Mr. Wallach, born in Germany, but thoroughly out of sympathy with the Hitler regime, was granted his final citizenship papers yesterday.

Today was the day when Master Barney McDevitt, ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary on the staff of Mr. Morton Downey, prevalent at the Earle, was to have dashed over to New York to superintend the packing of Mr. Downey's other shirt and extra pair of shoes, against the transcontinental jaunt to the West Coast, come Thursday night, but instead of that comes a wire from Master McDevitt stenciled 4:02 p. m., Monday, saying: "Los Angeles bound, good-by, good luck, God bless you, many thanks. Barney."

I'm reasonably sure of all of it, except the part about the good luck and the divine blessing—the grinning young this-that-and-the-other.

Thursday bears all the earmarks of a busy day for the previewers of the local press. At 1 p. m., as I understand it, City Manager Carter Barron and his cohorts will be hosts at a backstage projection of "The White Sister," costarring Clark Gable and Helen Hayes at Loew's Fox, and at 11 o'clock that night Rodney Collier will unwind "Be Mine Tonight," hailed as the best of all the musicals, at the Rialto.

All of which, I submit, is a lot of wear and tear on the astigmatism!

STRATFORD HALL'S REPAIRING PUSHED

Restoration of Lee Family Home Will Include Entire Property.

Reports on progress being made on the restoration of Stratford Hall, the home of the Lee family in Westmoreland County, Va., were received yesterday morning at a meeting of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, Inc., at the Sulgrave Club.

The restoration work, it was shown, will not only include the home itself, but the entire plantation, reviving in detail the activities of Colonial days, including the docks, shipyard, paddocks, warehouses, mills, stores and blacksmith shop and kitchen garden. The estate when restored will be made self-sustaining, it was pointed out.

Open View to River.

Work that is being done on the gardens was described by Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, of the Virginia Garden Club. Maj. Gen. B. F. Cheatham, U. S. A., retired, who is the resident superintendent of Stratford, gave a general account of the restoration work, laying emphasis on the open view that has been made to the Potomac River.

Recent donations include boxwood and eighteenth century furniture, it was announced. A vote of appreciation was given Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who has been responsible for a great many of the donations. Former Senator Blair Lee, of Maryland, who was present at the meeting, announced that he would donate mint and other plants for the kitchen garden.

Other Leading Workers.

Other active members of committees in charge of restoration work include Mrs. William Cabell Bruce, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Cazenove G. Lee, who heads the Washington group; Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, president of the foundation; Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the new British Ambassador, and Mrs. Joseph E. Washington, who presided at the meeting.

Stratford Hall, 200 years old, was the birthplace of Robert E. Lee, and the home of other members of the Lee family, including Robert Henry Lee, "Lighthorse" Harry Lee, George Washington's favorite officer; William Lee, Arthur Lee and Thomas Ludwell Lee.

MRS. SARAH PENN DIES.

Funeral Rites to Be Held Tomorrow for Resident of Potomac.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Penn, 61, widow of Edward Penn, died yesterday at her home, 219 East Lloyd avenue, Potomac.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Harvey Hitt and Mrs. Carroll Milstead. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the home.

THOMAS H. TRAVERS DEAD.

Alexandria Rail Claim Agent to Be Buried Tomorrow.

Thomas H. Travers, 58, of 209 South Royal street, Alexandria, for many years claim agent for the old Alexandria, Washington & Mount Vernon Railway, died yesterday in Alexandria Hospital. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary J. Travers; a son, George E. Travers, and several sisters.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow from the home.

FAIRFAX EDUCATORS REAPPOINT WOODSON

Superintendent of Schools Is Chosen for New Term of Four Years.

Wilbert T. Woodson, of Fairfax, yesterday was reappointed county superintendent of schools by the School Board of Fairfax County, Va., for a period of four years, beginning July 1. The basic salary of that office is to be $4,000, of which the county will pay $2,995 and the State $1,005. This salary, subject to the State cuts, is based on the school population in the county.

The major portion of yesterday's session was devoted to hearing delegations and reading petitions from the citizens of Mount Vernon District relative to the proposed addition to the Groveton School on the Washington-Richmond highway about 3 miles south of Alexandria.

The majority of the objections to the present Groveton site were because of its location on the heavily traveled Washington-Richmond highway and its being between two commercial student training aviation fields. Several persons spoke in favor of the retention of the small schools in various localities and opposed to the transportation of small children on the school buses.

Superintendent Woodson stated at this time the school board is transporting 1,700 school children daily and that there are less accidents than when the children walked to the schools. Members of the board stated that the school situation in Mount Vernon District was acute and that it was the only district that could lay a special levy for school building at the present time to take care of the southern section of the county and that the site at Groveton was selected tentatively because of its accessibility to the largest number of school children.

A letter was received from the State Board of Education urging the local board to keep the school standards up and opposing reduction in school tax levies.

The board adopted a resolution of regret on the death of George C. White, school trustee from Lee District, last month. A meeting of the county school electoral board will be held Friday at Fairfax to select his successor.

Collection of Licenses To Begin in Arlington

Police Capt. John S. Arnold, of Alexandria, stated yesterday that beginning April 17 the police department will start a thorough canvass for the collection of all city licenses, business, professional and automobile. The time limit for such licenses is April 15.

A special squad of policemen will receive instructions from Commissioner of Revenue Charles H. Callahan the coming week and be prepared to conduct the drive.

Philatelists Meet Tonight.

A meeting will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at 120 South Royal street, Alexandria, of all persons interested in stamp collections, with a view to forming a Stamp Collectors Club. All persons interested, over 16 years of age, are invited.

Red Cross Branch Supper Tomorrow

Alexandria Event Will Be in Honor of Volunteer Relief Workers.

The Alexandria branch of the American Red Cross will give a supper at 6 p. m. tomorrow, in the Westminster Building, when the cards of appreciation will be presented the volunteer workers who have given their time the past winter, both in the distribution of flour and the making of garments.

Miss Margary A. Hall and Mrs. Leroy E. Peabody are in charge of arrangements, and the cost of the entertainment will be voluntary, no Red Cross funds will be used for entertainment purposes.

A speaker will be provided from Red Cross headquarters in Washington, and special entertainment features will be arranged. The supper will be a cooperative economy meal, and while an appetizing menu has been arranged, the cost will be kept to the minimum, and many contributions have been made by merchants to make the affair possible without taxing the committee.

MERCHANTS' COUNTY TAXATION IS URGED

Arlington Federation Group Report Also Favors Other Levies.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

In a comprehensive report submitted to the Arlington County Civic Federation last night by the special committee on economy and tax reform, in which the property tax is declared to be the only tax levied at present by the local government, the following resolutions were adopted:

First, that persons doing business in the county should be required to pay a county tax.

Second, that the county board should proceed forthwith to draft and enact license ordinances imposing taxes in such amounts and upon such subjects as shall seem most wise and equitable.

Third, that the county board should provide a tax upon such motor vehicles for the use of the streets and roads in the county as it shall deem reasonable.

Opposing adoption of the resolutions, Walter U. Varney, delegate and president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, declared that the residents of Arlington County are now taxed to the limit. He laid special stress on the automobile owner who today is taxed four times for owing one. "To add additional tax on merchandise would drive them either out of business or out of the county," he said.

Stephen James, chairman of the Interfederation Conference comprising the District of Columbia, Montgomery County, Md., and Arlington County, commended the local federation in its efforts to study the tax question.

2 ROCKVILLE BANKS PUSH REOPEN PLANS

Stockholders and Depositors Merge Efforts to End Suspensions.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8706 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Temporary Telephone, Wisconsin 4205.

Reorganization of both Rockville banks on a 100 per cent business scale appeared probable last night after meetings held by both banks had resulted in apparent unanimous agreement with the reorganization plans. The banks are the Montgomery County National Bank and the Farmers Banking & Trust Co.

Plans for both banks are similar, deposit by stockholders of an additional 50 per cent of their holdings and acceptance by depositors of certificates of deposit for 15 per cent of their deposits. The certificates of deposit will have practically the same status as prefererd stock and will draw interest at 3 per cent.

Get First Call.

The certificates will be retired and the interest paid as the money is earned by the bank or depreciated holdings regain some of their predepression value. They will have preference over stockholders.

The officers and stockholders of the Montgomery County National Bank, which failed to reopen after the Presidential national bank holiday, met yesterday afternoon at the bank to consider the reorganization plan and unanimously approved. Since practically all of the depositors have signified their willingness and intent to do everything possible to aid in reopening the bank and avoiding the necessity of attempting to liquidate its assets at this time, to the detriment of the community at large, it is practically assured that the plan will be adopted and that the bank will reopen for full business activity on April 15.

Boden Outlines Events.

Depositors of the Farmers Banking & Trust Co. met last night with the officers and stockholders at the Rockville High School to hear details of the plan announced. They appeared to be fully in accord with the program and its acceptance also is considered a foregone conclusion.

William H. Boden, vice president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., of Washington, outlined the events leading up to the bank holiday and expressed the belief that the plan would be successful in replacing the bank on a sound financial basis. He talked at length on the banking situation in general. Albert M. Bouic, vice president of the bank, which reopened after the holiday on a 2 per cent withdrawal basis, presided, and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, also a vice president, detailed plans for reorganization.

County G. O. P. Women Headed by Mrs. English

Mrs. Earl English was elected president of the League of Republican Women of Arlington County at the annual meeting last night.

Mrs. H. F. Prytherch was named first vice president; Mrs. B. H. Gilman, second vice president; Mrs. Walter J. Venske, secretary, and Mrs. Lena Magrum, treasurer.

NATS DUE HOME AFTER BEATING KNOXVILLE, 16-4

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

JOE CRONIN unveils the 1933 edition of the Washington Ball Club before the home folks this afternoon with the Boston Braves as the opposition.

Chief among the objects of curiosity will be the very much Dutch outfield of Heinie Manush, Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte, who represent in collaboration with Cronin himself the powerhouse of the Nats' offensive.

And appearing for the first time in Washington livery will be the accomplished left-hander, Earl Whitehill, who sent many an ache through the hearts of Washington fandom when he was serving 'em for the Detroit Tigers.

Behind the bat will be the unfamiliar figure of Luke Sewell, who would have had a lifetime average of close to .400 had he been able to face Washington pitching exclusively during his term with Cleveland.

Other New Figures In Nats' Livery

In Washington uniforms also will be another former nemesis of the Nats, Walter Stewart, who was chiefly responsible for the mastery that the St. Louis Browns were able to exercise over the Nats; Cliff Bolton, whose catching and batting helped Chattanooga to its 1932 pennant, and Bob Boken, the kid from Kansas City, who showed up the infielding of the highly-touted Cecil Travis to the extent that Travis was cut adrift at Chattanooga on the club's trip here.

But a familiar figure will be seen at every infield post. Joe Kuhel, safely ensconced now at first base with no competition from Joe Judge, is the beneficiary of another year's seasoning in the majors and the position is his to have and to hold until a protracted slump. The confidence displayed in his ability needs no better commentary than the fact that the Nats are carrying no other first baseman this year.

Myer Most Improved Second Baseman.

Disporting himself at second base will be the lithesome figure of Buddy Myer, whom Clark Griffith classes the most improved second baseman in the league and who, without improvement, ranks as one of the most dependable second sackers of the era, with a flair for hitting that rounds him out as a main cog in Cronin's machine.

On the other side of second base is Joe Cronin, the most noble experiment of the 1933 season. This 26-year-old youth who has been saddled with the duties of managing the club was selected for the dash, fire and baseball acumen that he has displayed since his rookie days and will be out to demonstrate that his play in the field and at bat has in no wise suffered as a result of his responsibilities. He can slump 20 points at bat and still be the most valuable shortstop in the league.

The original forgotten man will be guarding third base for the Nats. The powers that be on the Washington Club have assigned third base to Ossie Bluege and then promptly forgotten that the job existed, safe in the knowledge that Bluege was there or thereabouts.

Mrs. Max Baer Sues Boxer for Divorce

Sacramento, Calif, April 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dorothy Dunbar Baer filed suit for a divorce today from Max Baer, heavyweight boxer, at present en route to New York, where he is signed to fight Max Schmeling. She alleges cruelty.

The petition related Baer and his wife separated March 27. They were married in Reno July 9, 1931.

A breach of promise suit filed against Baer by a Livermore, Calif., girl did not prompt the divorce suit, Mrs. Baer's attorney said.

BOWLERS BREAK INTO BIG TEN

Columbus, Ohio, April 4 (A.P.).—The American Bowling Congress continued to yield large totals today when another change was recorded among the ten high leaders in the doubles division.

Scoring games of 506, 386 and 404, Emmanuel Wagner and Al Hansen, of Elizabeth, N. J., rolled into a tie for sixth place with Bill Levitz and Fred Ashton, of Jackson, Mich. The 506 opening session is the high doubles game in the tournament to date.

Huttick Easy Victor Over Kennedy

Montanan's Face Cut to Ribbons; Decision Is Unanimous.

By DAVE HERMAN.

ARTHUR HUTTICK, handsome 22-year-old German-American, one of the most terrific body punchers ever to invade these parts, won his way into the hearts of Portner's fight customers last night in his debut performance with a smashing attack that earned him a popular, unanimous decision over Les Kennedy, rugged Montanan, in their 8-round headline match.

Plowing his two fists into Kennedy's ribs, kidneys, heart and solar plexus with comparative ease and showing ability to crash through the Montanan's defense for stiff blows on the jaw and face, the pugnacious Huttick piled up a comfortable margin on points in the early rounds and coasted home the winner, despite a strong stand by his adversary in the final round.

Small Crowd Sees Card.

One of the smallest crowds of the season (possibly 1,200) witnessed the downfall of Kennedy, conqueror of Donald (Red) Barry, the District heavyweight who speared Huttick into defeat at Holyoke, Mass., last November. So-called ringside experts agreed that it was the best heavyweight tussle in Portner's history.

Kennedy was a battered and beaten man at the finish. From side to side his body was as red as fire from the continual pounding. Both of his eyes were puffed from severe gashes in the eyebrows and a number of stitches were taken above his left optic.

Some of Huttick's blows were propelled with such speed and force that when his gloves collided with Kennedy's body there was a walloping sound that could be heard from one end of the arena to the other. Little wonder this former Golden Gloves and international amateur cracked two of Barry's ribs and worked on other able heavyweights with devastating effect.

Huttick in Front From Start.

Huttick was the aggressor from the start, and lived up to all advance dope as to his body punching ability. There was no let up in his body attack, once he got started. Three times he assailed Kennedy's ribs in the second, and before the round was over had smacked the Montanan flush on the jaw with his left. Kennedy came out to meet Huttick at his own game in the third, but the latter was too smart, leaping in furiously and flooding him with punches.

The crowd gave Huttick a splendid ovation in the fourth, while in the next round he had Les wobbly from a right to the body and a clout on the jaw. Huttick changed his attack for a moment in the seventh, opening with a left to the jaw, but Kennedy flashed two lefts plum on his face. Before the round was over Kennedy's left eye was bleeding profusely. Before the final gong sounded, Kennedy's face was a mass of crimson, as the claret flowed from cuts above his eyes.

Main Bout Saves Show.

If it hadn't been for the brulsing encounter between Huttick, who weighed 180, and Kennedy, 191, the card would not have been so hot. Nick Antonelli, sporting a three-week-old mustache, knocked out Jackie Lamar, of Cleveland, after 1 minute of fighting of the first round, burying a tremendous left in Lamar's solar plexus and snapping him on the jaw just as he dropped. Lamar went out as if struck by lightning.

Breadon Denies Trade, But Admits Possibility

St. Louis, April 4 (A.P.).—Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, denied today there was any truth in a rumor that the Redbirds were considering a deal with the Chicago Cubs involving the exchange of "Pepper" Martin and southpaw Jim Mooney, of the Cardinals, for Infielder Mark Koenig, of the Cubs, and some cash.

Breadon said such a deal is "out of the question." He added, however, that there is a possibility of a deal with the Cubs, although no overtures have been made to the Chicago Club.

World of Athletics Mourns Lieut. Calnan, Fencer; Led Olympic Oath.

NEW YORK, April 4 (U.P.).—The world of athletics today mourned the probable death of Lieut. George C. Calnan, of the U. S. Navy, who represented the athletes as he took the Olympic oath at the Los Angeles games last summer. He was on the Akron in its tragic crash off Barnegat last night.

Last summer at the Los Angeles Stadium, Calnan, the famous Navy fencer, stood on the field clad in white and spoke the words for the athletes of all nations, which symbolize the amateur ideals of the Olympic games.

He captained the United States Olympic fencing team last year, and was national foils champion six times, epee leader twice, and considered one of the best fencers ever seen in America.

He excelled in the sport at the Naval Academy, where he was graduated in 1919. He was married recently.

Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., tonight paid tribute to the accomplishments and character of Lieut. Calnan.

"He was the ideal of American sportsmanship," Ferris said. "When he placed third in the epee at Amsterdam in 1928, he was the first American ever to place in that Olympic event."

Investigation Gains Final Of A. A. U.

Conner's Extra Period Goal Wins From Miller's, 31-29.

TOMMY CONNORS tossed a field goal in the ebbing moments of an extra 5-minute period that sank into the basket with a distinct and pleasant sounding swish to give his team, Bureau of Investigation, a 31-29 decision over the Miller Furniture quintet in the feature game of last night's District A. A. U. tournament card at Tech High School. The victory advanced the sleuths to the final round of the unlimited class in the tourney sponsored by The Post, where it will meet Sholl's tomorrow night for the title.

Prior to this, St. Martin's 100-pound champions of last season, grown up to 115-pounders, won their second A. A. U. title by whipping the Times-Herald five of Alexandria, 18-13; and Bethesda-Chevy Chase annexed the junior girls' crown, swamping Bennings A. C., 44-18.

Just for good measure the fans were treated to another hair-raising thriller in the last game of the program when United Typewriter Grays came from behind to trim Delaware & Hudson, 42-39 in the Community Center League play-off.

Billy Harris, diminutive Roosevelt High School star, presented the Millers with a 17-to-11 lead in the first half, chiefly through his ability to score from the charity stripe, but the Sleuths rallied in the final half and caught their opponents in the fag end of the regular game, knotting the count at 27 to 27.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase Takes Early Lead.

With Winkler and Lee tossing goals from just beyond midcourt, Bethesda-Chevy Chase forged ahead of the Benning sextet to a 18-9 lead in the first half, a margin they safely retained throughout the game.

Winkler caged the sphere for 10 field goals and four fouls and Lee came through with eight goals from the floor for all but four of the winner's points.

Bennings could not compete with

Two Titles at Stake In A. A. U. Event Tonight

Action in the tournament will be resumed tonight, when Mount Rainier and the French A. C. battle it out for the 130-pound class, and Knights of Columbus and Olmsted Grill go to bat for the 145-pound crown. If your heart is weak don't go, because these two games loom as nerve-wreckers.

Under the skillful tutelage of Carson Myers, Mount Rainier has rapidly developed into a smooth-working unit. The team has surprised even its most ardent supporters by its fine work in the tournament.

But in the French Club they will meet an opponent just as skillful and just as determined to win the coveted laurels. Raedy, Hoffberg and Colbert are the team's outstanding players.

Boasting a winning streak of 18 games, Olmsted Grill goes into action favored to retain the crown it won last year. Knights of Columbus rates highly, but followers of the game believe the Grillmen just a little too experienced for them.

Victories over strong unlimited teams have been won by the team. Jake Understein, Dave Dantzig and Snooky Kemp are the outstanding members of the team. Bubby Kissal, Artie Nock, Chissie Caspar and Jessie Black are the backbone of the Casey offense.

Schedule of Games In A. A. U. Tourney

TONIGHT.

TOMORROW.

Last 3 Games Net Team 42 Runs

Schulte Slams Homer and Single in 9-Run Rally in Fourth.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 4. That little $25,000 investment in muscle oiling and notoriety, known as the Southern training trip, came to a hilarious ending here today in Smithson Stadium when Washington won its last road show game of the spring, beating the Knoxville Smokies, 16 to 4.

Fit, fresh and already famous, the 1933 Nats left here tonight with the assurance of being delivered in Washington tomorrow morning at 11:35 o'clock, provided the R. F. C. does not foreclose on the railroad in the meantime.

Nats Slamming The Ball.

Scoring 42 runs in their last three games without the benefit of Heinie Manush, skyrockets Washington's stock and removes the last vestige of doubt that the current team is the least bit anemic up at the plate. While some credit must naturally be taken away because such magnificent run scoring was extracted from hinterland pitching, the fact remains that the Nats are banging the ball with unholy fervor, something they have never done before, hinterland pitching or not.

Today's game was loose. Knoxville scored first, one run in the third inning off Tommy Thomas. It seems that Glenn Bolton, the Smokies' pitcher, doubled to right and was singled home by Bobby Goff. Tommy had allowed no hits until Bolton's unprecedented blow.

Washington came back with a gentle little nine-run rally in the fourth, which kinda put us ahead. Schulte started things, cracking a single to left. Bluege bounced one over Goff's head at third. Sewell singled Fred home and Tommy Thomas beat out a perfect push hit, aimed at the spot their second baseman should have been covering; Kuhel flied deep, Bluege scoring on the throw in. Then Buddy Myer hooked a full brassie shot to left center, scoring Sewell. Rice lined to right and Cronin singled home Thomas and Myer. Goslin punched a single to right, scoring Sam and then Fred Schulte clouted a tremendous home run over the wall in left center, shooing home Goose and Cronin ahead of him.

Bolton Humanely Removed.

With 9 runs already scored, the Smokies' management decided that if they did not watch out the Nats were going to get onto the pitching of Glenn Bolton, so they removed him to a glue factory and put in Bernie Edwards.

Edwards was also a prize. In the sixth inning he achieved the unique record of throwing 19 straight balls. A Nat, most any of them, would stand up, duck four straight pitches and walk to first, whence they would be pushed to second, third and then home by the obliging Edwards. 5 runs, 4 of them walked in.

After leading Edwards away by the hand, the Smokies unearthed a slightly fossilized flinger (after all, this is Smithsonian Stadium), named Grady Adkins, who pitched for the White Sox in the bronze age. He came into the box and without benefit of bull pen steaming up threw a strike over the plate, against Moe Berg, the strange sight of which—coming as it did on a steady diet of balls—sent a thunderous ovation cascading out of the stands.

D. C. HANDBALL ACE BOWS.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, April 4.—Jack Schwartz was defeated by Jack Broder, Chicago star, in the second round of the National A. A. U. handball championships in straight games, 21 to 7, 21 to 18.

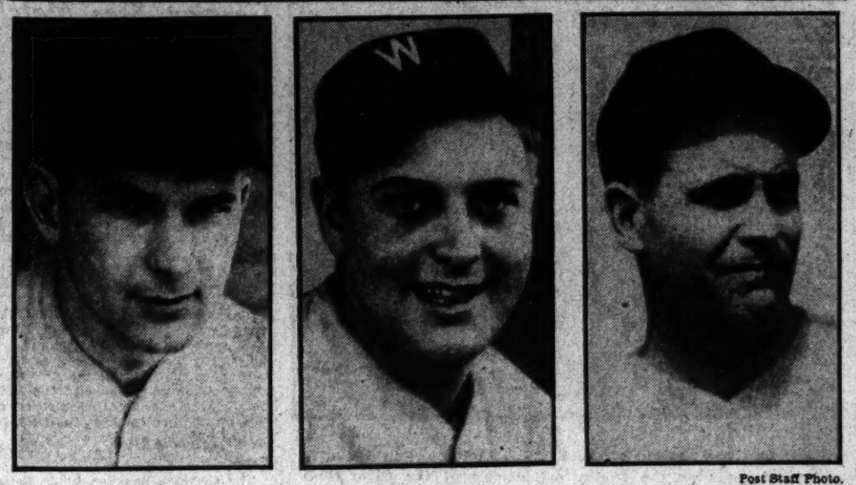

The Washington handballer had trouble with his left hand shots and seemed to have a tendency to floor many of his kill shots that proved costly in points.

POST MORTEMS . . .

If boxing is to be legalized in Arlington County, C. E. JAPANYOUTH PINEHURST WINNER

Son of Prince Defeats Ryerson by 1 Up in North-South Upset.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4 (A. P.).—Fumitaka Konoye, son of Prince Fumimaro Konoye of Japan, registered an upset by defeating the veteran golfer, Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., 1 up, in the second round of the annual North and South amateur here today, but other matches resulted true to form.

Konoye, a Lawrenceville, N. J., prep school student, went out in 36 to stand 3 up at the turn. Coming in he lost his putting touch and Ryerson squared the match on the seventeenth, the Japanese lad needed a five on the final hole, but Ryerson put his second shot in a trap, overshot the green, and three-putted to lose the hole and the match.

Warner Wins Uphill Battle.

M. Pierpont Warner, of New Haven, the defending champion, staged an uphill battle to defeat Richard Tufts, of Pinehurst, 1 up. Warner, a Yale student, was two down at the turn, but Tufts dropped off his game on the in-9.

Jack Toomer, of Jacksonville, the Florida champion, had it easy to win over R. A. Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, 6 and 4. Toomer played out the bye holes and completed his round with a medal of 70, 1 under par.

Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, was not extended to eliminate N. E. Edgerton, Raleigh, N. C., by a 5 and 4 score.

Tommy Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y., remained in the running by turning in a 5 and 3 win over Howard G. Phillips, of Pinehurst. Johnny Parker, of Orange, N. J., trimmed James A. Downes, of Pittsburgh, 1 up.

Jimmy Robbins, Philadelphia, advanced by default of Eric Thomson, of St. Andrews, N. B., who was unable to play because of illness.

Lacrosse Reserves Lacking at Maryland

Lack of capable reserves, in addition to a defense that appears rather uncertain and shaky, is going to be a big handicap to the University of Maryland Lacrosse Team this season.

This was demonstrated in a practice tilt April 1 with the Varsity Club of Baltimore, in which the Old Liners outscored the clubmen, 4 to 1, but were none too impressive.

Cole for Mitchell, Poppelman for Wood, and Thomas for Hockensmith, were three of four changes made, and Maryland's strength is represented in the stickmen named.

Gotham Ring Body O. K.'s Show Dates

Fears War Between Promoters; No Change in June 1 Date for Dempsey.

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission today took steps to prevent any possibility of a "war" between the rival boxing promoters, Madison Square Garden and Jack Dempsey, this summer in awarding the dates for outdoor ring shows for this season.

The commission refused to reconsider its action in granting Dempsey Thursday, June 1, the date he had asked for the Max Schmeling-Max Baer heavyweight bout, which is to take place in one of the New York baseball parks. The Garden, however, was given every other Thursday night during the summer, while Dempsey was given the Wednesday spot after June 1.

Ranger Hockeyists Down Maple Leafs

New York, April 4 (A.P.).—The New York Rangers, young, fresh and speedy, made short work of the tired Toronto Maple Leafs tonight, winning the first game of the final play-off series for the Stanley Cup, 5 to 1.

A crowd of some 17,000 fans, seeing their only game of the finals, came to cheer and remained to sympathize with the Leafs. Worn from the National League championship series with the Boston Bruins, which wound up only last night in an overtime game that lasted nearly three hours in actual playing time, the Leafs didn't have a chance. They were outskated, outshot and even outroughed when they tried to tire their rivals a bit.

Tall, black-haired young Cecil Dillon, who bids fair to set a new play-off scoring record, again was the spearhead of the Ranger attack, with "Iron Man" Murray Murdoch as his chief assistant.

Terps Plan Busy Day At Navy on April 22

April 22 will be an active day for University of Maryland athletes at Annapolis, if a Old Liners meeting the Navy in track and lacrosse. Navy will be a big favorite in the track meet, while the lacrosse tilt appears to be an even affair, although the Old Liners have downed the Middies for three straight years.

An interesting angle to the track meet will be the meeting of Earl Widmyer, Maryland's flashy sophomore sprinter, and John Waybright, Navy's ace, in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. They are among the leading sprinters in the country. Widmyer outshone Waybright as a football player last fall, the Old Liner leading his team in scoring with 39 points.

MARYLAND NETMEN GOOD.

University of Maryland's Tennis Team showed more potential strength than in years in holding Navy to a 3-6 score last Saturday with Maurice Goubeau, No. 1 player of the 1932 Old Line squad, missing because of an injured ankle.

TRIPLE PLAY IS MADE BY BRAVES

RICHMOND, Va., April 4 (U.P.).—Although outhit, 15 to 12, the Boston Braves defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 6, in an exhibition baseball game today.

The Braves executed a triple play in the second inning. After Wright and Bissonette both singled, Outen lined to Gyselman, the shortstop, who doubled Wright off second. Gyselman then threw to first base, catching Bissonette for the third out.

Cronin's Club And Braves Play Here

Boy Manager Unveils New Creation Today for Local Fans.

Whitehill to Twirl; Two Newcomers in Outfield.

HOME! Their pulses quickened as smokeless Washington rises phoenix-like out of the horizon, the band of rough-hewn gentlemen known as the Washington Baseball Club comes back to the city today which their contracts say is their home.

There's not a live Washingtonian in the bunch, but they have grown to look upon Pennsylvania avenue as their Main street, their Elm avenue, and their Clancy alley. At their head is a rosy-cheeked Irish kid known to them as Jo-jo, at 26 already one of the game's most romantic and illustrious figures, who will send his team against the Boston Braves at Griffith Stadium at 3 p. m.

It's a grand team. All the cool engineering beauty of modern baseball is there—plus a dash of color, for a change, and a manager capable of instilling the fire and dash of the long dead days of 1924 and '25.

Welcome Expected at Union Station.

In the echoing Union Station will gather wives, capable young girls they are, too, who speak the language of baseball and know only too well the consequences of sore arms, sweethearts, and that ever unquenchable sprinkling of burghers, who—bless their hearts—look upon the club with the same awe and reverence as do open-mouthed provincials who stand dumb in the presence of the Declaration of Independence yellowing on the walls of the Library of Congress.

Wasting no time to show the citizens one of the most outstanding beauties of the violent winter trading, Joe Cronin today will start Earl Whitehill, rubber-armed left-hander culled from the ranks of the Detroit Tigers. Fred Schulte, big, silent Dutchman, will patrol the far reaches of center field, and in right field will be lambasting Goose Goslin, who pines for and can expect once again the good-natured raillery of those loyal and dusky guardians of that region.

Same Old Infield On Job.

The infield remains as of old, with Joe Kuhel intrenched for keeps on first base, the superb fielding Ossie Bluege on third, and the league's outstanding double-play manufacturers, Joe Cronin and Buddy Myer in the middle. Heinie Manush, one of the game's greatest batters, will be out in left, and Luke Sewell, slow, steady, iron-armed veteran, behind the plate. And all of them backed by a substantial army of young and ancient reserves.

Boston's National League Club, the hoary old Braves, with the subdued Arthur "Once the Great" Shires in their fold, will be the proposed victims of Washington today, followed tomorrow and the next day by Brooklyn—and Joe Judge's farewell appearance in the city that rewarded his tireless grace with honor and esteem.

Hagen-Smith Named Ryder Team Managers

Chicago, April 4 (A.P.).—Capt. Walter Hagen and Horton Smith will do all the managing for America's 1933 Ryder Cup team when it invades England for the international matches next June. It has been customary to send a nonplaying manager of the Professional Golfers Association with the team, but because of economic conditions no official will accompany the squad this year. Hagen will captain the team and Smith will act as secretary and treasurer. Albert R. Gates, business administrator of the P. G. A., doesn't plan to go.

Barring a long overtime match in the United States open in Chicago, June 8-10, the team will sail on the Aquitania at midnight, June 14. Upon arrival in England the players will immediately go to Southport for practice.

"Everything is set for the matches," Gates said. "Each player will be given $1,000 in cash for the trip and the money is in the bank."

Slieve's Pride Winner In Tanforan Feature

BOOKIES REVISE WINTER DERBY ODDS SHARPLY DOWNWARD

Smart Money Shows for Repaid

Johnson Colt Drops From 25-1 Shot to 15-1 in Books.

May Oust Ladysman as Favorite; Boilermaker 20-1.

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, April 4 (U.P.).—The arrival of considerable sums of what is known to the trade as "right money" has resulted in Commissioners Tom Shaw, of New York, and Tom Kearney, of St. Louis, dropping the winter book odds on half a dozen of the more prominent Kentucky Derby candidates.

The biggest lump of "right money" (money from customers supposedly in a position to know) arrived with instructions to play it on Repaid, James F. Johnson's sound 3-year-old. So today Repaid was no longer a 25-to-1 shot, but was down to 15 in both the major books. This price made the horse second choice for the classic, only Ladysman (10 to 1 by Shaw, 8 to 1 by Kearney) being better liked.

There is a strong possibility that Johnson's hope will oust Ladysman as favorite before long, for there has been little betting on the latter recently. Apparently the boys want to see how Ladysman, who was "fired" during the winter, responds to the treatment before laying out any more.

Others Revised Downward.

Repaid was not the only entry to get "right money" support in the past few days. H. C. Phipps' Enthusiast (500 to 1); Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch (25 Shaw, 30 Kearney); W. S. Kilmer's Sun Apollo (200); F. A. Griffin's Sarada (20) and C. V. Whitney's The Darb (20 Shaw, 25 Kearney) also came in for creditable support.

Neither of the Toms think much of a filly's chances in the race. Swivel, probably the best of the five gals entered in the race, is quoted at 50 to 1 by Kearney and 30 to 1 by Shaw. And both commissioners report few, if any, takers.

This is in striking contrast with last year's books when Top Flight was a strong favorite and her owners were positive she would join Regret as the only filly ever to win the blue ribbon event of the American turf.

Bradley's Long Ago Down to 20 to 1.

Both commissioners have full respect for Col. Ed Bradley's ability to send first-class colts to the post. The colonel's Boilermaker, which not so long ago was 30 to 1, is down to 20 to 1 and, in the opinion of Shaw, is a sweet bet at that price.

Charley O.'s smashing win in the recent Florida Derby caused Kearney to lower the figure on the horse from 25 to 15 to 1, but Shaw still is offering 25 on the pride and joy of the R. M. Eastman estate. Many handicappers regard Charley O. at 25 to 1 as the most attractive proposition in the winter books, and it would not be surprising to see his odds dwindle rapidly. Certainly Charley O. demonstrated his ability to go the derby route when he negotiated the nine panels of the Florida Derby in close to track record time.

G. U. Prep Trounces Emerson Nine, 8 to 3

Playing airtight ball behind the big league twirling of McNamara, Georgetown Prep successfully inaugurated its season at Garrett Park yesterday, winning over Emerson Institute by a score of 8-3. The teams exhibited midseason form and were charged with only two errors.

After both had scored a run in the first inning, Georgetown Prep assumed a one-run lead in the third, to which it added three in the sixth and as many more in the seventh.

Emerson pounced on McNamara for its last runs in the sixth inning, but he steadied himself and finished the fray in good style. McNamara also led his team's attack, connecting for two hits in three trips to the plate, including a double.

Reserves-Millers To Battle Tonight

All Southeast, including Congress Heights and Anacostia, will turn out tonight to witness the basket ball game between Miller Furniture Company and Naval Reserve at Hine Junior High School at 8:15. This is the semifinal game in the Southeast Community Center tournament, the winner to play Friendship House next Monday.

This is the first time this season that the two teams have met and the fur is bound to fly. The Naval Reserves, with Knocky Thomas and Waverly Wheeler, of Technical High, claim that they are going to win from both the Millers tonight and Friendship House in the finals.

Miller Furniture Co., having in its lineup two other high school stars, Harris and Sherman, of Roosevelt, are just as cocky in regard to the result and also claim that when they meet Friendship, the only team to beat them in the tournament, the result will be entirely reversed. The winner of the championship will be handed a beautiful silver trophy.

Harvard Lacrosse Team at St. John's

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—The season of big time college lacrosse in Annapolis will get under way tomorrow afternoon with the St. John's College ten meeting the stickmen of Harvard University.

The Harvard squad, now on a Southern trip, reached Annapolis last night and will be the guest of the Johnnies for the next few days while using the college field for workouts. The Crimson will meet Navy Saturday in the opening game of the season for the latter.

The St. John's-Harvard game should develop into a keen contest as the system of play of the teams is likely to be very much the same, owing to the fact that Bobby Pool, rated one of the best of college players, who learned his lacrosse under Coach Dinty Moore of St. John's a few years ago, is now coaching at the Cambridge institution. The Johnnies won their opening game last Saturday from Washington College, 6 to 1.

The baseball team of Annapolis Midshipmen will entertain Richmond University tomorrow in their second game of the season.

Seven Eastern Intercollegiate Conference Frays Are Scheduled.

Georgetown University's completed basket ball schedule for next season, numbering twenty games, seven of them Eastern Intercollegiate Conference frays, was announced yesterday. It represents the stiffest test a Hilltop quintet has ever been called upon to meet.

The card embraces games with Yale and Princeton, who finished in that order in the Eastern Intercollegiate League (not to be confused with the conference of which Georgetown is a member) during the past season.

Both service academies, St. John's of Brooklyn, Canisius College, Manhattan, and Pittsburgh also will be played.

December 6, Western Maryland, home; 9, University of Pittsburgh, away; 13, Princeton, away. January 5, Manhattan U., away; 6, New York U., away; 10, William and Mary College, home; 12, Carnegie Tech, away; 13, West Virginia U., away; 17, Naval Academy, away; 20, Temple U., home; 30, Yale, away; 31, West Point, away. February 1, Brooklyn K. of C., away; 5, West Virginia U., home; St. John's of Brooklyn, home; 17, Temple U., away; 20, Canisius, home; 24, Pittsburgh, home. March 2, Loyola of Baltimore, home; 10, Carnegie Tech, home.

Eastern High Listed By Lee-Jackson Nine

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., April 4.—Fourteen baseball games will be played by Jack Watt's Lee-Jackson High school nine, champions of Fairfax County for the past two seasons.

Emmett O'Malley, veteran slab artist, has been elected as captain of the team. Besides pitching he will fill in other berths. Ayres, who played third base last year, has been added to the mound corps.

The infielders with the Generals are: Shepherd, Cole, Linton, Painter, Beahm, and Sthely. In the outer garden McGowan, Morris, Doyle, and Rouse will perform. Lewis and Hawes will be behind the bat.

April 11, Charlotte Hall, home; 13, Herndon, away; 18, Falls Church, home; 21, Alexandria, away; 25, McLean, home; 28, Washington and Lee, away.

May 1, Falls Church, away; 3, Eastern, home; 11, Eastern, away; 12, Herndon, home; 17, Washington and Lee, home; 19, Charlotte Hall, away; 30, Alexandria, home.

Navy Again Lists Virginia U. Boxers

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—The University of Virginia, one of two institutions to conquer the Annapolis Midshipmen in the boxing ring in the fourteen years of the sport at Annapolis, appears on Navy's schedule for next season, and the Middies will visit Charlottesville for the meet. This will be their only trip away.

A strong and well-balanced schedule of seven matches for the Tars was announced today by the Navy Athletic Association. Competition with Penn State will be resumed, after a lapse of two years. This will be welcome news to college ring fans, as the Lions and Middies have always been at the top of the heap in college ring circles, until Syracuse stepped in to take title honors during the last two years.

Louisiana State, which sent a strong team to Annapolis during the late season, will not be met next year, nor will Pittsburgh, which made its first visit here, and New Hampshire.

Another feature of the schedule will be the match with University of West Virginia, which turned out a corking good team last season.

The Middies will open with Western Maryland, another strong rival, on January 11, and the rest of the schedule follows:

February 3, University of North Carolina; 10, Virginia; 17, Penn State; 24, West Virginia; March 3, Washington and Lee; 10, Syracuse.

Londos Bout Now Aim of Kampfer

"I've met Londos several times before," Kampfer confesses, "and fell short. I'm so convinced I can do better next time, though, that I'll willingly toss anything Joe Turner lines up for me in order to get him."

Holds Jones in High Esteem.

"This 'hook scissors' is something new to me," Hans insists, "and Paul figures to give me trouble."

The real punch may be reserved for the scheduled 45-minute semifinal in which Ernie Dusek and Everett Marshall, two likely championship contenders, clash. Both boast records sufficiently impressive to class them among rasslings elite.

Central Lacrossers Bow to Severn Preps

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—Lacrosse teams of Severn Prep School of Severna Park, Md., and Central High School of Washington put up a highly creditable exhibition of the new style game at Severna today, the Severn lads winning by a score of 9 to 6.

The Smiths dominated the scoring, as well as individual play of the game. Severn's player by that name tallied five goals, while Smith, of Central, was credited with 3.

The game was hotly contested throughout. Smith scored for Severn soon after play was opened, but his namesake of the Washingtonians soon evened the count. The teams battled on even terms through the remainder of the first quarter, but Severn held a 2-to-1 edge in the second period. The Severns put the game away in the third frame by some dashing play during which they netted the ball four times to two for the invaders. Central took a brace in the final stages to hold the Preps on even terms, each scoring once.

Heavyweight—Dr. W. Cardwell vs. C. Fagan. J. C. Ballard, captain of the "Y" team and present D. C. A. A. U. champion, draws a bye.

Reconstruction Five Enters League Finals

With Estes and Smith leading the attack, Reconstruction Finance Corporation tossers defeated War Department A. G. O., 39-30, last night to win their way into the final Departmental League championship series with Patent Office. The winners led all the way, but were obliged to check an A. G. O. rally near the end to gain the verdict.

Burt Shotton Sees Phillies in Thick Of Battle for National League Flag

By BURT SHOTTON
(Written for the Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, April 4 (A.P.).—Strengthened by the deals we put over during the winter and with the added experience of last season, my ball club, I believe, has improved enough to win the National League pennant.

The Phillies proved last season they could play winning baseball. The experience gained from being in the race was invaluable. Even when we were going at our best last summer, I did not claim the pennant, although I hoped we could win it.

I could not have said we would finish first and been sincere. This season I can say honestly we have the stuff.

Finn Has Shown Power.

Mickey Finn, obtained from Brooklyn, has shown in spring training he is a steady fielder and while not a long hitter, he is always dangerous at bat. He will plug up our former weakness at second base.

Gus Dugas, another new man whom we got from Pittsburgh, usually has been played in the outfield, but we are developing him into a first baseman and he looks better there every day. He is young and fast, a powerful hitter and an aggressive, hustling player. On the other side of the diamond we have Bartell and Whitney, and I would not trade my infield for any other in the National League.

With Chuck Kline in right, Hal Lee in left and Chick Fullis or Freddy Brickell in center, we will have a fast, hard-hitting outfield. Lee was just beginning to find himself last season and should be much better this time. Fullis, another player obtained in the winter trading, is so much to my liking I hardly think George Davis will be missed.

Up to the Pitchers, Says Burt.

Much of our success depends upon the pitching. The showing of our pitchers this spring has been highly encouraging. Flint Rhem and Jim Elliott appear to be coming along in especially good shape. Elliott won 19 games for our club in 1931, but was handicapped last year by illness and a back injury. He seems to be in better health this year than at any time since joining our team.

Our other pitchers are doing well and some of them will benefit greatly by last year's experience.

We have one rookie who seems sure to help the staff, Frank Pearce, purchased from Nashville. He has never been with a big league club before, but knows how to handle himself and has good control.

In Virgil Davis we have one of the best catchers in the league. Al Todd, a rookie last year, has improved greatly and should give Davis plenty of assistance.

One of the greatest reasons we are stronger is that we have better reserves than at any time since I took charge of the team. Delker, Mallon and Warner are all capable infielders and Brickell and Heathcote experienced outfielders.

A. A. U. SWIM HONORS AIM OF G. W.

HEADED by their pair of aces, Max Rote and Dyer Ghormley, local record holders in the sprints and breaststroke, respectively, George Washington University's swimmers will make a determined bid for individual and team honors in the annual District of Columbia A. A. U. swimming championships scheduled Friday and Saturday nights in the Shoreham Hotel pool. This is the largest group entry ever filed by G. W. U. in any A. A. U. competition.

Rote, who hasn't been defeated in three years of collegiate competition in his specialties, the 50 and 100 yard dashes, holds District records in these events at 25 seconds flat and 56 4-5 seconds.

Ghormley Holds Mark For Breaststroke.

Following are the Colonial entries:

Max Rote, 50 and 100 yard dashes, 200-yard relay and 300-yard relay; Dyer Ghormley, 220-yard breast stroke and relays; Karl Vartia, 100-yard dash and relays; Edwin Herbert, 50-yard dash and relay; Paul McKinnis, 50-yard dash and relay; Charles McMillen, 50-yard dash and relay; Robert MacMullen, 150-yard back stroke and relay; Melmon Burnside, 50-yard dash, 220-yard swim and relay; James Kinsler, 220-yard breast stroke and relay; Dave Agey, 220-yard breast stroke; Henry Vedder, 50 and 100-yard dashes and relay; John Hain, 150-yard back stroke and relay, and Milton Flocks, 50-yard dash.

INVESTIGATION WINS IN A. A. U. THRILLER

the smooth teamwork of the opposition, but fought valiantly. Whitney and Abelman led the defeated team in scoring.

St. Martin's exhibited too much polish for the plucky little courtmen from Alexandria to gain the championship. Scoring was rather evenly divided, although Roland, Boyle and Jenkins, with 4 points, headed the list.

Times-Herald trailed by a score of 14-9 at the half and was held at a safe distance over the remainder of the route by the close guarding of their opponents. Williams, with 5 points, was high scorer for the Virginians.

D. & H. ran up a 24-12 lead on the Grays in the first half of their game, but was unable to retain its advantage in the second half when the eventual winners rallied with a will that would not be denied.

Hunt and Latona led the attack that gradually pulled the Grays up on even terms with their rival and finally sent them on to victory. Garber, who scored 16 points, and Beach, with 8, were the mainstays of the D. & H. offensive.

Hitting the Headpin

Edith Orpin, with 138 and 380, carried off top honors in the Internal Revenue Ladies' League last night. Stenographers shot a high team set of 1,483, while B. P. A. had the best team game, a 516.

L. G. won team honors in the Washington Ladies' League with a 578 and 1,589. Mildred Miskelley was the individual star with 140 and 359.

In the Ladies' Lutheran League at Arcadia, Butt and Gerver featured with 119 and 285, respectively. Christ Church won team honors with 459, while Takoma spilled the maples for a 1,352 total.

F. Heinrick shot a 143 and Cummings a 373 to annex high honors in the Men's Lutheran League. Takoma Blues took the team prize with 579 and 1,666.

Bernhardt stole the show in the Columbia Heights League with a 144 and 386. Swann's posted a team game of 591 and Kools Drinks a 1,717 for high set honors.

Rinaldi Tailors took two from B. & O. in the National Capital League. Conick's 138 and 391 were high for the night.

Norton's 127 and Williamson's 345 featured the Supervising Architects League. The Romans team posted a 581 and 1,618.

Tied for high game honors in Insurance League were Weikel and Strunk with 123 each. Boyd's 352 won him set prize. Aetna had 572 and 1,691, the latter being a season's high team record.

Mrs. Jennie Malcolm shot a 117 and 323 for high honors in the Eastern Star Ladies' League. The Ruth team was in front in team honors with 508 and 1,445.

Charles Ferguson hit the maples for a 139 game and set of 360 to lead the bowlers in Section C of the Holy Name League. Holy Comforter, winning two from Nativity to go into second place, posted a 578 and 1,588 for team honors.

Phoenix and Fred Watson copped all the honors in the Odd Fellows League. The team figures were 544 and 1,609, while 132 and 383 stood up among individual scores.

Purdy and Slick did some slick bowling last night in the Masonic League to tie for high game honors with 169. Wolfe's three-game total of 406 was high, while Petworth showed the way to the teams with 586 and 1,637.

Washington Muny Net Body Meets Tonight

Members of the Washington Public Parks Tennis Association will hold their annual meeting tonight at Wardman Park Hotel starting at 8 o'clock, Bill Shreve, secretary, announced last night.

Important business, including election of officers for the ensuing year will be transacted. Plans will be made for the operation of the association's league, which enjoyed a successful season last year, also for the annual tournament.

Ways and means of raising funds to send the victors to the national tournament, to be held in New York this year, also will be discussed.

BOYS' CLUBS ACTIVE.

Members of the Washington Boys Club will meet Northeast Boys Club representatives at checkers, ping pong and billiards tonight at the former club. Keen competition is expected, especially in billiards as both clubs boast a couple of cue experts.

DEPARTMENTAL MEETING.

President Walter Shomo has called another meeting of the Departmental League for tomorrow night at 8. The managers of the seven contending teams will convene in the Green Room of the Government Printing Office to map a schedule, select umpires, post franchises and otherwise prepare to start actual competition on May 1.

Naval Hospital, it is rumored, will not start a team this year, the men being needed for work owing to reduced personnel.

MARYLAND U. IN MEET ON SATURDAY

Face V. M. I. at Lexington; Galliher, Moorhead Out.

WITH two stars on the injured list, Geary Eppley's University of Maryland thinclads open their outdoor track season in a meet with V. M. I. at Lexington Saturday afternoon.

Joe Galliher, star high jumper and 880 man of last year's freshman squad, and Jack Moorhead, also an 880 man, are the boys on the injured list. Galliher suffered a sprained ankle in practice last week that undoubtedly will keep him out of the contest, while Moorhead has an infected foot that may give him some trouble. Outside of that, the squad is in good physical condition.

Quinn Converted Into Hurdler.

Interesting to note is the conversion of Eddie Quinn, former sprint ace, to a hurdler. Well supplied with sprinters, Coach Eppley changed Quinn, whose feat of stepping the 50 yards in 5 2-5 seconds ties the all-time record of that school, to fill in the place at the hurdles, which was exceptionally weak. Quinn is showing very well in this position and should strengthen a hitherto weak spot on the Old Line squad.

Another Terp to display rare form is Stew McCaw, grid star, who is trying his hand at track for the first time. Busick, Keenan and Cronin also look good in the field events.

100 and 220, Widmyer and Quinn; 440, Sonen, Evans and Archer; 880, Cronin and Moorhead; mile, McCaw and Askin; 2 miles, Devendorf and Bowers; high hurdles, Boucher and Busick; low hurdles, Thompson and Mothershead; high jump, Jenkins, Boucher and Busick; broad jump, Hines, Boucher and Jenkins; shot put, Keenan and Erwin; discus, Hines and Jenkins; javelin, Allison, Hines and Jenkins; pole vault, Cronin, Boucher and Busick.

Widmyer, Thompson, Moorhead, Evans, Archer, Bowers, Boucher and Erwin are all sophs. All the others were on last year's squad, but Busick is the only senior among those named.

SOMERVILLE HORSES IN HUNT

Special to The Washington Post.

WINCHESTER, Va. April 4.—With seven horses named for Saturday's running of the Deep Run Hunt race meeting at Curles Neck, near Richmond, Mrs. T. H. Somerville, of Montpelier, Orange County, has nominated on the most lavish scale, as announced by T. Beverly Campbell, racing secretary. Mrs. Somerville headed the list of successful owners at hunt meetings last season. These horses were entered in 26 races during the 1932 season, winning 50 per cent, five of which races were over timber, four over brush and four on the flat. On three occasions Mrs. Somerville's horses ran second, were third five times and were unplaced six times.

Mrs. Somerville has one or two entries in four of the six races to be run at the coming Curles Neck meeting, two of which horses are the sons of Man o' War. These horses are aptly named Battleship and Annapolis. Battleship is listed to run in the Malvern Hill Steeplechase, a two-mile brush race, and Annapolis is entered in the Curles Neck, at one mile on the flat.

Georgetown Calls Out Golfers

Candidates to Report Today at Indian Spring Course.

WITH prospects of one of its strongest teams in history, Georgetown University's golf candidates will assemble today at the Indian Spring course for the first of three days of practice to determine which players will represent the institution on the links this season.

Veterans returning from last year's team who will be on the scene are John R. Slattery 2d, captain; Joe DeStefano, Walter Tynan, Dick McPartlin, Donald O'Brien and Rupert Friday.

Three 1932 Frosh Seek Berths.

Three members of last season's crack freshmen team will challenge the 1932 mainstays for positions. They are Joe Lynch, medalist in the Army and Navy invitation tournament last year; Dick Kreuzberg, up-and-coming young star from Indian Spring, and Joe Galvin.

Georgetown has a match pending with North Carolina for Wednesday, April 26. On April 28, the Hoya golfers open their regular Eastern intercollegiate campaign, meeting Holy Cross, Dartmouth and Harvard at Princeton, N. J.

The second event of the season listed on the District of Columbia Golf Association calendar will take place this morning at Woodmont Country Club in the form of an intracity match between second teams from each of the ten clubs.

Today's schedule for the second teams follows: Army and Navy vs. Beaver Dam at 9:10; Congressional vs. Indian Spring at 9:35; Columbia vs. Kenwood at 9:50; Chevy Chase vs. Manor at 10:10; Washington vs. Woodmont at 10:25.

Gillie Cunningham, youngest of the Cunningham professional concern of Burning Tree, reeled off a 73 Monday at Manor in an informal sweepstakes to capture first prize. His brother, the pro, Walter, was second with a 75; Al Treder, of Manor, had 76; Eddie Stevens, 81, and Leo Walper, 88. The rest of the participants did not report scores.

Mel Shorey, diminutive East Potomac professional, carved out a hole-in-one on the short 145-yard fourth of Course G at East Potomac the other day while playing with Ralph Bennie and John Downey. Shorey used a mashie niblick, the ball landing a few feet from the cup and trickling in.

Randolph-Macon Nine Opens Season Today

Front Royal, Va., April 4.—Randolph Macon Academy opens its baseball season tomorrow, when the locals will journey to Waynesboro, where they will play Fishburne Military Academy. Rainey weather and a spring vacation, have hampered rapid progress of developing a team, but every available day has been used.

Only three men form a nucleus for this year's team. Capt. McFall will be in short, Rudacille on the mound and Heitmiller in center field.

The remaining places will be filled from last year's squad and new boys, Brown has the call for first base, Pettit on second, Atwater at third and Payne catcher. Collins and Reed seem to have landed the outfield places.

April 5, Fishburne, there; 8, All Stars, at home; 15, All Stars, at home; 22, Fishburne, at home; 26, Handley High School (pending), there; 29, Western High School, Washington, D. C., at home.

May 2, Shenandoah Valley Academy, there; 8, Randolph-Macon Academy of Bedford, at home; 10, Woodberry Forest, there; 12, Handley High School (pending), at home; 17, Shenandoah Valley Academy, at home.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IN the popular mind radio has come to mean entertainment. However, as the late Admiral Bullard, Capt. S. C. Hooper, director of Naval Communications, and others have so frequently said, the radio's most important function is the part it plays in a great disaster. A striking example was the Akron crash yesterday.

Think where we would have been without radio, how long it might have taken for the news to have got through from the German tanker, Phoebus, and the delay there would have been dispatching airplanes and ships to the scene of the catastrophe.

The S O S signal has long ceased to be a novelty, but such flashes as came yesterday bring the same thrill and always a further realization of the marvels of wireless communication. Radio is unique as a servant of humanity.

It is ironic that the radio equipment aboard the Akron, probably the finest installation of its kind in the world, costing upward of $25,000, was useless in the disaster which overtook the dirigible.

Raymond P. Brandt, president of the National Press Club, and Don A. Craig, sr., chairman of the club's silver jubilee committee, will launch a series of talks dedicated to the jubilee in a special "Going to Press" series this afternoon. (WJSV, 4:45 o'clock).

Another newspaper talk will be by James L. Wright, of the Buffalo News, over WMAL at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Brandt, Craig and Jim Wright have all been around this town long enough to give you some pretty good inside stuff.

ROSINA LHEVINNE, wife of the pianist, will join her husband during his recital tonight (WRC, 9:30 o'clock). Accompanied by an orchestra, the Lhevinnes will play the first movement of the Mozart Concerto in E flat major for two pianos. In addition Joseph Lhevinne will play the thirteen variations of a Paganini theme by Johannes Brahms.

Gabrilowitsch, pianist and director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will speak in connection with the Greenwich House Music School's music week observance (WRC, 4:30 p. m.). His subject will be "Music for Today."

Leon Belasco was so engrossed in his music that he forgot it was April 1. So, when one of his musicians interrupted supper music at the St. Moritz to inform him he had ten minutes to take the air "for an emergency," Leon leaped to his last-minute arrangements. He controlled himself when Announcer Ken Roberts phoned that, unfortunately, Leon would have to announce the broadcast himself; likewise, when Engineer Harry Spears strolled in a half minute late. Belasco did writhe in the midst of his emergency lyrics, when two soloists got up and sang off key; again, when he sang one number while the orchestra played another, and yet again when he discovered his chief fiddler fingering the tuba while the tuba player befuddled the fiddlers.

But he quickly revived when, at the supposed signature song, all of his men threw down their instruments and shouted "April Fool!"

THE WJSV program tells us that Joseph Urban, noted scenic decorator, will be the speaker on the "Modern Architecture" program (WJSV, 4:15 p. m.), but a Columbia press notice from the great City of New York says it will be Ezra Winter, mural painter. If interested you might tune in and see who was right. . . . Everything is all set for George Bernard Shaw to "pan the boobs" over the radio as well as in person when he packs them in at the Metropolitan in New York next Tuesday night. . . . Bret Harte's "Luck of Roaring Camp" will be portrayed by the "American School of the Air" (WJSV, 2:30 p. m.).

Further evidence that the wets are beginning to try to soft pedal the celebration of the advent of beer is seen in the keynote of the address to be given tonight (WOR, Newark, 6:45 o'clock) by William J. Egan, director of public safety in Newark. His talk will be "in the nature of a request that the people differentiate between liberty and license." The wets do not want folks to get too hilarious about beer, for fear that it may affect the constitutional repeal.

THE concluding "Baseball Nite" broadcast will be staged by Radio Joe (WMAL, 7:30 p. m.) tonight. In addition to any local baseball celebrities who may be on hand it wouldn't be surprising if Milton Berle or some of the other visiting talent from Loew's Fox Theater might drop in.

A week from today President Roosevelt will toss the first ball at the official opening of the season here between the Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics. The game is to be broadcast by one network and maybe both.

Dr. Burton Lee, of Cornell University, will discuss "Cancer and the Community" (WABC, 5 p. m.) . . . This will be preceded by Dr. William D. Stroud, of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, on "Children and Their Hearts" (WMAL, 4:30 p. m.) . . . J. B. Kincer, meteorologist of the Weather Bureau, will review "March Weather and Crops" (WMAL, 12:30 p. m.) . . . . Huntingdon Burdick, horn soloist, will be featured in the Eastman Chamber Music program (WMAL, 4 p. m.) . . . . Olive Murray Chapman will tell in the Woman's Review how her exploring expedition went "Across Iceland on Ponies."

Rod Arkell, heard on Friday nights, had arranged for several tentative sponsors to listen to his broadcast on St. Patrick's Day. At the last minute Gov. Smith consented to go on the air from a St. Patrick's dinner being broadcast over the station and Rod Arkell gave up his 15 minutes that night to Mr. Smith. Next day his sponsors telephoned, "You were swell last night in that St. Patrick's Day program, Arkell," said they. "But boy you certainly sounded like Al Smith!"

WHY does Lee Wiley, deep-throated singer on the Pond's program, live in the city?

"After Oklahoma? Don't be silly; of course I live in the city!" Miss Wiley, a graduate of the University of Oklahoma and a native of the State, had always dreamed of living in Manhattan; so when she arrived two years ago to appear in big-time radio she chose a midtown apartment and there she has stayed! For a considerable time she was on the same program with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Emma Slack Heads Chevy Chase PenWomen

Mrs. Emma W. P. Slack has been elected president of the Chevy Chase branch of the National League of American Pen Women. She will be one of the guests of honor at the annual dinner of the association in May at Congressional Country Club.

Other officers elected are Mrs. Daisy B. Calhoun, first vice president; Miss Victoria Copping, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Bennett, third vice president; Mrs. Frank Chaney, secretary; Miss Louis Worden, treasurer; Mrs. Lucia Ramsey Maxwell, auditor; Mrs. Mary S. Parker, auditor, and Mrs. Richard Yates, registrar.

Boy Stealing 6 Pennies Given 30 Days in Jail

For the theft of six pennies from a newsstand at Fourteenth and H streets northwest, Frank C. Shields, young colored boy from Virginia, was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail yesterday by Judge Ralph Given in Police Court.

Shields told the judge "it looked like a good idea" at the time he took the pennies. Judge Given told him he had better return to his Virginia home when he gets out. Shields pleaded guilty.

Report Expected On Saville Probe

Business of Virginia Power Companies Has Been Under Study.

Richmond, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—The Corporation Commission today indicated that it expected the first report of the Saville inquiry into the operation costs and management details of the three larger power companies in Virginia in the near future.

The Allen J. Saville organization was retained by the commission to study the business of the companies, and Mr. Saville was instructed to file reports as fast as the information was at hand. The investigation extends into the power business of the Virginia Electric & Power Co., the Virginia Public Service Co. and the Appalachian Power Co. The investigators were asked to make an immediate inquiry into the gas division of the Virginia Electric & Power Co. at Norfolk.

$25,000 Damage Suits Filed Against Printer

Suits totaling $25,000 were filed against Leo Fuhrmann, an employe of the Government Printing Office by Daniel H. Campbell, 2716 Thirty-second street, Mount Rainier, Md., and Edward B. Reier, 3846 Thirty-third street, Mount Rainier.

Mr. Fuhrmann, according to the suits, was the driver of an automobile in which both Campbell and Reier were passengers last January 9, when the machine struck another automobile on Thirty-first street. Both claimed to have sustained severe injuries. The suits, filed by Attorney Isidore M. Lavine, asked for $10,000 for Campbell and $15,000 for Reier.

France Slashes Limit Of Foreign Musicians

(Associated Press.)

The State Department was advised yesterday of a French decree reducing to 10 per cent by June 1 the number of foreign musicians playing in orchestras.

While State Department officials declined to comment, it was understood the order would leave a considerable number of American musicians stranded in Paris.

3 SHOT AS BANDITS ROB BANK OF $27,643

Thieves Scoop Up Money and Escape, Using 4 Persons as Shield From Fire.

Fairbury, Nebr., April 4 (A.P.)—Three men were wounded by machine gun fire in a battle with six robbers who held up the First National Bank of Fairbury today and escaped with $27,643.

The robbers entered the bank shortly after it opened, terrorized employes and customers, scooped up the money, dashed to their car with two employes and two women customers as shields from the guns of officers, and escaped. The hostages later were released.

Deputy Sheriff W. S. Davidson, from his office in the courthouse across the street, saw the robbers flee with their hostages. With him was Peter Johnson, of Des Moines, Iowa, salesman for a law officers' supply house.

They opened fire on the robbers. Davidson and Johnson were wounded, not seriously. Keith Sexton, bank employe, forced into the street as a shield, was wounded five times by submachine bullets with which the robbers returned the officers' fire. His condition was critical.

The Rev. Mr. Drebert to Indiana.

Reading, Pa., April 4 (A.P.)—The Rev. Ernest Drebert, pastor of the First Moravian Church, today said he had accepted a call from the Moravian Church of Hope, Ind.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

A COMMON phenomenon in caves is the formation of stalactites and stalagmites by dripping mineral-laden water which leaves behind curious icicle-shaped masses of stone hanging from the roof, as in the case of stalactites, or rising from the floor, as stalagmites. This process takes ages, but strange as it seems, on the man-made aqueduct of Daphne, which brought water to Antioch, dripping water has formed stalactites under the arches where the structure was above the ground. No longer used for water conveyance, many sections of the old aqueduct now serve as bridges, strangely giving the appearance of the combined handiwork of man and nature in the building.

Since 1400 years before Christ, in the time of Rameses II, aqueducts have been built for conveyance of water. The 15-mile Hadrian Aqueduct, built in 134 to 140 A. D., still carries 2,500,000 gallons of water a day. Rome was noted for her many aqueducts.

Much of the water was from springs, and carried a high mineral content which aided the comparatively quick formation of stalactites. The minerals are partly deposited when water drips off of a wall, each drop leaving a minute quantity of stone until the stalactite is formed.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HOW ABOUT AN HONEST STATEMENT OF FACTS BY INVESTORS?

ELMER TWITCHELL proposes that the investor as well as the stock and bond broker be required to make an honest and complete statement of facts in all securities dealings. He would have any man desiring to buy stocks fill out the following questionnaire:

I, ——— ———, being of sound mind and body, do hereby announce my desires to buy....shares of.....

I am entering the market of my own free will and not under duress or threats.

1. Check the reasons for your desire to buy the aforesaid stock:

(a) I think it a good investment.

(b) My delicatessen dealer says there is going to be a split-up.

(c) I just can't shake off my gambling habits.

2. Do you know anything about the corporation, its prospects, its management, &c., or are you buying out of curiosity?

3. Do you place this order as an investor or are you buying from the same impulse that would cause you to hold four cards and draw for a flush?

4. Has there ever been any insanity in your family?

5. Do you play the market entirely by ear or not?

6. Are you so determined to take a flyer in this stock that even if we advised you against it it would make no difference?

7. Would you under any circumstances read from beginning to end a complete statement on the financial affairs of this corporation, and if so would it mean anything to you?

8. Can you afford to buy stocks, or does this purchase mean that you will have to go another three months without a spare tire and continue to refuse your wife a new dress?

9. Have you ever been right in any stock market purchase, and if so when? And how?

10. On the many occasions when you lost money did you heap abuse on the broker and the stock exchange or did you take a little blame yourself?

11. Do you intend to hold this stock as an investment or as soon as you think it has risen to unsafe heights unload it on some other fellow?

12 Do you see any ethics in such conduct?

13. Does your wife know you are entering the market again?

14. In order to get the money to buy this stock did you tell your bank that you had to have the money to meet a mortgage?

15. Once you make up your mind to take a market flyer could you be dissuaded by any force outside of interference by the land, naval and air forces of the United States?

Sign full name here and don't say you were dragged into this investment.. . .

$150 Fire in Bank Quickly Subdued

Flames that leaped high behind the counter of the Industrial Savings Bank, Eleventh and U streets northwest, last night at 9 o'clock, attracted a large crowd which witnessed the doors of the bank smashed by firemen from Engine Company No. 7, and the fire extinguished before serious damage was done.

A broken plate glass and a counter panel constituted the fire loss, estimated by W. H. C. Brown, president and conservator of the bank, at approximately $150. The fire started in a large trash box. W. S. Carter, chairman of the board of directors, together with Jesse H. Mitchell, vice president, and Talley Holmes, director, stated no records of the bank has been damaged either by fire or water.

"Be Careful!"

RULES ARE DRAFTED TO PERMIT SALE OF BEER EARLY FRIDAY

Forms of Applications of Permits Approved; To Be Available Today.

The District Commissioners and the Municipal Beer Board moved swiftly yesterday to make possible the sale of beer in Washington Thursday midnight providing the District bill is signed before that time by President Roosevelt.

Working on the basis of the terms of the conference report, the Beer Board early yetserday drafted tentative regulations and application forms and recommended to the Commissioners that temporary permits be issued all persons who come within the classification of licensees without the specified inspections. These proposals were all approved later in the day by the District heads.

Formal applications will be available in printed form probably before noon today and will be issued at the License Bureau of the District Building upon request. All persons who have written to request licenses—a total of 819 at closing time yesterday—will be furnished with copies of formal applications by police messenger.

These applications will be received and considered as rapidly as received and temporary permits will be drafted for issuance immediately after the District beer bill becomes a law. The beer board expects that many of the applicants whose letters are on file will be automatically disbarred because their vocations do not meet the requirements of the bill.

Brewery to Get License.

A license will be issued to the Abner Drury Co., the only Washington brewery, just as soon as the sale of beer becomes legal so that there will be no further delay in the manufacture of 3.2 per cent brew for local consumption.

The regulations provide that no on-sale permits shall be granted establishments within a radius of 200 feet from any public, private or parochial school or any church or place of religious worship. An exception is made for all existing hotels and clubs.

Holders of off-sale permits must post in a conspicuous place a sign stating that "drinking of beverages as defined in the act of Congress of April —, 1933, is not permitted on these premises."

Except in the case of a solicitor, no license shall be issued to any person unless he is the holder of a certificate of occupancy issued under authority of the zoning act.

No club holding an on-sale license shall sell beer to any person not a bona fide member of such a club or a bona fide guest of such a member.

Container Must Be Open.

No beer shall be sold or served by any on-sale licensee except in an open container.

No on-sale permit shall be issued to any establishment conducted in a residential district as defined in the zoning regulations, except restaurants in hotels, apartment houses or clubs "and then only when the entrance to such restaurant is entirely inside the hotel, apartment house or club, and no sign or display is visible from the outside of the building."

A similar restriction is placed on off-sale licenses except that the word establishment is used instead of restaurant.

The name of the beer license board was changed to the Beverage Permits Board, but includes the same personnel: Vernon E. West, chairman; Capt. Hugh P. Oram, director of inspections; Police Inspector Lewis E. H. Edwards; and Superintendent of Licenses Wade Coombs.

Applications Are Lengthy.

The formal applications are lengthy affairs setting forth the restrictions governing permit holders, the fees and the like as carried in the District beer bill. Twenty-seven questions are asked of each applicant on the application form. These questions are enough to floor the average applicant as they go into minute detail regarding the character, the business organization, the financial setup and the purposes of the person or establishment asking for a permit.

Applicants, once they have filled out these forms, shall submit their applications, together with receipts showing they have paid the required fee to the collector of taxes, to the superintendent of licenses, who will submit it to the Beverage Permits Board, which in turn will recommend its approval or disapproval to the Commissioners.

RUM PARTIES ON EVE OF BEER ARE FEARED

District Urged to Bar Sale Until 7 A. M. of Day It Is Made Legal.

Fear that unfavorable word in regard to Washington may go to the entire country as a result of possible debaucheries marking the celebration of the return of legalized beer was expressed yesterday at a meeting of the Hotel Association of Washington. A resolution was adopted unanimously requesting the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia to prohibit the sale of legalized beer prior to 7 a. m. on the day the new law goes into effect.

The resolution referred to the possibility of evening parties on the evening prior to the hour the law will go into effect and contained the following: "Whereas, it is the belief and fear of the Hotel Association of Washington that the use of illegal and hard liquors would result in intoxication, among many of those taking part in such so-called celebrations and that the impression would be given the general public that such intoxication and possible disorderliness came as the result of the new law."

Commenting on the resolution, Arthur Harnett, president of the Hotel Association of Washington, said:

"In Chicago similar action has already been taken. I do not think there could possibly be such wild celebrations here as would take place in Chicago. But this city is more important from the standpoint of orderliness and law obedience because it is the National Capital, and therefore should in effect be a symbol of law observance.

"So now it is important that the black eye that Washington has had be not further colored by a lot of wild gin parties that will mark the advent of a legal and mild beverage."

Phi Kappa Entertains Freshmen at Smoker

Omega Chapter of Phi Kappa, national social fraternity, at Catholic University, last night entertained 75 first-year students at a smoker in the fraternity house on the campus.

John O'Connell, of Lewiston, Me., president of the chapter, delivered an address of greeting. Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. Charles Hart, the Rev. Maurice Sheehy, the Rev. Dr. George Stratmeier and Edward Curran.

Man Held for Jury In Apartment Death

Detained After Brother-in-Law Is Shot in Head During Row.

Melvin T. Salter, 34, was held for the grand jury at an inquest yesterday into the death of his brother-in-law, Allen Lynch, 24, who died in Emergency Hospital Monday, several hours after he had been shot in the head during an altercation in Salter's apartment at 1105 Thirteenth street northwest.

Testimony presented to the coroner's jury indicated that Lynch, his brother, Soner Lynch and Tami Shima, a Japanese friend of the two, entered the Salter apartment following a party.

Allen Lynch was said to have attacked Salter, who reached for a .25-caliber revolver and fired two shots, one entering Lynch's head. The other struck the floor.

During the scuffle, Shima was struck over the head by a billiard cue. Mrs. Salter, who witnessed the shooting, testified she fainted when she saw her brother was wounded.

KING AND M'INTYRE DISCUSS D. C. JOBS

Senator Backing No One, He Advises Secretary at White House.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

With everybody in town apparently trying to pull whatever string they can get a finger on to advance their favorite for one or another District post, the close of business last night saw no one in a position to be positive about who would get what job, if any.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, to which will be referred District nominations, called at the White House again yesterday and discussed briefly with Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to the President, the question of District appointments.

The senator told Mr. McIntyre the same thing he told the President last week. He was very much interested in all District appointments. Despite numerous requests for his support, Senator King has refused to indorse any candidate and reiterated to Mr. McIntyre yesterday that he had no candidate for any post. He simply was interested in getting good men, familiar with conditions in the District and the needs of the city, who would be capable of giving efficient and competent service.

Senator King already has put himself publicly on record as opposed to making District jobs a haven for retired Army officers or outsiders who may have more or less claim on some political potentate. It is believed that the District Commissionerships, the District attorney's post, and one or two others were discussed briefly, although no names were mentioned.

Following the conference, Senator King emphasized he had no complaint against any incumbent, but it is understood he would like to see the local situation settled as soon as possible. He coupled with that statement, however, a declaration highly complimentary to the President for the work he has done since he assumed office and said he appreciated and approved the President's delay in taking up local matters, which could wait without material harm to any one.

Another lawyer who has been unofficially suggested as a candidate for District attorney is Judge Michael M. Doyle, whose friends have been active in his behalf, but whose name has not been widely advertised as a candidate.

Two Suits Ask $20,000 Each in Auto Accident

David Gogol, 529 Lamont street northwest, yesterday in the District Supreme Court filed two damage suits, one against Alvin B. Lank, 3719 New Hampshire avenue northwest, and the other against Lank's son, Murrell C. Lank, 17.

Through Attorney A. L. Newmyer, Gogol claimed he was seriously hurt when an automobile driven by the son crashed into him at Sixteenth and Q streets northwest October 6, 1932. Both suits sought $20,000 each.

P. U. C. PLEDGES GAS STATISTICS TO KEECH

People's Counsel Charged He Was Being Kept in Dark as to Negotiations.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday told People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech that he would be given any data he asks for, providing it is available, on the valuation of the properties of the Washington and the Georgetown Gas Light Companies. The announcement came as the culmination of a prolonged conference.

Called to the parley because of newspaper reports that the commission was withholding certain information in connection with its valuation proceedings, Mr. Keech explained in detail what it was he desired.

At the public hearing Monday the people's counsel charged that neither the commission nor the gas companies had furnished him with certain summaries and instructions as to policy, which he declared are essential if he is to keep abreast of the progress of the valuation work now being carried on in executive conferences by engineers of the commission and the gas companies.

While there was still no intimation after the parley that Mr. Keech and the commission had signed a peace pact, it is expected that the people's counsel will have no further difficulties in the matter of getting information on the gas companies valuation.

Cleveland Park Group For Reno Road Repairs

The pavement on Reno road should be repaired or the street should be closed, speakers at the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association contended last night. They said that the road was almost impassable from Van Ness street to Yuma to Thirty-eighth street northwest.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d also was roundly criticized for his failure to take definite action regarding the playground for the Cleveland Park section.

D. C. COMMISSION END DEMANDED AT COLUMBIA HEIGHTS

Capper Is Lauded in Efforts to Reduce Scale of Capital Rents.

Recommendation that the Commissioner system of government in the District be abolished and a single executive substituted was made last night by the Columbia Heights Citizens Association.

A resolution to this effect was introduced by George H. Brown, and despite efforts of Mrs. W. I. Swanton to block its immediate passage, it was adopted after a lively debate. The stand of the association appeared to be that there are too many groups in charge of local affairs. This results in considerable red tape and passing the buck, it was charged.

Rent Reduction Indorsed.

Indorsement of efforts of Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, and his associates in bringing about an equitable reduction of rent was given after protracted arguments in which Charles T. Clayton made a strenuous attempt to curb such action.

Reduction of the assessed value of real estate so as to conform with the tax rate also was recommended.

Charges that local taxpayers have received a raw deal in withdrawal of an appropriation for a boys' gymnasium at the Powell Junior High School were made by Lester T. Walter, principal of the school. At present there is only a girls' gymnasium. The appropriation for the boys' gymnasium was denied because of a slight technicality in the wording of the measure. The association urged that funds for the boys' gymnasium be included in the school appropriation.

Jennings Randolph Speaks.

Members of the association pointed to this situation as further evidence of the need for abolition of the commissioner system. Stinging darts of criticism were directed at the Engineer Commissioner.

Representative Jenninga Randolph, of West Virginia, who addressed the association, pledged his support in every measure of benefit to the District. Representative Randolph was invited to address the meeting by John M. Boteler, chairman of the finance committee of the association.

MurchSchool Body Fights Budget Cut

Association Asks Congress to Reject Proposed Slashes.

Opposing vigorously any reduction of the school estimates as provided by school officials, the Ben W. Murch Home and School Association yesterday called upon Congress to reject the recommendations of the director of the budget.

The association declared the school system is now the object of attack by persons guided by a false economic theory. It also contended that the taxpayers of the District desire "to maintain the school system intact and functioning to the best interests of this and the next generation and are willing to pay the cost."

Relief Appeals Called Greatest Since 1861

Plans for raising additional relief funds to take care of the increasing number of families applying for aid will be made at a meeting tonight of president and vice presidents of the 34 parish conferences of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at the society's headquarters at 601 E street northwest. It is announced that appeals to the society for help during the last few months have been greater than at any period since its founding in 1861.

Charge Ordered Drawn Against Capt. Pierson

After considerable study of the case of Capt. Joseph W. Pierson, suspended commander of the Second Police Precinct, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday ordered his assistant, Robert E. Lynch, to prepare formal charges of intoxication at home.

John F. Costello, national Democratic committeeman, will defend Capt. Pierson, and the charge will be contested. The hearing will be before a special trial board composed of Inspectors O. T. Davis, J. F. Beckett and Albert J. Headley. No date had been set yesterday.

Kind Hearts

Police Give Lodging to Needy Family, as Well as $16.50.

Policemen have again proved they are not so hard-hearted after all.

Early yesterday a man identifying himself as James Mathew Daniels, his wife and four children ranging in age from 4 to 12 years, trouped into the Second Precinct station. They were haggard and worn. The man said they had ridden freight trains from Gaston, Tex., and were on their way to New Jersey, where they had relatives. He asked if they could get a place to sleep.

The policemen let the man sleep in a station cell, took the mother and older daughter to the Women's Bureau and the three smaller children to the Receiving Home.

Later in the day the policemen dug into their own pockets and gave the family $16.50.

SENATE COMMITTEE BIDS CIVIC LEADERS

Invitation to District Group Meeting Is New Step in Friendly Relations.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Uath, chairman of the Senate District Committee, yesterday extended a public invitation to civic organizations and civic and business leaders of Washington to attend a meeting of the committee in its office at 2 p. m. Saturday.

It is to be, to quote the committee chairman, a sort of a lawyer and client get-together, during which he expects the several new members of the committee to get some ideas of the problems and desires of the people of the District for whom they must act as protectors and governors.

"I want the people of the District to feel that the members of the District Committee are keenly interested in their needs and their desires and their problems," Senator King said. "I want a close relationship between the committee and the people of the District. The committee does not want to assume the role of dictator, but wants to work in close and friendly relations with the people of the District."

No specific legislation is to be discussed at any length or acted on at the meeting, the senator said.

The calling of such a meeting by Senator King is something new in the friendly relations which have heretofore existed, generally, between the people of the District and the members of the Senate. District residents last night hailed the proposal and apparently the meeting will be largely attended.

NORTHEAST SAVINGS BANK TO OPEN SOON, HOOVER ANNOUNCES

Conservator Asserts Plan Has Been Approved by Treasury Heads.

Plans contemplating the reopening of Northeast Savings Bank, at Eighth and H streets northeast, are under way, according to an announcement yesterday by G. F. Hoover, conservator and one of the vice presidents of that institution. Mr. Hoover's statement read: "The directors of Northeast Savings Bank are pleased to announce that plans which they have submitted to the Treasury Department for reopening the bank have been approved. These plans will be submitted to the depositors in a few days."

The plans were not made public, but Mr. Hoover's statement indicates that they will concern primarily the depositors of that institution, no mention having been made regarding stockholders. Prompt action is indicated by the last sentence of the statement.

The Washington (D. C.) Clearing House Association has urged all local banks, open on a 100 per cent basis, to facilitate collection of conservators' checks. These banks which are performing all banking operations have been requested to cooperate to the fullest extent possible in facilitating the handling of checks drawn on bailee funds in some local banks which have not yet received Government licenses to resume unrestricted banking business.

Several local banks which have not yet reopened for full business since the country-wide bank holiday are handling these bailee funds as a convenience to their regular customers. This method was selected to give patrons as much banking service as possible under restricted operation. The bailee accounts offer no income to the banks affording this service, as the money in them must be kept liquid at all times, can not be loaned and must be separated from all other funds.

Member banks which have not yet been licensed to do a full banking business are not provided clearing house privileges at the present time. As a result, such checks must be collected at the banks on which they are issued. It is to meet this situation that the clearing house association has requested member banks to make the handling of these checks as easy as possible for those who draw them.

While it was explained that the cashing of these checks involves time and messenger service, it was remarked that in many cases banks and business houses have cooperated in assisting depositors in banks open under restrictions.
